Invaders Killed

By the Associated Press

Helsinki, Feb. 6.—Guided by the snow-reflected glare of hundreds of campfires, Finnish warplanes tonight bombed massive Red army infantry concentrations before the Mannerheim Line after the repulse of Soviet tanks and manpower which broke five times in futile assault against a single Finnish base.

This new technique of "blitz" attack—swift, brief and deadly—by the Finnish air force was begun last night, and was resumed after the early twilight fell today.

Couriers from the front lines said the campfires of the Soviet attackers were the key to success of the raids. They explained that the Russians had massed great numbers of infantrymen in the Summa sector, 20 miles south of the Finnish-held city of Viipuri, without adequate provision for shelter against the cold and that the troops were forced to shiver about open fires in order to keep from freezing.

Fires Splendid Targets

These fires made splendid targets for the Finnish bombers. Other farther-ranging planes meantime bombed Soviet troop columns with increasing frequency.

Rovaniemi, important Arctic town, was bombed by Russian planes tonight, and the town's power lines were put out of commission. Casualties were not known.

A Finnish officer returning from the Mannerheim Line area of the Karelian Isthmus said the Summa front, about 11 miles long, between Lake Muola and Hatajan Gulf, had suffered the most violent artillery bombardment of the war.

"The area is as full of shell craters as any part of the Western Front during the World War," he declared.

Started Six Days Ago

Asked when he thought the Summa attack would end, he replied:

"When the Russians have lost enough men and tanks and realize they cannot get through anyway."

The present attack started six days ago with a terrific artillery bombardment. Three hundred guns fired continually on Finnish lines. Then the infantry attacked in waves for two days with Soviet soldiers machine-gunning Finnish lines in the rear. The officer reported the Russians used 150 tanks in the attack.

North of Lake Ladoga, on the left flank of the Mannerheim Line, the Finns played a waiting game with the trapped Eighteenth Russian Division. There was no con-

French Expect Reich to Seek Finnish Peace

Nazis Are Pictured As Feeling Russians Should Go Southeast

Copyright by New York Times.

Paris, Feb. 6.—It is anticipated in French circles that German moves for mediation in the Soviet-Finnish conflict may be expected in the near future to prevent the Soviets from expending energies which could better serve the Reich if directed in southeastern Europe.

The end of March should see further operations in Finland blocked by the snow thaw, and the melting of ice on Finnish lakes, which would hamper troop movements and military activities.

This moment, it is believed here, has been chosen by the Reich for another attempt to divert the Russians' action to other centers.

Germany never wanted the Finnish conflict, and did her utmost to induce the Finns to accede to Russian demands. Now they see Russian effort completely absorbed in an adventure in which the Germans have no interest in Soviet success.

According to information reaching here the Soviet railroads and transportation system have been completely choked by moving men, horses, munitions and materials towards the Finnish front.

Iran, Afghans Arm to Face Russian Drive

Italians Report Allies Are Prepared For Caucasus Action

By G. H. Archambault.

Copyright by New York Times

Paris, Feb. 6.—News reaches Paris tonight via Rome of nervousness in the Middle East, with Iran and Afghanistan taking military precautions in the expectation of a Russo-German drive toward the Persian Gulf.

Italian observations are considered here as generally accurate. There is significance, therefore, in the conclusion reached in this Italian dispatch.

"In the Near East the Allies have important armed forces ready to face any situation and even, if need be, to take action in the direction of the Caucasus, which now represent Germany's principal source of petroleum supplies."

Another dispatch from Rome reports the Giornale d'Italia carries an article under a Kabul date line which says Afghanistan "is carrying out important military preparations to forestall an imminent extension of hostilities in the southern zone of Kafiristan."

Army in Two Parts

[Kafiristan is a province of Afghanistan bordering the northwest frontier provinces of India.—Editor's note.]

The Allied forces in the Middle East form the army of the Orient. For obvious military reasons little is said here of this army beyond casual references. Nevertheless, by piecing together a number of fragmentary reports, it is possible to present the following picture:

At present the Allies have two distinct military organizations in the Near East.

The French forces are concentrated in "the States of the Levant under French mandate" under the supreme comand of Gen. Maxime Weygand. They comprise all troops in Syria and Lebanon, whether metropolitan, or colonial North African (which includes the foreign legion).

In recent weeks this army has received reinforcements both in men and materiel. It is equipped with an adequate air force and has also a number of mechanized formations. And since the Allies have mastery of the Mediterranean there is no difficulty in assuring either its supplies or the arrival of further rein-

Don't Call Morgue If You Want Help In Trying to Die

A man who said he wanted to die if he could destroy his identity as well as his life called the District Morgue yesterday for advice.

He didn't get any. Instead J. Bradford McCoy, chief clerk of the coroner's office, who held the man in conversation for 15 minutes, trying to learn his name.

The caller said he had been unemployed for some time and, since he had substantial insurance for his family, he had decided to take the "best way out."

Lieut. Joseph Connors at the Detective Bureau tried unsuccessfully to have the call traced.

D.C. Proposes To Renovate Institutions

Commissioners Admit Needs at Blue Plains, Plan 5-Year Program Of Improvements

By Robert DeVore
Post Staff Writer

A five-year program of renovation, reconstruction and new construction" after a "comprehensive study of all District properties" evolved yesterday in what amounted to a meeting of the Board of District Commissioners at the Home for the Aged and Infirm.

Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, Engineer Commissioner David McCoach, Jr., Daniel J. Donovan, the District auditor, and Robert E. Bondy, director of Public Welfare, inspected the sights and smells at the home at Blue Plains, D. C., that "shocked" Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Afterward they retired to an anteroom in the home's dingy administration building for a conference.

Congress to Get Program

In a few minutes they adjourned and Col. McCoach, as spokesman for the group, made the following statement:

"As a result of this inspection the Commissioners realize that some improvements in the physical plant are desirable but that this is probably true with regard to all institutions and departments in the District Government. We therefore propose a comprehensive study of all District properties to be made between now and the next session of Congress with a view to preparing a five-year program for renovation, reconstruction and new construction where found necessary and desirable, this program to be presented to Congress in legislative form for their approval and authorization as a program.

"Annual appropriations to carry out this program, if authorized, will depend upon the amount of revenue available and other demands."

Hazen Suggests Improvements

Before the visiting officials went into consultation, Commissioner Hazen listed for reporters improvements he felt should be made at Blue Plains. These were:

Larger wards in some divisions to end overcrowding.

More and better facilities, such as bathrooms, particularly in the infirmary.

Larger "sun parlor" for colored inmates.

A fulltime physician.

Hazen said he believed conditions in the home were not bad enough to be called an "emergency." He declared the Commissioners should give consideration to improvement of the home when preparing their

Hook Takes Dies Charge From Record

Pelley Surrenders To House Group, Brands Mayne's Letters Forgeries

By John B. Oakes

Letters purportedly linking Representative Martin Dies with William Dudley Pelley, Silver Shirt leader, were branded "forgeries" and were withdrawan from the Congressional Record yesterday by their sponsor, Representative Hook (Democrat), of Michigan.

Expressing his "deep regret" for having placed the documents in the Record, Hook told the House he had been convinced the letters were faked after hearing public testimony to that effect from Pelley himself and from David D. Mayne, who confessed forging them.

Pelley, who has been missing since last summer, created the sensation of the day by walking into the Dies Committee offices yesterday morning and surrendering. A subpena was served upon him immediately. He is expected to testify at open hearings this week.

As soon as he gave himself up, the Silver Shirt leader was subjected to questioning on the Hook letters at a hastily convened executive sesion of the committee.

Keefe Questions Hook

He was then marched to the Capitol, where a sub-committee of the Rules Committee was considering a resolution to expunge from the Congressional Record Hook's speech on January 22, which contained the documents.

In Hook's presence Pelley told the rules group that "none of these letters was written by me, composed by me, signed by me," and Mayne, who followed him to the stnd, confessed publicity what he had previously told the Dies Committee in private—that he had manufactured the letters and had invented the statements in them "right out of the clear air."

Hook later asked the House to permit him "to withdraw and expunge his speech of January 22." Representative Keefe (Republican), of Wisconsin, who had blocked a similar effort by Hook last week, asked if the request could be interpreted as an "apology to Mr. [illegible] and the Dies Committee."

Delayed Retraction

"After all, it was the controversy raised by me that brought Pelley before the Dies Committee," countered Hook. He finally said that he would not be so "small" as to refuse to extend his apology to any who felt "aggrieved."

The Michigan Democrat later told reporters that he "knew" the Dies Committee, which undertook a several months' search for Pelley last year, could prove the letters were forged only through Pelley's own testimony.

"I held off my retraction in the hope and the belief that Pelley

Garner Casts Vote Against Roosevelt For Slash in Budget

Breaks Senate Tie On CAA, Dropping His Own Precedent Of 6-Year Standing

By Robert C. Albright,
Post Staff Writer

Vice President Garner broke a practice of six years' standing to vote with economy forces yesterday as slow whittling of the President's budget continued in House and Senate.

His rare vote came on a minor item and effected only a relatively small saving. But it served to dramatize the Vice President's known views for Government retrenchment.

Garner, actively out for the Democratic Presidential nomination, broke a 34-34 Senate tie by casting a deciding ballot for a $115,259 committee reduction in Civil Aeronautics Administration expenses.

It was the first time since April 17, 1934, the Vice President had exercised his privilege of breaking a tie. At that time he voted with the late Senator Borah to call up the Borah bill to restrict members of Congress from serving as attorneys in cases involving Government interests. On only one other previous occasion had he broken a tie.

Resources Board Escapes

A series of committee cuts in the $1,138,693,529 Independent Offices bill was sustained by close votes in the Senate and the National Resources Planning Board narrowly escaped a deeper slash of from $710,000 to $100,000.

The Senate rejected this cut, 34 to 35, and approved the committee figure for the board, $710,000, by 38 to 35. Minor restrictions were placed on the board's powers.

Final approval of the Independent Offices Bill was postponed until today in the midst of a sharp fight by Western Senators to win back another $1,000,000 cut from the Civil Aeronautics funds.

Fifth Fund Bill Cut

There were two other major developments in the current economy drive:

The House Appropriations Committee reported its fifth successive appropriation bill with below-budget cuts—the State-Justice-Commerce measure. The three-department bill was trimmed $2,285,010 under the President's recommendations and $3,442,830 under current year spending.

The Senate Commerce Committee unanimously decided to reconsider its action last year in approving $407,855,600 in authorizations for rivers and harbors and flood control work. Chairman Bailey (Democrat), of North Carolina, said this House-approved bill will be generally overhauled. He predicted elimination and pruning of many items.

Board Powers Limited

Senate agreement on $710,000 for the National Resources Planning Board followed House denial of any funds for this and two other White House agencies. President Roosevelt protested and the Senate Committee restored provisions for the board, slicing the appropriation $300,000 below the budget figure.

The Senate yesterday failed by only one vote to cut this $600,000 more. The item was approved after Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, accepted an amendment restricting its powers to those of the old Federal Employment Stabilization board, with which it merged. The amendment does not seriously affect its functions.

The bill contains no money for the second of the two White House agencies eliminated by the House—the office of government reports—

Monsignor Corrigan Named Titular Bishop of Bilta

Holy See Elevates Catholic U. Rector, Ordained in 1903

The Right Rev. Msgr. Joseph M. Corrigan, rector of Catholic University, has been named a bishop by the Holy See, it was announced early today by the apostolic delegation here.

The 60-year-old prelate will become the titular Bishop of Bilta following consecration exercises.

Serving his fourth year in the post, Bishop-elect Corrigan is the sixth rector to head the university since it was founded 50 years ago.

An excellent orator, Bishop-elect Corrigan earned national prominence as the first retreat master of the Philadelphia Laymen's Retreat League, long an outstanding retreat movement unit.

The new bishop is a native of Philadelphia. There he studied in the parochial schools and at La Salle College, and later entered St. Charles Seminary, Overbrook, as a candidate for the priesthood. Because of his brilliant record, he was chosen to complete his theological studies at the North American College in Rome, he earned the degree of doctor of divinity and on June 6, 1903, was ordained in the Church of St. John Lateran by Cardinal Respighi.

Upon his return to Philadelphia Father Corrigan was assigned to parish work. Later he was director of Madonna House, where he did settlement work among the Italian people. So successful was he in social work that he was named diocesan director of catholic charities and assumed personal direction of the Catholic Children's Bureau.

He was appointed to a professorship at St. Charles Seminary on

Byrnes Again Delays Hazen's Confirmation

Senator Unopposed To Approval, Will Give Reason for Action

Senate confirmation of Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen was held up yesterday for the third time when Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, said he wanted an opportunity to make a statement.

Majority Leader Barkley asked that the nomination go over until today when the Senate adjourned late in the day. He said that Byrnes wished to make a statement to the Senate before a vote is taken.

Afterwards the South Carolina Senator said he would not object to Hazen's confirmation but that he wished to explain his reasons for delaying it.

Might Criticize Police

While Byrnes did not disclose what he intends to say regarding Hazen, it was understood that he would discuss the case of Hubert (Steve) Brodie, a native of South Carolina, whose trial by a civilian board has been ordered by the Commissioners at the Senator's insistence.

Associates of Byrnes said that he might make a general criticism of the administration of the Metropolitan Police Department while commenting on the demotion of Brodie from detective sergeant to uniformed private.

Byrnes first objected to Hazen's confirmation last Thursday, but after a conference Friday in the office of Chairman King of the Senate District Committee agreed to withdraw his objection providing Brodie were given a hearing, as he requested, "to clear his name."

Previously Hazen's reappointment for a three-year term was held up

Party Exceeds G.O.P. in Unity, Farley Says

First Lady, Sen. Walsh, Writer, Other Speakers At Democratic Forum

The Democratic Party approaches the Presidential election "with a higher degree of internal harmony" than the G. O. P., Postmaster General Farley asserted last night.

Occasional divergence of viewpoint within the party is not remarkable, the chairman of the Democratic National Committee said, "in view of the vast program of reform and reconstruction" undertaken by the present Administration.

"The recent history of the United States shows that practically every worthwhile piece of progressive and liberal education has been written into law under a Democratic Administration," he declared.

Farley spoke before an audience of 500 at a forum at the Carlton

Movies on Evils Of Tipsy Driving To Be Shown Here

Films on traffic safety will be shown next Tuesday in the caucus room of the old House Office Building, Representative Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, said yesterday. It will start at 2 p. m.

A film showing the evils of drunken driving will be furnished by the District Motor Club, Schulte said, and two other films have been loaned by the State of New Jersey upon request of Representative Vreeland (Republican), of New Jersey.

All members of the House, together with legislative employes, are to be invited to see the movies.

Rare Malady Fatal

Science and Leaders of State Fail to Save Life of Girl, 3

The story of Washington's 3-year-old leukemia victim will reach its end tomorrow. Leslie Lee Ross, who suffered from the malady for three weeks in Children's Hospital, will be buried at 9 a. m. Thursday in Bealsville, Md.

Leslie died late Monday night. A brave fight in which the little girl had the help not only of science but of leaders of state, ended in failure. And in the failure leukemia remains an incurable disease.

Leslie's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Edward Ross, who live in Decatur Heights, Md., took their daughter to the hospital three weeks ago when she failed to recover from what appeared to be a cold. Doctors diagnosed leukemia—a disease of the blood. The doctors told Leslie's parents there was little hope.

For days the father and mother watched Leslie grow weaker.

Last week Mr. and Mrs. Ross read a dispatch in a newspaper that a German scientist had developed a serum that would cure leukemia.

The Rosses, and the girl's uncle, N. G. Tayman, got the State Department to wire the American consul at Frankfurt to arrange for obtaining some of the precious medicine. Arrangements were made to fly the serum across the Atlantic, despite the British blockade.

After a day or two the sad report came back. The story that there was a leukemia serum was not true. None could be found.

Monday night Leslie slipped into a coma. A few minutes later she was dead.

Funeral services will be in the Gasch funeral home in Hyattsville, Md. Mr. Ross, the child's father, is a statistical clerk in the Federal Works Administration.

"Maybe," doctors at the hospital said yesterday, "we've learned something in this fight that will help us the next time."

Chorine's Appetite Irrelevant, Says Buckner in Appeal

By the Associated Press

The Supreme Court was asked yesterday to judge whether it was right for a jury to convict William P. Buckner, jr., and William J. Gillespie on a mail fraud charge because one of their chorus girl friends preferred steak to sandwiches.

Buckner and Gillespie submitted this novel question in a petition appealing their conviction by a jury in New York Federal Court last summer. Arguing that the Government's prosecutor had been guilty of "irrelevant" references to show girls and bills for wining and dining them, the petition said:

"Certainly no scheme to defraud can be inferred from the fact that one of the young ladies ordered a steak instead of an ordinary sandwich.

"From the very inception of the trial," the appeal continued, "until it was submitted to the jury, and through every phase of the trial, the atmosphere surrounding the case was charged with incompetent and irrelevant testimony."

As to the mail fraud charges, the two men contended that no crime was proved and that they had not had a fair trial.

The indictments against Buckner and Gillespie resulted from their activities as members of a protective committee for holders of bonds of the Philippine Railway. The Government contended during the trial that committee expense money was dissipated in the entertainment of women and in other ways.

2,720 Transfusions Provided By Blood Bank in 1939

A report whose cold figures disguise dramatic incidents by the hundred, incidents in which human life depended upon availability of necessary blood types and serums and the speed with which they were administered, was made public yesterday by Children's Hospital.

Describing the benefits derived from the institution's blood and serum bank, which is supported by proceeds from "Have a Heart" card parties sponsored by The Post, Station WJSV and the American Contract Bridge League, the report issued yesterday by Supt. Mattie M. Gibson reveals that in 1939 the "bank:"

Provided blood required for 2,720 transfusions.

Provided serum for 29 cases of meningococcus meningitis.

Provided serum for the treatment of four cases of tetanus, three of whom recovered, as well as approximately 400 "shots" of tetanus antitoxin, which was administered as a preventive measure.

In addition, therapeutic serums were withdrawn for seven pneumococcic infections, 15 cases of influenzal meningitis, 1 case of streptococcis meningitis, 1 scarlet fever and 4 staphylococcus infections cases.

Twenty cases of diphtheria were treated with antitoxin from the "bank" and three children suffering from haemophilia benefited by ad-

GILT OFF THE DOME

("A little debunking is swell."—Socrates.)

EXILE? A malicious little story has sprouted about Tom Corcoran's access to the President: Formerly he entered the Oval Office through the side door via the office of Miss LeHand, F. D. R.'s personal secretary. Now he enters via Gen. "Pa" Watson, a White House secretary, a more formal trail.

This tale hit the grapevine just as Mr. Corcoran was reported leaving for a week-end with the Roosevelts at Hyde Park on his way to a two-month vacation. We have the widest choice of rumors here. This much is certain: He has postponed his departure on his vacation a week or so.

MOVIE APOLOGY: To mollify Senators miffed by the crude, slanderous but highly entertaining "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," especially Senator Barkley, Hollywood has sent scouts to plot a more flattering picture of the Senators as heroic Galahads, complete with halos, wings and harps.

If the new movie makes Senators feel warmer toward Hollywood when the menacing block booking bill comes up, Hollywood can't help that. After all, art is art.

Some who are awed by or envious of the brilliant, crystalline minds of the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Berle like to tell little stories about them to prove they are just human . . . Martin Says G.O.P. 'Tide' Is Flowing

Democrats Taunted On Lack of Confidence In Convention Delay

A Republican taunt that loss of confidence accounted for their failure to set a date for their national convention last night followed departure of Democratic National Committee members from the Capital.

The Democratic leaders, having selected Chicago as their convention city, left for their home States after a White House tea, their hands shaken by the President but their eager curiosity as to his third-term intention unsatisfied.

A short time later, Representative Martin, of Massachusetts, Republican floor leader in the House, told a dinner meeting of 350 Republican congressional clerks and secretaries the G. O. P. would elect the President and the House majority in November.

He declared the "Republican tide" which brought many successes in 1938 is continuing, and added:

"In our special elections since 1938 we have not lost a single Republican district—not even in Tennessee, where the TVA pay rollers were mobilized under the New Deal patronage lash.

Byrnes Stops Boomlet

"The country is with us," he declared. "The people are tired of crises and emergencies and threats. They are tired of fumbling administration."

Other political developments yesterday:

Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, stopped a South Carolina "favorite son" drive for him as a presidential possibility. Byrnes, meanwhile, was being mentioned as the possible temporary chairman and "keynoter" at the Democratic convention.

Senator Donahey (Democrat), of Ohio, brought about an arrangement for the party's central and executive committees in Ohio to settle the dispute over the "favorite son" policy of that State's national convention delegates.

While Martin urged holding the Republican convention in June, Democratic National Chairman Farley said he would set the date for the Democratic gathering shortly after the G. O. P. committee acts here February 16.

New York Democratic leaders said that State's delegation to the Chicago meeting would be uninstructed.

Donahey Seeks Harmony

The Ohio harmony plan of Senator Donahey was accompanied by his offer to be a favorite son Presidential candidate or to run for the Senate again, as the two Ohio committees decide. He has refused previously, however, to enter the Presidential contest as a stalking horse for a third-term move. He was reported to have been angered when State Chairman Arthur Limbach some time ago announced such a program had been agreed upon.

Should Donahey persist in his stand against accepting the delegates' pledges only to turn them over to the Roosevelt forces if the President should run again, it was indicated, National Committeeman Charles Sawyer would accept that role.

Sawyer told reporters Mr. Roosevelt could carry his State.

"I think Roosevelt sentiment is clearly dominant," he said, "but certainly I wouldn't say the Republicans would win if the Democrats chose any other candidate. We couldn't win with just anybody, however."

Gov. O. D. Johnson of South Carolina, said he advised the President:

"Just leave everything to us in South Carolina and we will draft you."

3d Term Feeling Strong

Mrs. Lucretia Grady, national committeewoman from California, brought word that the Western States favored a third term. She said: "I have recently traveled through a score of States in the West and South and I found the Roosevelt sentiment extremely strong wherever I went."

The post of convention "keynoter" for which Senator Byrnes is being mentioned has gone to Senate Majority Leader Barkley in the past two conventions but it was said Barkley is being considered for the post of permanent convention chairman.

Both posts must be filled by a subcommittee on arrangements not yet appointed by Chairman Farley.

Byrnes wired to Gov. Maybank and sponsors of the South Carolina "Byrnes for President" resolution asking them not to press for its passage. He said in his opinion a South Carolinian had no chance of obtaining the Democratic nomination and expressed his unwillingness to enter a fight he had no chance of winning.

The Gallup Poll

Substantial Majority Favors Loan To Finland for Nonmilitary Supplies

By Dr. George Gallup

Director American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 6.—Should the United States Government authorize a nonmilitary loan to Finland?

DR. GALLUP

The pros and cons of this question will be discussed in Congress in the coming weeks. Since the public has, for the most part, not heard the loan proposal debated in full, public opinion at this stage is significant only as evidence of the extent of American sympathy for Finland.

To obtain some indication of opinion toward the loan at this early stage, the American Institute has polled the country on the following question:

"Some members of Congress favor our Government lending Finland money to buy farm products and other nonmilitary supplies in this country. Others say this might get us into war. Do you think the Government should lend money to Finland?"

Those with opinions voted as follows:

Should lend	58%
Shoud not lend	42%

A small group—9 per cent—expressed no opinion.

This vote should by no means be taken as a final expression of sentiment, for when the national discussion of the Finnish loan brings all the implications to public attention, opinion may easily change. The survey results are interesting, nevertheless, for two reasons:

While the majority favor the loan, the vote for it is by no means overwhelming.

Second, the strength of support for the loan is revealed by the fact that even when the possibility of war is suggested in the survey question, a majority favor the loan.

Sentiment on the loan proposal is obviously related to American sympathies in the Russian-Finland war. A recent study found 88 per cent of voters in sympathy with Finland, 1 per cent in sympathy with Russia, and 11 per cent neutral or no opinion. It is significant that while 88 per cent sympathize with Finland, only 58 per cent are willing to see a Government loan made to the Finns.

The present loan proposal, first outlined by President Roosevelt, specifies that the money may be spent only on supplies of a nonmilitary character. Is the public disposed to go farther and grant a loan which could be used for war supplies?

Sentiment on this issue was tested in a second question in today's survey. Those voters who said they approved a nonmilitary loan, were then asked,

"Would you favor the United States Government lending money to Finland for airplanes, arms and war materials?"

The vote was nearly two to one against this proposal:

Yes	39%
No	61%

Those who favor granting a nonmilitary loan to the Finns give, as their chief reasons, the fact that Finland "pays her debts to us so we should try to help her," that "Finland is the victim of aggression," that a loan would help to defeat "Russia and communism," and that it is a "legitimate loan for no military purpose."

Those opposed to the loan argue that "it might get us into war;" that we should not "discriminate in favor of Finland," and that we should not lend money to any foreign country, "no matter how much they need it."

Labor Board Inquiry Seeks $50,000 More

House Vote on Grant May Reveal Attitude On Wagner Act Change

By the Associated Press

The House Committee, investigating the labor board, decided late yesterday to ask for an additional $50,000 to continue its inquiry, Chairman Smith (Democrat), of Virginia, intends to submit the request to the House today.

The vote may provide an indication of the House's attitude toward changing the Wagner law. Criticism of the statute and of the board which administers it has been presented to the committee, and Smith expressed the opinion that it ought to prepare legislative recommendations in time for Congress to act at this session.

The decision to ask for more funds was reached at a closed meeting. Smith said that all members present—Representatives Halleck (Republican), of Indiana; Routzohn (Republican), of Ohio; Healey (Democrat), of Massachusetts, and himself—approved it. The fifth member—Representative Murdock (Democrat), of Utah—was absent.

Smith said that only about $10,000 of the $50,000 which the House voted the committee last session remained on February 1, and that this probably would be exhausted by March 1.

Decision Report Awaits Murdock

Whether the group would draft a preliminary report now, recommending some Wagner Act amendments which it already believed advisable, would not be considered until Murdock could be present, Smith said. The committee must submit any recommendation to the House Labor Committee, which has scheduled further hearings of its own this week. CIO officials are to appear tomorrow and Friday.

A similar Senate committee heard yesterday from Philip Murray, chairman of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee (CIO) that proposed amendments were "motivated by a desire on the part of certain interests to reduce workers to their former status of weakness in pre-Wagner Act days."

John L. Lewis, CIO president, had been invited to testify but Murray said he was "unavoidably absent." Murray complained of recent "revolutionary" changes in Labor Board procedure which he said were "to the detriment of industrial unions."

The Smith Committee heard three board employes deny charges made in previous testimony.

Witt Denies Conversation

Nathan Witt, board secretary, denied a telephone conversation attributed to him by James P. Miller, former regional director at Cleveland. Miller had testified that Witt summoned him to Washington about April 1, 1938, for a conference regarding the Youngstown Sheet and Tube case. The secretary said he was on a trip to the West Coast, on board business, at the time.

G. L. Patterson, regional director at Chicago, replied to testimony that he had once been a C. I. O. candidate for Mayor at Akron.

Patterson said he had been a candidate on the Democratic ticket and before he could testify further the committee counsel said he knew the witness well and that he had been a "very fair and impartial" employe of the board.

Robert H. Cowdrill, regional director at Indianapolis, denied charges that he had referred to cases brought by the A. F. L. as "those damned A. F. L. cases" or that he had put C/I. O. cases ahead of them.

Roosevelt Errs By 9 Billions, Dewey Says

New Yorker Answers President's Views On U. S. Finances

New York, Feb. 6 (AP).—District Attorney Dewey asserted today that if President Roosevelt's remarks concerning the financial status of the Nation had been correctly reported yesterday the President had made "an extraordinary error" and was "nine billion dollars wrong."

He issued a statement recalling that Mr. Roosevelt had been reported as saying that local debt, State debt, county debt, city debt, had gone down the full extent that Federal debt had gone up, and that since private debt had decreased the total debt was smaller.

"From 1932 to 1939," Dewey said in answer to this, "State and local debt fell from $19,330,000,000 to $19,200,000,000. The total decline was $130,000,000. Meanwhile, the direct debt of the Federal Government alone, increased about $21,000,000,000.

Facts in Handy Form

"Even if all State and local government debts in this country had been wiped out, they would not have declined as much as the Federal debt has increased, because they have never amounted to as large a figure as the rise in the national debt under the New Deal.

"The President can find the facts in handy form compiled from official Government sources in a study made by the division of program planning, agricultural-industrial relations sections of his own agricultural adjustment administration.

"This study shows that while State and local debts have gone down $130,000,000 since 1932, and private debt has fallen $17,500,000,000, the total of all Government debt, including Federal agencies, has increased nearly $26,500,000,000, and the grand total of Government and private debt advanced from $148,903,000,000 in 1932 to $157,810,000,000 in 1939. Thus the total increase in all debt was $9,000,000,000."

Charges "Wishful Thinking"

Dewey went on:

"If the President did not wish to use the figures compiled by the AAA, they were also available in the annual reports of the Treasury Department and in the studies made public by a number of private research bureaus.

"The President keeps referring to his 'hope' to see the national income rise to $80,000,000,000 and eventually to $90,000,000,000. So long as the New Deal Administration remains in power, such a national income will remain in the realm of wishful thinking.

"It is time to stop wishing for it and do something about it. It will never be accomplished under the New Deal defeatist policies.

"The President may get some comfort from a comparison of the figures for employment, wages, farm income and dividends paid since the low point of the depression in 1932. Such a comparison, however, is small comfort for the country's 9,000,000 unemployed."

Suspect's Return Here Is Delayed By Texas Hearing

Dallas, Feb. 6 (AP).—United States Marshal J. R. Wright said today he would delay the return of Roland Wild Linder to Washington on Federal theft charges pending a decision by immigration authorities on deportation action.

Linder was removed from a Coast-to-Coast airliner several days ago on charges of theft of two plane tickets and a sum of money from a Washington, D. C., travel agency.

Immigration Officer Carroll D. Paul said Linder was an alien and added his record disclosed he was arrested on extortion charges in Vienna, Austria; had served a term in Stockholf for theft, and another term in Berlin for fraud.

D. C. Charities Left Property By Isaac Gans

Estate's Total Value Is Not Computed In Will as Filed

Isaac Gans, civic leader who died last Sunday at 80, left his property to 29 charities and 39 friends in a will dated February 3, 1938.

Mr. Gans' will was filed in the District Court yesterday by his executors, Thomas Gillespie Walsh, chairman of the Commission on Mental Health, and the Hamilton National Bank.

The executors were directed to convert the estate, the total value of which has not yet been computed, into cash. After the specific bequests are paid the remainder is to be divided equally among the Florence Crittenten Home, the Salvation Army and Gospel Mission, the Baptist Home, Central Union Mission, Community Chest, Jewish Foster Home, Little Sisters of the Poor, Jewish Home for the Aged and the Methodist Old Ladies Home.

Bequests of $500 each were given St. Ann's Infant Asylum and Maternity Hospital, the German Orphan Asylum, the Masonic and Eastern Star Home and the Georgetown University Hospital.

Bequests to Homes

Bequests of $250 each were given the Home for the Blind, 3050 R street northwest, Unitarian Church Home, Home for Incurables, Episcopal Home for Children, Social Oyster Club, St. Patrick's Catholic Church and the Washington Hebrew Congregation.

The will gave $200 to the Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital.

Bequests of $100 each were to Southwest Community House, the House of Good Shepherd, Opportunity for Service, Inc., Police Club for White Boys, Police Club for Colored Boys, Northwest Settlement, 515 M street northwest, and Phyllis Wheatley Y. W. C. A.

Jacob Gans, a brother, was left $2,000; a sister, Miss Rickie Gans, $3,000; a niece, Miss Harriet Reynolds, New York City, $250; a nephew, Horace Gans, Richmond, Va., $250.

Mr. Gans, a charter member of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, remembered his colleagues. They were George W. Offutt, former chairman, $250; Mrs. Agnes K. Mason, vice chairman, $250; William Payne, a recent appointee to the board, $200; Margaret Hazen Davis, executive secretary, $200; Herbert K. Schollenberger, chief inspector, $100; Esther R. Horowitz, stenographer, $100; Erna Embry, stenographer, $100; John West, clerk, $100, and Christian Whittingham, $100.

By a codicil drawn September 30, 1939, Mr. Gans left his automobile and $500 to Helen Walburn, 1759 Lanier place northwest. She was also left $200 additional.

Bequests to Mr. Gans' household were: Russell Waite, chauffeur, $250; Christine Williams, maid, $250; William Baines, former chauffeur, $100; Lulu Lee, former maid, $100.

Other bequests were: Mrs. Louise Barton, Ithaca, N. Y., $250; Mrs. Rae Neuhan, Baltimore, $200; Mrs. Cecilia Michaelis, Embassy Apartments, $200; Miss Virginia Michaelis, Embassy Apartments, $200; Mrs. Ray Moses, Baltimore, $200; Mrs. Jeff Hoffheimer, Richmond, Va., $200; Ellsworth Thompson, $150; Mrs. Milton Baum, $200; Dr. O. A. M. McKimmie, Dr. William P. Argy, Harry Wender, Hugh Rivers and Mrs. Charles Riemer, $250 each; Edward Meehan, Yvonne Walsh and Wilhelmina Edith Kehoe, $200 each; Ruth Guest, Jean Wolberg, Marian Wolberg and Bessie Dinowitz, $250 each.

Pallbearers Are Named

Active pallbearers at the funeral of Isaac Gans today, Washingtonians who were started on their careers with the aid of the late philanthropist, will include Hugh F. Rivers, John H. Wilson, Jack Buckley, Louis E. Bradford, Adlai Mann, Oscar Vogel and Harry S. Wender.

Colorbearers will report at 2:30 p. m. to James Kehoe in the Washington Hebrew Congregation temple vestry room.

All local organizations with which Mr. Gans was connected were invited to send colorbearers.

Following the funeral rites at 3 p. m. at the temple, brief services will be held at the Washington Hebrew Congregation Cemetery, 1425 Alaska avenue southeast. Taps will be blown by an American Legion bugler.

Wright Funeral To Be Tomorrow

Funeral services for Mrs. Wilbur L. Wright, former Washington resident, will be held at 11 a. m. tomorrow at Woodlawn Cemetery, Baltimore. The Rev. Fred Buschmeyer, of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, of Washington, will officiate.

Mrs. Wright died yesterday in Fulton, N. Y., after a long illness. She and her husband lived here from 1900 to 1925. Dr. Wright, who had been a practicing physician here, later founded the Sealright Co., of Fulton, N. Y. He died seven years ago.

The former Byrde M. Morrison, Mrs. Wright was a native of Frankfort Springs, Ky.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Eugene W. Skinner, of Fulton, N. Y.; a granddaughter, Miss Edna Wright Skinner, of Fulton; a brother, Charles Withrow Morrison, of Bradford, Mass.; her sister, Mrs. Helen Morrison Hunter, of Washington, and several nieces and nephews, including William Morrison Hunter and Mrs. Walter Cameron Brake, both of this city.

Singer, Claiming to Be Wife, Fails to Halt Lewisohn Wedding

Thelma Spear, who claims to be Dr. Ludwig Lewisohn's common-law wife, and her son, Jimmy

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Dr. Ludwig Lewisohn, author, and his bride, Edna Manley, former newspaperwoman. They were married yesterday in Baltimore despite objections from Thelma Spear, who said she was Lewisohn's common-law wife and mother of his 6-year-old son

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Feb. 6.—The tearful plea of a comely blonde who dramatically entered a temple to proclaim herself the "wife, muse and soul" of Ludwig Lewisohn and demand that "this wedding must stop," failed today to halt he marriage of the author to tall, dark-eyed Edna Lewisohn and Miss Manley stood before Rabbi Edward L. Israel, ready to take their nuptial vows, when Miss Thelma Spear rushed into Har Sinai Temple, accompanied by her attorney, Bernard Sandler, and a blue-eyed, 6-year-old boy, whom she said she bore to Lewisohn.

With artistry attesting her years as a concert soprano, she asserted: "This wedding must not take place. I have been his wife, his muse, his soul!"

The gray-haired, 58-year-old writer and his 31-year-old fiancee, former Rochester, N. Y., newspaperwoman, slipped out of the room to avoid the unexpected commotion caused by the "other" woman.

Attorneys went into a lengthy huddle with Rabbi Israel, heard 36-year-old Miss Spear's tearful assertion she had been Lewisohn's common-law wife for 16 years and listened to the reading of an inscription from one of his books recognizing her as "my wife and mother of my son."

But this caused only a temporary halt in the ceremony. Miss Spear made her plea and departed to a hotel with her son, Jimmy. Lewisohn and his fiancee stood before Rabbi Israel again, took the wedding vows and caught a train to New York.

Following the ceremony, Sandler said he would "consult with my client about legal action in Baltimore."

"We are very happy," said Miss Manley. "I am sure that everything will turn out all right."

"I am going to get back my boy," the author said, and his bride nodded, as they stepped off the train in New York and headed for his Riverside Drive apartment.

He said that "by a friendly, mutual agreement last summer" he had been given custody of the child.

The boy, called "Jim," was taken from him eight weeks ago by "tricking" his housekeeper, Lewisohn said.

He quoted the child as saying in Baltimore, "I want to see my Daddy and Auntie Edna."—Edna Manley, the bride.

Lewisohn said he had consulted his attorney, Arthur Garfield Hays, and had been assured the marriage would be legal.

Tearful and hysterical, Miss Spear—registered at the hotel as Mrs. Lewisohn—told an interviewer she had traveled throughout Europe with the author, was married to him several years ago in Mexico, "and in all of his works I was his inspiration."

"He had the best of me, and now he doesn't want to pay the bill," asserted Miss Spear.

"All I want now is for him to marry me for Jimmy's sake, and pay off a $9,000 mortgage on my home (in Burlington, Vt.) He can divorce me then. I won't stand in his way."

The Vermont home was mortgaged, she said, to get funds to finance Lewisohn's divorce from his first wife.

Miss Spear said that last October, after Lewisohn met Miss Manley, she agreed to vacate their New York apartment "for a sabbatical leave."

"I thought it would blow over," she said.

"The next thing I knew, he had announced his plans to marry. He can't leave me like this. I was driven to desperation. And so I had to do what I did."

Miss Manley and Lewisohn were to have been married last week, but at the last minute learned Miss Manley's divorce from Stanley Casolare, of New York, would not be final until February 4.

FBI Needs Spy Hunters, Says Hoover

1,847 Investigations Prevented by Lack Of Men and Funds

Serious lack of funds and personnel has prevented the Federal Bureau of Investigation from looking into nearly 2,000 cases of espionage, sabotage and related fields affecting national defense, Director J. Edgar Hoover told a Congressional subcommittee in testimony made public yesterday.

Although 2,664 national defense cases, brought into focus because of the European war, have been investigated by the bureau, it has been forced to neglect 1,847 other reported cases, Hoover declared. The following matters, he said, have gone without inquiry:

Cases involving alleged espionage, 1,307; 311 cases of alleged treason; 196 cases in which industrial plants producing defense items have asked for an FBI agent to draft a protective system; 16 cases of asserted sabotage; 10 smuggling cases, and 7 reported failures, on the part of foreign agents, to register with the State Department.

Hoover said the "average load" per FBI agent has increased from 17 a year ago to 19 at present, and added: "An agent should not carry more than an average of 10 cases at one time."

Testifying on other activities of the bureau, which have heretofore been veiled in official secrecy, Hoover disclosed his agency has installed protective systems in 29 strategic factories manufacturing military items, and is working on 31 others, of the 540 plants so engaged. In wartime, he added, this field would increase to involve about 12,000 plants.

He said a standard manual, outlining methods for the safeguard of important factories in time of war, has been prepared for publication by the bureau.

In another precautionary movement, the FBI has launched the fingerprinting of all employes in factories supplying the Army and Navy.

Observing that the bureau has solved all but two kidnaping cases perpetrated during its history, shed light on the persistent methods of the G-men by disclosing that 33,278 suspects in the two unsolved cases—those of Peter Levine and Charles Mattson—have been thoroughly checked and rejected. He said special squads of agents are still assigned to these cases "and will continue to work on both cases until they are solved."

Miami Police Ignore Crime, Says FBI Chief

By the Associated Press

The Miami (Fla.) resort area was described to Congress by J. Edgar Hoover yesterday as an underworld mecca for "vicious hoodlums" who operate without interference from local authorities.

The director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation also charged that police gave only "lip service" to Government attempts at cleaning up the condition.

These charges brought from Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, an assertion that the FBI chief, "unintentionally no doubt," had done Miami and its public officials an injustice.

Rites Tomorrow For Denniston

Funeral rites for Frederick W. Denniston, Veterans' Administration attorney, who died Monday, will be at 2 p. m. tomorrow, at Gawler's funeral home. Burial will be private.

A native of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Mr. Denniston attended the old Columbian College Law School, and served in the Interior Department before returning to private practice. He joined the Veterans' Administration in 1918.

He leaves two sons, Frederick W. Denniston, jr., of this city, and John B. Denniston, of Cincinnati, and three sisters, Miss Anna Denniston, Mrs. Charles Schlingman and Mrs. John Kirschner, all of Wilkes-Barre.

in the Senate District Committee for almost two weeks upon request of Senator McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, who later withdrew the objection without explaining it.

The Commissioners, meanwhile, have instructed Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal to draft charges against Brodie and Leo Murray, who was demoted along with Brodie last November. The Commissioners have said they will appoint a civilian trial board.

D. C. Deficiency Items

The Commissioners yesterday sent to the Budget Bureau deficiency items totaling $277,510 needed to equip the new Calvin Coolidge Senior High School, Thomas Jefferson Memorial Junior High School and for remodeling the former health school at Thirteenth and Allison streets northwest.

Although the items for the senior and junior high schools are contained in the 1941 budget estimates now before Congress, the Commissioners are anxious to obtain the funds as soon as possible. They requested $199,750 for the senior high school and $66,160 for the junior high school. A sum of $11,600 was requested for the former health school which will be used for crippled children in the future.

Browder Loses To Tammany In House Race

Edelstein Is Named To Succeed Sirovich; Dewey Man Is Second

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 6.—Earl Browder, the American Communist leader under a four-year Federal prison sentence, was overwhelmingly defeated for Congress today in a special election.

The winner was M. Michael Edelstein, a Tammany Democrat, who pledged his support to the New Deal and was described by other party leaders as having the blessing of President Roosevelt.

In second place was Louis Lefkowitz, a Republican indorsed by District Attorney Dewey, a candidate for that party's Presidential nomination.

Returns from the 61 election districts gave Edelstein 12,962; Lefkowitz, 6,665, and Browder, 3,080. This vote for the Communist candidate was slightly in excess of the number of eligible Communist registered voters.

The election was in the Fourteenth Congressional District to fill a House vacancy occasioned by the death of Representative William I. Sirovich, a Democrat.

Browder, convicted January 22 of passport fraud and headed for a penitentiary cell barring an upset of the verdict, could not cast a ballot for himself, because of his conviction and because he does not live in the district.

1. While he has an office in the district as head of the American Communist Party, he is not a resident there, his home being in suburban Yonkers.

2. As a convicted felon—explained an official at the office of Attorney General John J. Bennett, jr.—the previlege of suffrage was automatically withdrawn from him.

Wallace to Put Plan to Clothe Needy in Effect

By the Associated Press

The Agriculture Department's long-heralded stamp plan of distributing cotton products to the needy will be inaugurated experimentally in five to ten cities within six weeks.

Secretary Wallace outlined the details yesterday and expressed the opinion the plan might be extended to a Nation-wide basis later, particularly should the European war curtail exports of cotton and cause surpluses to increase again.

Cities in which the program will be tried were not announced. Wallace said, however, that they would be chosen from the 44 in which the stamp plan for distributing surplus food is in operation.

Like the food-stamp system, the cotton program will utilize regular trade channels. Eligible families will receive purchasing power in the form of stamps, good for the purchase of cotton products at regular stores.

They will be given an opportunity to buy cotton stamps in an amount approximately equal to their present expenditures for cotton goods. For each dollar's worth of stamps bought they will receive a dollar's worth free. Relief agencies and the Agriculture Department will redeem the stamps from the stores.

The department has been working on the program since Congress earmarked $14,000,000 of farm surplus disposal funds last summer for the promotion of domestic consumption of cotton.

Vatican Makes Dr. Corrigan Titular Bishop

October 15, 1918, and seven years later was named rector of this institution, and despite the ardous duties of this office he continued to teach classes in pastoral theology and likewise to serve in various capacities on the diocesan council.

On June 6, 1928, Msgr. Corrigan observed the silver jubilee of his ordination, and two years later he was named a domestic prelate with the title of Right Reverend Monsignor. He was made a Prothonotary Apostolic by Pope Pius XI in April, 1937. During the same year Duquesne University gave him the honorary degree of doctor of literature.

Impressive ceremonies attended the installation of Msgr. Corrigan as rector of the Catholic University of America and were attended by two cardinals, the apostolic delegate to the United States, 80 archbishops and bishops, several members of the Cabinet, high Government officials and many prominent diplomats. More than 300 American universities were represented.

At the conclusion of the installation ceremonies Archbishop Cicognani, apostolic delegate to the United States, read a telegram from Cardinal Pacelli, then secretary of state and now Pope Pius XII, which conveyed the blessing of Pope Pius XI to the new rector.

On a trip abroad in 1937, Msgr. Corrigan was received in private audience by Pope Pius XI on February 12, the occasion of the fifteenth anniversary of the pontiff's coronation. During this audience Msgr. Corrigan gave the Pope an account of the work being done at the Catholic University of America and of the institution's progress as an educational center.

but provision will be asked in the annual relief bill. The Civil Service Commission would be empowered to take over work of the eliminated Council of Personnel Administration.

Garner cast his vote with the committee to reduce civil aeronautics administrative costs from $1,659,191 to $1,543,932. This was no surprise to Senators familiar with the Vice President's views against spending. Senator McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, immediately opened a fight to restore another $1,000,000 cut by the committee from the CAA's air navigation facilities' budget.

Across the Capitol, in reporting the State-Justice-Commerce bill, Chairman Ludlow, of the House Appropriations subcommittee, declared "every unit of the Government must bears some proportion of the retrenchments."

The House bill carried $107,379,000 for the three departments and the judiciary, against $109,664,010 in the budget and $110,821,859 available this year.

State Department Cut

Estimates for the State Department were reduced $897,000 despite published testimony by Secretary of State Hull that the European war may go on "indefinitely," multiplying his department's duties. The committee disallowed $175,000 for operating the reciprocal trade program on grounds that Congress has not yet acted to continue the program beyond June 12.

Although Justice Department estimates were reduced $809,620, the committee increased the department's antitrust law enforcement funds $41,000 above Budget recommendations. The Federal Bureau of Investigation was allowed $9,910,000, a cut of only $22,000. Director Hoover's bureau was allotted $2,488,000 for emergency counterespionage and countersabotage work and for enforcement of the Neutrality Act.

Commerce Department estimates were reduced $443,930 to a total of $34,080,500. There was one above-budget increase in the Commerce Department. The committee restored $30,000 of a $50,000 cut recommended by the Budget Bureau in funds for Patent Office salaries. The committee said the Patent Office is a revenue-producing agency and the cut would put the office's examining division work in further arrearage.

Jacob Jones Post's Party Will Benefit Blood Bank

The U. S. S. Jacob Jones Post, American Legion, will hold a bridge party February 16 at the home of Mrs. Estelle Ruby, 5425 Thirtieth place northwest, for the benefit of the blood bank at Children's Hospital. ministratio nof a drug from the same source.

"The blood and serum bank of Children's Hospital performs an invaluable function," said Ross Garrett, head of the Health Security Administration, which arranged for hospitalization of most of the youngsters aided by the "bank."

"The parents and relatives of the majority of these children are not only unable to pay professional blood donors but many of them are in such a run-down physical state that they cannot give the needed blood themselves. The blood bank provides a most worthy service."

Largest "Have a Heart" party given last night for the Children's Hospital fund was that of the George E. Killeen Post and Auxiliary Unit No. 25, American Legion at their clubrooms, 3204 M street northwest. One of a series of benefits to be given in February by patriotic, social, professional and civic groups, as well as individuals, the party's net proceeds will go to the blood bank fund.

Tonight the Washington Bridge League, local unit of the sponsoring American Contract Bridge League, will give a large bridge party at the Hotel Shoreham. The entertainment is open to the public.

It was announced yesterday that the Third Division A. E. F. society will sponsor a benefit card and game party next Tuesday night in the Bunker Hill clubhouse, 807 Monroe street northeast. Capt. Frank J. Jervey is president of the organization and Maj. Gen. P. C. Harris, honorary president.

Ladies Auxiliary No. 58, Jewish War Veterans, is supporting the drive by a series of parties sponsored by individual members. Mrs. M. L. Novak, Mrs. Harry Wallerstein and Mrs. Joseph Tichman are co-chairmen of a program to be given Saint Valentine's Day in Mrs. Wallerstein's home. Mrs. M. Folsom will give a party the same night and later in the month Mr. and Mrs. Max Weinstein will give a benefit dance.

Belleau Wood Post Donates

Belleau Wood Post No. 3, American Legion, yesterday forwarded a $10 donation to the blood bank fund, care of The Post, with the following explanation:

"We are the smallest post in the American Legion so parties are out of the question but we are behind the fund 100 per cent."

The letter was signed by Miss Emily J. Carey, commander.

Similarly, Jane A. Delano Post No. 6, made up of wartime nurses, found it impracticable to conduct a party but voted to send a contribution.

The staff and nurses of Children's Hospital will sponsor a benefit bridge at the hospital Saturday night, with Superintendent Gibson in charge of arrangements.

The Boys Club at Seventeenth and Massachusetts avenue southeast, will donate 50 per cent of the proceeds of their dance next Saturday night to the blood bank.

Mrs. Ballauf Dies; Justice Employe

Mrs. Margaret D. Ballauf, 57, Justice Department employe for 20 years, died yesterday at her residence, 2231 First street northwest.

A native of Alexandria, Va., Mrs. Ballauf was past matron of the Takoma chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star. Before joining the Justice Department, she was employed with a patent law firm in a stenographic capacity.

She leaves her husband, Ormsby Ballauf, and a niece, Mrs. Charles Maxwell, of Alexandria.

Funeral services will be at 12 p. m. tomorrow at her home. Burial will be in Baltimore.

Driver Sentenced In Crash Killing Two

Chambersburg, Pa., Feb. 6 (AP).—Charles H. Briggs, 34, of York was convicted today in Franklin County Court on a charge of involuntary manslaughter and was sentenced to serve 11 months and 20 days in jail. He was also fined $100.

Briggs was indicted after an automobile accident in which Chester Carbaugh, of Frunkstown, Md., and Miss Betty Decker, of Hagerstown, Md., were killed December 22 on a curve near Greencastle.

Witnesses testified Briggs was driving the car in which the victims and three others were passengers.

next budget, but emphasized that District officials are continually flooded with demands for expenditures.

"Everything in the District's old," he said, and it was recalled that on the inspection tour he had looked at peeling paint on walls of a refrectory and remarked:

"It doesn't need painting as bad as the District Building at that."

The Commissioner summarized his reactions to the home by saying he found it "remarkably clean considering the class of patients for which it cares."

While the conference could not be called a formal meeting of the board, two of the three District Commissioners participated and agreed on the procedure to be followed as outlined by Col. McCoach. An early start on the study of institutions was expected to be made.

The action of the Commissioners was viewed as a countermove in the face of an impending investigation of Blue Plains by a subcommittee of the House District Committee under the chairmanship of Representative Thomas D'Alesandro, jr. (Democrat), of Maryland.

Informed of the program last night, D'Alesandro countered that it was all right, but did not go far enough.

He said he favored a survey of the entire public welfare setup in the District, policies as well as institutions.

McCoach made it clear that only a study of physical needs of District welfare institutions was intended by the Commissioners. It was considered advisable, he said, to understand the needs of all welfare properties before prescribing remedies for one.

Members of the committee and District officials will confer with Mrs. Roosevelt at the White House at 5:30 p. m. today. Eleven days ago she focused public attention on the home by saying she was "shocked" and "depressed" by what she saw in a surprise visit.

During their tour the Commissioners learned that inmates of the home are soon to have a surprise at breakfast. Each one is going to get an egg.

Bondy explained that this alteration in diet was decided upon last December after a survey of menus and recommendations by a department nutrition expert. Frank B. Haskell, home superintendent, observed that serving an egg to each of the 700 inmates at breakfast would cost $5,000.

Stewed fruits and soups in the evening and whole-wheat cereals at breakfast are other recent dietary innovations, Bondy said. He added he hoped no additional funds would be needed to meet increased costs of changed menus.

In the kitchen the Commissioners learned the home "employs" 11 inmates as "potwashers, diswashers," etc., at $1 a week. Thirty-two inmates work as dining room waiters without the nominal kitchen-help pay.

Commissioner Hazen called the dining room "nice," though other visitors have remarked on spotted tablecloths and tables packed together.

Diet Kitchen Proposed

Dr. Arthur N. Meloy, Blue Plains' part-time physician, observed that the home is without means of treating inmates with diseases requiring special diets. He said he thought the institution should have a diet kitchen.

The Commissioners were interested in fire hazards at the home which D'Alesandro called a "fire trap." Haskell said none of the inmates sleeps in the frame administration building, though this structure is attached to ward buildings which are at least partially fireproof. None of the buildings is more than two stories high, Haskell pointed out, with fire escapes from the top floor and plenty of windows for escape from the ground floor.

Haskell said six attendants were on ward duty in the daytime but only one after 6 p. m.

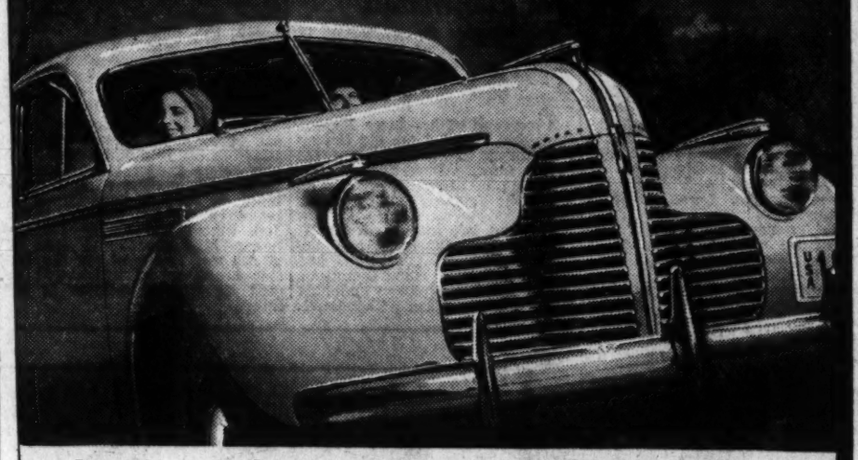
It's the Early Bird that gets the Fun



The model illustrated is the BUICK SUPER model 51 four-door touring sedan $1109 delivered at Flint, Mich. White sidewall tires additional.*

ONE of these days the itch is going to hit you to get out and get in on the fun a Buick can be in the springtime.

You're going to feel an irrepressible yen to touch off that husky, sweet-singing Dynaflash power plant and swing out in gentle coil-spring comfort to take in the fresh spring landscape.

Maybe, like others we know of, you've even got the model picked out, and are just "waiting a few weeks" to do something definite about it.

But may we emphasize, in purely friendly interest, that a lot of other people probably have the same idea.

And that when they start buying in droves—as they do every year about the ides of March—even Buick's big factory has trouble keeping up with them.

Of course, we're doing all we can to be ready for everyone.

But you can get only so many cars in a warehouse.

And a full warehouse can empty awfully fast.

And what with everybody wanting Buicks this season, we can't say how long we can promise the delivery we can give now.

So why not play the early bird this year? Why not get the jump on your neighbor and be driving your Buick while he's still talking about getting his?

You've nothing to lose, a lot of fun to gain—and you'll find the address of your Buick dealer in the phone book.

Not a six but an EIGHT for $895 and up delivered at Flint, Mich. * Transportation based on rail rates, state and local taxes (if any), optional equipment and accessories—extra. Prices subject to change without notice.

50 Carloads Of Planes Sent Finns by Italy

Refused Passage Through Reich, Craft Go by Way of France

By the Associated Press

Paris, Feb. 6.—Fifty carloads of Italian-made warplanes, destined for Finland and first refused transit through Germany, will reach the Finns after all—by way of France.

The disclosure that the shipment had been rerouted through France was made today as a campaign for large-scale Allied military aid for the Finns picked up momentum in Parliament.

Premier Daladier's own Radical Socialist Party, meanwhile, called upon the French government to give Finland all the help needed to "fight and win" against Russia.

Materials on Way

This action, which coincided with press demands, was taken amidst indications of more and more Allied help for the Finns.

War materials already are on the way and Britain and France have at their command surplus man power, such as the Polish army-in-exile, which might be used to bolster the little republic in the north.

The Polish army has been training in France. Several hundred Polish fliers already have volunteered for service in Finland.

"The definite defeat of the Soviet aggression against Finland will hurt our enemies in their military power as well as in prestige," a Radical-Socialist resolution declared.

"If aid is going to be given to Finland in the spirit of saving her," the newspaper L'Ordre said, "it will be necessary to act with very great speed."

Soviet Infantry Bombed by Finns

formation of reports this division had been destroyed; indeed, the Finnish communique tonight said several hundred Russians had been killed in vain attacks in this sector, both on the coast and in the vicinity of the Pitkaranta Islands south of Kitela.

Let Cold Do the Work

The Eighteenth Division, however, now is believed surrounded in the Kitela sector, in danger of destruction, with the Finns cannily avoiding wasting man power to complete the job, content, instead, to let cold and hunger do the work.

That the Red Army is able to continue its powerful frontal attacks on the Mannerheim Line is proof of the extent to which it has reinforced its infantry and tank forces near Summa in a determined effort to break through the tight Finnish positions.

Foreign observers consider that these attacks are proving enormously costly to the Soviet armies both in men and munitions, yet the Soviet reserve forces still seem strong.

Yesterday the Finns said several powerful attacks, supported by more than 100 tanks, were repulsed between Summa and Hatjan Gulf, with 22 tanks destroyed and "heavy" Russian losses.

There were continued reports of parachutes floating down behind Finnish lines, carrying spies and saboteurs. Troops dropped by this method, however, have been blocked steadily by the highly mobile Finnish patrols.

Tonight's communique admitted "a few parachuters" were dropped by the Russians in northern Finland, but "the places where they came down are known."

Mysterious scouting flights by Soviet planes over the vast and sparsely inhabited Saimaa Lake region, behind the Mannerheim Line in the lake region north of Vlipuri, led some military observers to believe the Red army might attempt to land large detachments of parachute troops on the ice there.

They said that if sufficiently large forces were landed from the air in this wild countryside they would prove troublesome to the rear line defenses of the Karelian Isthmus.

Man and Fiancee Takes Own Life In Parked Auto

Baltimore, Feb. 6 (AP).—A 31-year-old man and his 26-year-old fiancee were found dead in a parked automobile on the northeast outskirts of the city today—victims of a double shooting for which relatives could assign no motive.

The victims were identified as Emanuel Dahne, an electrician and scoutmaster, and Lillian Frank. Both were shot in the left temple. There was a revolver in Dahne's hand.

Britain Makes Noose Ready For Irish Pair

By the Associated Press

London (Wednesday), Feb. 7.—Strongly reinforced guards patrolled the grounds of Winton Green Gaol in Birmingham early today as the morning hours passed without any indication of clemency for two members of the Irish Republican Army awaiting the hangman at 9 a. m. (4 a. m., E. S. T.).

From Dublin came a report of increasing tension as the time for execution of the condemned pair, Peter Barnes and James Richards, approached.

Besides the extra guards at the Birmingham prison, thousands of police reinforcements guarded strategic points throughout England against possible renewal of yesterday's series of terroristic bombings.

Reprieve Refused

The precautions were taken following yesterday's wave of blasts in London, Birmingham and Manchester after the refusal of Home Secretary Sir John Anderson to reprieve the two men, convicted of participating in a bombing in which five persons died at Coventry last August 25.

In Dublin, where nationalist feeling mounted to the highest pitch in years, a group of young men yesterday afternoon attempted to parade past the office of the British representative.

John Dulanty, Ireland's high commissioner in London, laid in appeal for clemency before Prime Minister Chamberlain last night at a 20-minute conference but was noncommittal when he left and gave no rise to optimism for the doomed men.

In London yesterday two balloon and acid-type bombs like those used previously by the I. R. A. exploded in a mail truck at Euston Station, terminus for Irish mail trains, injuring five postal employes.

The explosions in Birmingham and at Manchester occurred in mail bags at the general postoffices. Two persons were hurt slightly at Birmingham, none at Manchester.

The government was deluged with appeals for clemency from Irish leaders from Premier De Valera down, supported by many mass meetings in recent weeks.

Warnings by Phone

Scotland Yard and police of Birmingham received numerous anonymous warnings by telephone and mail about dire things that might happen if the executions should be carried out.

A Cork Irish Republican leader, Tom Barry, telegraphed De Valera asking him to request a four-day reprieve for the condemned men to enable him to place before the British government "proof" that the condemned men are innocent. Details of this alleged proof were placed before the home secretary today.

Barry issued a public notice on behalf of a reprieve committee stating that if the two men are hanged there would be a mass meeting in Cork tonight.

Swedish Ship Sunk in Baltic By Soviet Fliers

By the Associated Press

Stockholm, Feb. 6.—The 701-ton Swedish steamer Wirgo was sunk today by Soviet bombers near Mariehamn, in the Aaland Islands, the master, Capt. Anders Anderson, reported tonight.

The Wirgo was one of four ships which were en route to the Finnish port of Turku from Stockholm when word was received of the approach of bombers.

The crews, including 18 from the Wirgo, left the ships and reached an island over the ice. No one was hurt.

Crew men said the bombers machine-gunned the decks of the Wirgo while she was sinking. None of the other boats was damaged.

14 Ships Sank in Week

London, Feb. 6 (AP).—Seventy-six of the crew of 77 aboard the Canadian-owned freighter Beaverburn were reported today to have been rescued by another merchant ship after the Beaverburn was sunk by a torpedo off the south coast of Ireland.

The owners said that subject to official confirmation this indicated only one man missing, and that he merely might be not accounted for.

The admiralty announced today that eight British ships, totaling 25,000 tons, and six neutral vessels of 17,546 tons, were sunk by enemy action in the week ended at midnight Sunday.

The announcement termed this "neither a particularly good nor a particularly bad week."

Gain 20,000 Tons a Week

The admiralty said Britain had made an average weekly gain of 20,000 tons of merchant shipping by new construction, capture of German ships and purchase of foreign craft since start of the war.

Meanwhile, a British naval source said official reluctance to deny every German claim of success at sea and lack of detailed information about actual losses are due to unwillingness to "give Germany every bit of information on a plate."

(The Germans reported nine ships were sunk last Monday, nine more on Tuesday and nine merchantmen, four British patrol boats and a minesweeper in Saturday's raids alone. The claim concerning Saturday was termed "absurd" by the British.)

Nazis Seized on Neutral Ships

"The general policy is not to answer German claims of sinking because we want to leave them guessing," the naval source said. He added that most Nazi claims of successes were "grossly exaggerated" and that last week's announcements were "fantastic."

In response to a request for more information on Saturday's raids on east coast shipping, the source said "I don't think we know yet the extent of the losses."

Capetown, South Africa, Feb. 6 (AP).—A British warship removed six Germans from the Portuguese liner Nyassa over the week-end, it was disclosed today as the vessel landed the Germans here under military guard.

Britain Adds Fresh Meat To Ration List

By the Associated Press

London, Feb. 6.—Announcement of rationing of fresh meat effective March 11 at a rate of a bit over a pound a week per person brought the pinch of war home today to the British, whose sea lanes have been the object of unrelenting German attack.

Parliament received the rationing news from food Minister W. S. Morrison, who announced that fresh meat would be added to the list of rationed foods which already include sugar, butter and ham and bacon.

Each person over 6 will be limited to fresh meat valued at 1 shilling, 10 pence—about 37 cents. That means each will be entitled to from 1 pound to 1½ pounds, including bone and fat. Younger children will get half rations.

(German meat rations now allow 1 pound 1.6 ounces per person a week.)

Ordinarily the average Briton consumes about 1¾ pounds of beef three quarters of beef or mutton a or mutton a week.

At present other food rations permit a half pound of either bacon or ham per week, a quarter pound of butter and three-quarters of a pound of sugar.

In the World War meat rationing was not instituted until February 25, 1918, when the allowance was from 1 shilling 3 pence to 1 shilling 8 pence.

Butter and sugar rationing went into effect in December, 1917, and at one point the butter allowance was only 1 ounce a week.

About half of the nation's beef and two-fifths of the mutton are produced at home. The rest is imported from Argentina, Uruguay, Brazil and Australia.

Rationing is in line with the drive to conserve shipping and foreign exchange to use for war supplies. Supply Minister Leslie Burin said rationing of paper also was under consideration.

Finnish Loan Speed Sought In Senate

Two Plans Divide Committee; Frank Backs Private Issue

Two plans for financial aid to Finland were studied yesterday by a divided Senate Foreign Relations committee as Administration leaders sought to expedite action.

Carrying the overwhelming support of the Senate Banking Committee, the Brown bill raising Export-Import Bank capitalization to permit another $20,000,000 advance to Finland may go to a Foreign Relations Committee vote today.

Senator Brown (Democrat), of Michigan, author of the modified bill, urged the group to report the measure even if it makes no recommendation. He advocated one amendment permitting the Finns to use nearly $6,000,000 of the loan "without strings attached." This sum, he pointed out, has been paid back to this country by Finland on its World War debt. As Russia has paid nothing on its own debt, he argued the Finn payments should be remitted without restrictions on the spending.

Earmarking Is Advocated

Brown also suggested that $30,000,000 of the proposed $100,000,000 increase in Export-Import Bank capital could be earmarked for Finland. The bill now does not mention Finland by name. Brown offered his proposal to meet arguments of critics that all or the bulk of the money would go to South America.

Testimony in support of the Harrison plan to aid Finland by private flotation of a Finnish government bond issue in this country was placed before the committee by Chairman Jerome Frank of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Frank said he saw no reason why the SEC should not register such an issue, providing all the facts were made available to purchasers. But he indicated the registration process, including time for accumulating the necessary data, might consume about 45 days.

Nordics Report Nazis Weigh Peace

denials, that Germany might undertake new peace moves not only in the Russo-Finnish conflict, but her own war with France and Britain as well.

Fuehrer Hitler was represented in the reports as hoping to mediate the northern war through his envoys in Moscow and Helsinki.

An undesignated neutral was said to be ready to present Germany's terms for peace with the western Allies to a League of Nations committee at The Hague tomorrow.

Dispatches to the Copenhagen Extrabladet from Oslo and Stockholm said reports were current that a six-point peace proposal, on which Marshal Goering was said to have suggested that Germany might agree to peace, will be laid before the League committee for discussion.

Authorized sources in Berlin said the rumored peace proposals were "practically impossible at this stage of the war."

"Peace cannot be won any longer by deliberations," a Nazi spokesman said.

It was pointed out that Hitler had declared against any German peace initiative under present circumstances, but responsible Nazi quarters said Germany probably would not deny the reports at present.

The six-point program as reported by Extrabladet, provided that:

Neither side will claim any reparations.

The colonial question is to be settled immediately, with return of several of Germany's 1914 colonies assured, in a conference of the belligerents.

Sudeten Germany will remain part of the Reich.

The Polish Corridor, Danzig, and a few other German-speaking districts which were part of 1914 Germany, will remain German.

A plebiscite will be held in Austria on the question of Austrian unity with the Reich, under supervision of a commission of Austrians, Germans, French and British.

A commission of belligerents will discuss the possibility of establishing the Czechs, Poles and Slovaks in small independent states with a guarantee never to take up arms against Germany.

The Extrabladet dispatches made no mention of the Polish area under Russian control, but said several of the French and British delegates now at The Hague believed settlement of the German war would enhance Finland's chances of success.

These delegates were represented as believing the six-point program could be accepted as a basis for discussions, with the possibility of establishing peace on a basis of mutual concessions. The settlement, it was held, would leave an undisturbed Europe ready to resist any further encroachments by Russia and could combine the resources of all nations to end the Finnish war.

The League committee meeting at The Hague tomorrow was called to form an independent central committee for a study of international economic and social problems. The ten nations to be represented are France, Great Britain, Switzerland, Norway, Belgium, Holland, Turkey, Portugal, Australia and Argentina.

Meanwhile, Pelley himself—slim, gray-haired, goateed leader of the Silver Shirts—refused to reveal where he had been the last few months, but he did say "I'm giving Martin Dies a clean bill of health; I admire the work he's done."

Gardner Jackson, host at a dinner at which six members of Congress were told of the existence of the "Pelley letters," protested to the Rules subcommittee yesterday against the "impunging" of his motives by members of Congress.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Dorothy Hodgkin Dorsey presents Lily Pons in a song recital Tuesday night in Constitution Hall. Frank La Forge, accompanist; Domenico Iascone, assisting flautist.

Lily Pons, petite cantatrice with the agile voice, sang for a capacity audience in Constitution Hall last evening to the obvious delight of those who admire fioritura brilliance. As her technical skill was at its best, the admiration found frequent expression in enthusiastic applause which sometimes did not wait for the end of an aria. The occasion was another triumph for the singer who is one of the most pert of our day in roulades, glissandi, trills and altitudinous notes. Her taxing program was largely devoted to scintillant vocalism, and she seemed tireless in a succession of feats that would have exhausted a less capable artist.

One compliments Miss Pons upon her deviations from the repertoire standardized by florid singers. She began, for example, with an air from Bach's secular cantata, "Der Streit zwischen Phoebus und Pan," which she sang in French, presumably because her native language was auxiliary to the remarkable fluidity of her phrasing. In place of the stock showpieces by Bishop, "Lo, Here the Gentle Lark" and "Pretty Mocking Bird," she selected Frank La Forge's arrangement of that composer's "Echo Song." And she closed her program, not with the mad scene from "Lucia di Lammermoor" but with Ophelia's mad scene from Thomas' "Hamlet," which had the virtue of absolute novelty for most of her listeners.

These departures from routine were not only a welcome relief but also enjoyable in themselves as interesting studies in the intricacies of vocal writing. Between them they displayed practically all the tricks by which the human voice is made to imitate instruments and birds. Miss Pons copied with every device and made them seem easy of accomplishment. As a concession to convention, she did embroider Verdi's "Caro nome" with silvery spangles of tone.

Other brilliant numbers in her program were "Quel ruscelletto" by Paradies, the aria, "Lusinghe piu care" from Handel's "Alessandro;" La Forge's "Come Unto These Yellow Sands," and her accompanist's arrangement of Alabiev's "The Nightingale" and Poldini's "Poupee Valsante" as well as his new song, dedicated to her, "Cupid Captive."

When it came to straight lyric singing, Miss Pons revealed the limitations of her voice. Because of the natural timbre of her voice and the constant use she has made of it in technical filagree, its range of color is definitely prescribed and its emotional shadings are few. Her readings of Faure's "Apres un reve" and Debussy's "Il pleure dans mon coeur" were disappointing in their want of feeling. That does not mean that Miss Pons did not feel the emotions, but that she did not make her audience feel them. With Chabrier's "Villanelle des petits canards" and Debussey's "Fantoches" she did better because the ambiance of the vocal line was not plaintive but mocking.

Farley Pictures Party Harmony

Hotel sponsored by the Woman's National Democratic Club. Other speakers were Mrs. Roosevelt, Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, and Ernest K. Lindley, columnist for The Post.

"Seldom Gets Anywhere"

The Postmaster General said: "The G. O. P. is trying to ride the horse of progressive government in its customary cautious manner. It has one foot in the stirrup and the other planted firmly on the ground. The method is not only difficult but the rider seldom gets anywhere."

Chief cause for "the decline of the Republican Party during the last decade," he continued, "is the fact that the party lost touch with the great mass of common citizens."

"The Democratic Party may look to a continuance in power if it remains united on essential principles and if it continues to make a sincere effort to translate those principles into reality," he said.

Lindley, presenting the viewpoint of independent voters, characterized the Democratic Party as a large corporation, with Farley as "executive vice president in charge of sales and production."

Independents Stressed

Senator Walsh, he said, "is one of the senior security holders. Mrs. Roosevelt, of course, is the preferred stock."

Lindley put at a minimum of 10,000,000 the number of independent voters in the United States. These "customers but not share-holders" of the Democratic Party would not necessarily object to "a change of chefs" in 1940, but will insist on "the same general recipe," he said.

Senator Walsh, replying to Lindley's suggestion that Senators Norris and La Follette and Mayor LaGuardia be invited to the Democratic convention as spokesmen for the independent vote, said the party contains enough extremes "to furnish La Follettes and Norrises from our own ranks."

In his prepared address Walsh reported "the rank and file of the American people are growing increasingly militant in opposition to war or any action tending toward our involvement in war."

Sees War "Objectively"

The American people are viewing the war "objectively," he said, and demonstrating "a very gratifying resistance to propaganda." The United States cannot promote world peace or save democracy by joining a European war, he said. "The preservation of our own democracy," according to Senator Walsh, "not only serves our own interests but will contribute immeasurably to post-war rehabilitation of all countries."

Mrs. Roosevelt said America's duty in a war-troubled world is to "make ourselves ready for the time when various groups, through unity and cooperation, can work together for peace."

Activities This Week in Capital Clubs

By Mary Harris.

GEORGE ANCHORS. You have a pleasant surprise coming to you in the Anchor Room. For the new manager is George Osmolovski who's been away from Washington for two years, but whose countenance had been beaming around smart Washington night spots for years previously, in fact, ever since he left Russia about two jumps ahead of a couple of sour-puss Bolsheviks. George ran his own concession at the World's Fair last summer, but doesn't intend to go back next season. He and music man Matt Windsor are old friends and will undoubtedly make a fine partnership in the Anchor Room.

MUSIC IN HOGATE'S. A new "music by wire" installation has just been placed in Hogate's seafood restaurant down on the water front. Thi "music by wire" features some of the finest New York orchestras, is transmitted so perfectly that you'll be looking around for the band.

MADRILLON'S BABIES. Baby No. 1 of the three expected this month by the Madrillon Orchestra, has arrived. She's Sally Ann and the daughter of Trumpeter Johnny Roub. Sally Ann was nearly named Scarlett because Mamma "Pinky" Roub went to see "G. W. T. W." the day before she arrived. This leaves Don Shook and Leon Farber "expecting" any day and, believe you me, they're nervous as kittens. Some smartie asked Singer Adelita when she was going to have a baby. With great poise Adelita replied "I don't belong to the orchestra."

ROBIN HOOD will have its formal christening tomorrow. And we mean christening. Glad handing by "Mac" McCarthy and Alan Christian Puryear. Organistics by Tommy Johnson.

Troika. Dara Birse, new singer at Troika, offers an enchanted interlude, especially when she carols "Sur l'Etoile de Paris." La Birse has a splendid sense of theater as well as a gorgeous soprano. She's a graduate of the Moscow Art Theater.

Neptune Room. Ripples of delighted applause arise whenever Evelyn Tyner concludes a piano number. You've never heard "Trees" until you've heard Evelyn play it with dripping silvery notes that sound like raindrops.

Del Rio. Maxine Patrice is not only a brilliant orchestra leader. Her contralto-ing of classics and current hits gives special tang to an evening in the Fiesta Room. She studied under the great Enrico Caruso, has played in vaudeville for several seasons.

CLEVER PEOPLE. Shoreham Blue Room. Scandinavian royalty should be very proud of Prince and Princess Selandia. They may not be sitting on a throne, but they are certainly sitting pretty in the entertainment world. Not only are they polished dancers, but their impersonations of the famous are saucy, bright and laughter packed.

Cafe Caprice. Two smart people plus a bunch of amateurs can make a gay and giddy floor show. They're Isabelle Rutledge and Andy Mulhall whose nightly dancing didoes with the Caprice customers are more fun.

Pall Mall Room. Maestro Bert Bernath is one of the few violinists who can play beautiful concert music but also has that brittle sense of rhythm that creates contagious dance music.

What goes on here! Jean Fonda and Gyland St. Clair, Lotus dancers, in a moment of reverie.

Salle Versailles. Les Colvin, strolling accordionist, is a one-man laugh epidemic. It's because of his snippety parodies that balance so delicately on the line of good taste.

COMING HIT. "When You Wish Upon a Star," new song from "Pinocchio," is going to be a tremendous hit says Maestro Milton Davis, of the Rainbow Room. And Milton can really pick 'em. He selected "My Reverie" and "All the Things You Are" many months before they made the hit parade.

WHITE HOUSE PREFERENCES. Steve Early and Gen. Edwin M. Watson, White House military attache, both dine frequently at the Hour Glass. They both like Chincoteague oysters and mixed green salad a la Eddy (named after Manager Eddy Furedy.) Baked shad is a favorite dish of the general's while Secretary Early really goes for lobster Americaine, which happens to be lobster prepared New Orleans style.

RINGSIDE SNAPSHOTS. Lounge Riviera. Mr. and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., the handsomest dancing pair on the floor . . . Mrs. Jock Whitney who still holds the palm for the longest earrings . . . Clarence Dodge, jr.

Metronome. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Shawn, she smiling as prettily as she did from the Earle Theater stage in the days when she was Audrey Seiber, partying with Mrs. Frank Swadley, ace radio announcer Charlie Daly and Russ Lyon (MCA).

Shar-Zad. Mrs. Pete Moran looking too lovely with a snood of brilliants and gorgeous cape of red fox . . . Anne Gillis, of the radio . . . Ruth Grove looking vurra piquant . . . Hal Horan, of Time Mag . . . Maestro Bill McCune giving a special recommendation of old fashioneds made with Scotch.

CHILLY EVELYN. Evelyn Knight, who'll be back at the King Cole Room soon, writes from Coral Fables, Fla., to say that she wears her fur coat all day long and puts it over the foot of the bed at night.

"DANCING OF TOMORROW" is being done in two moods in the Lotus revue. Delmar and Darleen are swinging it in tap set off by a jitterbug complex. Fonda and St. Clair do their futuristic stepping in a classic mood set off by fancy whirls. Pretty Dorothy Wood (she looks like sassiety girl Patsy Brewer) shines in a dizzy acrobatic control number. The Lindsay lovelies switch from rumba to straight jive, also parade in stunning fur-encrusted costumes.

PRETTIEST CLOTHES around town are being worn by Maria, Joann and Joy, the musical beauties of the Mayfair. The lasses must have about 50 dresses apiece, for we've never seen them in the same ones. They always dress in harmony, make a beautiful picture.

SOCIETY PETS. Opalee and her international trio, now decorating the Hi Hat, dearly prize the letters they've received from society leaders complimenting them on their rare old Mexican folk songs.

RAMBLING DOWN THE ROAD. Maestro Bill Downer of the Nightingale was among the first leaders to sense the trend toward sweet and softened music. He's now introducing many Latin-American numbers . . . There's dancing at the Fat Boy every night in the week, including Sunday, and until 2 a. m. on Saturdays. To the perky rhythms of De Vaughn Clements' Orchestra . . . Those bright arrangement played at River Bend are the work of a three-man team, Leader George Stein, Lee Mason and Harry Echols.

Japanese Hit Yangtze Pledge As Obsequious

Diet Member Urges Opening Should Be Left To Puppet Government

By the Associated Press

Tokyo, Feb. 6.—A leader of nationalist elements in Parliament tonight bitterly denounced as "obsequious diplomacy" the Japanese government's attempt to appease the United States by announcing a plan to reopen the lower Yangtze River in China to international trade.

Ichiro Kiyose, speaking in the House of Representatives, advocated outright abandonment of the Nine Power Treaty of 1922 which pledged the signatories to the "open door" policy in trade with China and urged the government to take a firm stand against any concessions to the United States.

Kiyose's attack followed criticism of government control of the press and secrecy in political affairs in both houses and an announcement that Great Britain had agreed to return 9 of 21 seamen seized from a Japanese liner.

Nazi Passenges Restricted

Japan will demand formally the return of all the German seamen seized, a foreign office spokesman said, however.

He indicated a note to this effect would be handed British Ambassador Craigie within a few days.

Foreign Minister Arita told the Diet Japan was pleased by Britain's agreement to surrender nine of the 21, but that affair was not yet settled. However, he said, Japanese ships had been instructed not to accept as passengers any more Germans liable for military service.

At the same time, the spokesman, referring to an "exchange of protests" over Japan's bombing of the French-operated Yunnan Railway in South China, said his country was prepared to "take reasonable measures" to indemnify the French government, if an investigation disclosed any Frenchmen had been killed.

The government may have a written reply, he said, to the second French protest over the bombings.

Press Control Denounced

In speaking of the government's decision to reopen the Yangtze as far as Nanking—a decision not yet put into effect—Kiyose said:

"It is really absurd to suppose that Japanese-American relations can be improved through such obsequious diplomacy . . . is it not more appropriate to leave this matter in the hands of the new central government in China (the proposed Japanese puppet regime) so that it can open the Yangtze to those powers which will extend assistance."

Shigeo Sugasawa, a member of the upper house, denounced excessive control of the press, saying:

"Unnecessary oppression of the press merely engenders suspicion in the popular mind."

Yonai Pledges Relaxation

Jotaro Kawakami, of the Social Mass Party, expressed a similar view in the lower house, adding people were in "doubt and apprehension" over the government's relations with the proposed Chinese regime of Wang Ching-Wei and over methods of ending the war.

He demanded the government publish its terms for peace in China.

Premier Yonai agreed with critics of press control and said relaxation of censorship would be attempted.

British Express "Regret"

London, Feb. 6 (AP).—The British government disclosed tonight it had sent Japan an expression of "regret" after protests from Tokyo over the Asama Maru incident.

"His Majesty's government greatly regret . . . that the incident, occurring as it did so close to the capital, should have aroused such resentment in Japan," Britain said in an exchange of notes made public in a White Paper tonight.

"While His Majesty's government have maintained their view of a legal position in this matter, it is anticipated that such incidents . . . will be avoided in the future," said Foreign Secretary Halifax in the House of Lords.

Hungary Calls Entente Stand Provocation

Sees Rebuff to Claim In Transylvania in Deal To 'Watch' Frontiers

By the Associated Press

Budapest, Feb. 6.—A reliable source said tonight Hungary regards as an outright provocation the Balkan Entente's announcement it would maintain a "common watch over national territory."

The phrase was regarded as a rebuff to Hungary's claim on Rumania for return of Transylvania, ceded to Rumania after the World War.

The press and diplomatic representatives to Entente capitals demanded an explanation as to whether the Entente stand means a permanent refusal of frontier revision.

Bulgaria, which also has territorial claims on Rumania, took a similar view, press reports indicated.

Official circles in Hungary expressed the view Rumania had won a "paper victory" at the Entente conference last week-end, but that other Entente members—Turkey, Greece and Yugoslavia—were neither willing nor able to guarantee the security of Rumania's disputed frontiers.

(At Belgrade observers pointed out the Entente agreed to "watch" over national territory and that the word "guarantee" was conspicuously missing from an official communique on the Entente's decisions.)

Hungarian circles took it for granted Rumania had obtained assurances of German support for her status quo if she furnished the Reich with oil, wheat and other supplies.

Gandhi Calls Viceroy Parley A Failure

Indian Leader Foresees 'No Settlement' Without Self-Rule

By the Associated Press

New Delhi, India, Feb. 6.—Mohandas K. Gandhi declared today he saw "no prospect whatsoever of a peaceful and honorable settlement" with Britain unless the British accept Indian self-government demands.

Fresh from an important parley yesterday with the viceroy, Lord Linlithgow, the Indian Nationalist leader said he wanted an honorable settlement "without even a nonviolent fight," referring to his previously potent weapon of civil disobedience in achieving Nationalist aims.

"A wide gulf," however, separates India and Britain over Indian independence, Gandhi said, calling his talks with the viceroy a failure.

Lord Linlithgow conferred today with India's Moslem leader, Mohammed Ali Jinnah, in a further effort to find a workable solution of India's problems.

A communique said Jinnah emphasized the importance attached by the Moslems and other minorities to safeguarding their position in any settlement and was assured the British government would watch over their legitimate interests.

Meanwhile, 40 trade associations, the Bombay Stock Exchange and the city's markets shut down in protest against an excess profits tax bill which was introduced in the Central Legislative Assembly.

forcements, especially from North Africa.

The strength of this French army is naturally a secret. The Frankfurter Zeitung recently put it at a minimum of 150,000 men, while Russian estimates went as high as 400,000. The latter, it was commented here, "is a manifest exaggeration."

Then there is the British army of the Middle East, of which Lieut. Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell is commander in chief. His command extends over wide areas in the Middle East and Africa, and he acts in liaison with the air officers commanding in Iraq and Aden.

In addition a special British military mission acts as a link with the Egyptian army. Important units of the Indian army are training in Egypt, near Cairo.

BILL CORUM—famed sports writer and columnist

COMMON SENSE and years of smoking experience have told Bill Corum what scientists have confirmed in their research laboratories—that the slower a cigarette burns, the cooler and milder the smoking. Some cigarettes burn fast, some slower, some just in between. Laboratory tests show Camels are definitely slower-burning (details below). Turn to Camels and get the extras in smoking pleasure—extra mildness, extra coolness, extra flavor, and extra smoking. Or, as Bill Corum puts it: "More pleasure per puff and more puffs per pack!"

Men with a VISION

THREE-QUARTERS of a century ago Washington was a city of sparsely scattered wooden buildings. Pigs wallowed in the muddy streets. Connecticut Avenue was a cow pasture. Bethesda, Silver Spring and Arlington County were hinterlands.

Then came men with a vision. A vision of Greater Washington—the city of homes. These men founded the first Building and Loan Associations of the District of Columbia. These men saw the real need of Washington—a plan to help neighbors save together—a plan to create a fund which could be used to build homes.

The Building and Loan Plan achieved immediate success because it was friendly, cooperative—and most important—sound. Then, as now, it brought opportunity to the small saver to invest his money wisely and profitably. It gave generous help to individuals who wanted to buy a home or needed to finance, build or improve a home. In Washington and vicinity more homes have been purchased, re-financed and improved through the help of the Associations of the District of Columbia Building and Loan League than through any other single source.

These men of vision stand ready to help you, as they did your grandfather, your neighbors, your friends.

The ABCB Inquiry

So long as the present obsolete system of local government exists here, District agencies must expect frequent Congressional investigations into their official conduct. There is no governing body responsible to the people which can be relied upon to scrutinize the activities of all municipal boards and all subordinate officials. Nor is there any local check upon the governing body itself.

In these circumstances Congressional investigations are an essential means of guarding against arbitrary conduct or laxity in the performance of official duties. Several investigations of this sort, notably that dealing with crime and law enforcement in the District a few years ago, have brought constructive results. A Congressional inquiry is a crude check upon misconduct in the local government. But in the absence of any other means of holding administrative officials in the line of duty, it is an essential safeguard.

But the power of investigating local agencies may be easily abused. When District boards are subjected to a Congressional probe merely because of some administrative decision that happens to prove unpopular, it is almost impossible for them to function with efficiency and independent judgment.

The House District Committee may have good reason to investigate the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board of the District. But, as pointed out by Wilbur LaRoe, jr., of the Parole Board, the independence of the ABCB will be destroyed if its members are called on the carpet every time they refuse to issue a liquor license.

The committee may legitimately investigate the board's conduct if it believes that agency has not conscientiously and properly enforced the law. But it should be very careful not to usurp the function of the board and not to apply pressure in the decision of any case pending before it.

War Of Starvation

Since the war began, a little more than five months ago, the stalemate on the Western Front has remained unbroken. The real struggle has been on the sea, with both sides engaged in a desperate and unrelenting struggle to starve out the enemy.

Up to now, the Allies have had the better of this struggle. Despite individual successes scored by German U-boats against British warships, the Allied blockade has remained unimpaired. Nor has the German counterblockade, by submarine and mine, produced the desired effect, even though Allied and neutral merchant shipping losses during these five month have totaled something over 1,000,000 tons.

The submarine and the mine are weapons which the British and French navies learned to combat with a considerable measure of success during the last war. Protective devices put in force during the present war have to some extent resulted in holding down tonnage losses from these devices. But now there is a new method of attack on vital British lines of communication.

In the past few days the German air force has carried out a succession of dramatic raids against British coasting steamers, trawlers, minesweepers and other small craft, the success of which cannot be gauged merely by the total tonnage destroyed. If we accept the British figures, that tonnage has not been large. And the German claims of ships sunk from the air are not of themselves staggering. Nonetheless this bombing of small shipping clearly constitutes the most serious threat with which Great Britain has thus far had to contend.

In the first place, it may to some extent succeed in intimidating neutral shipping into staying out of British sea lanes. Secondly, in this form of attack the Germans are making use of a weapon which they possess in far greater abundance than is the case with the submarine, and against which adequate defense must still be worked out. And before a successful method of defense against the bombing and machine-gunning of isolated vessels can be achieved, mass German raids may seriously reduce Britain's food reserves.

It is not merely coincidence, therefore, that the British government is announcing the rationing of meat, as of March 11. This is in addition to the rationing of butter, bacon, ham and sugar which is already in force.

Facing a threat of truly dangerous dimensions, the British are taking no chances. They know that while their blockade of Germany operates with cumulative force, Germany's counter-blockade measures are resulting in a steady attrition of Allied and neutral merchant shipping. Besieging Germany, they realize that they, too, are seriously besieged.

Inevitably Compromised

The American Civil Liberties Union has improved an already excellent reputation by its decision to exclude Communists from either office or committee membership within the organization.

This action, taken in New York on Monday, follows closely on the heels of the voluntary dissolution last week of the American League for Peace and Democracy. Many members of this now defunct league suffered an unjustified stigma when the Dies Committee advertised them as "fellow travelers." But it is equally true that Communist activities within the league had ended its usefulness, and cast serious suspicion on its purposes, long before the issue was forced by Mr. Dies and his colleagues.

Because of this, the disappearance of the so-called League for Peace and Democracy is no loss. But it would be tragic if Communist contamination should be allowed to force the Civil Liberties Union into the discard. For many years, in many parts of the country, the latter organization has done a most patriotic service in legal defense of the constitutional rights of humble and defenseless individuals. Many an injustice has been corrected, and perhaps many more have been averted, by the always timely and often courageous intervention of the union.

The very effectiveness of the Civil Liberties Union has made it many enemies. And precisely for this reason it is important that the armor of the organization should have no openings through which the arrows of criticism can find effective lodgment. Such a chink has been provided by the presence, in recent years, of two well-known Communists on the national committee of the union. The absurdity of this, in view of the complete denial of civil liberties practiced by Communists wherever they are in power, has long been pronounced.

That the union has finally recognized this absurdity, and thereby armed itself for more effective work in future, is demonstrated by the text of the resolution now adopted. The organization in its work, this points out, "makes no distinction in the right to hold and utter any opinions." But its staff and committee memberships are "properly subject to the test of consistency in the defense of civil liberties in all aspects and all places." That consistency, the resolution concludes, "is inevitably compromised by persons who champion civil liberties in the United States and yet justify or tolerate the denial of civil liberties by dictatorships abroad."

The resolution of the Civil Liberties Union is directed impartially against Nazi, Fascist or Communist penetration, properly aligning all three as equally antidemocratic. But in effect, since Nazis and Fascists seldom even pretend to favor civil liberties, it is the Communists who receive the full brunt of the attack. They represent the only totalitarian group which has endeavored to capture this liberal organization by boring from within.

Mrs. Roosevelt, who seemingly believes that the American Youth Congress is not injured by inclusion of the Young Communist League as a constituent body, would do well to ponder the forthright decision of the Civil Liberties Union. The First Lady is one of a small and rapidly dwindling minority if she really believes that a movement which welcomes Communist support can at the same time make good a claim to stand for liberal ideals.

They Cancel Out

Some days ago it was reported that representations had been made in Tokyo by the United States against the bombing by Japanese planes of the French-owned railroad from Indo-China to Yunnan Province.

This road is about the last remaining traffic artery in unoccupied territory over which American exports to and imports from China can pass without Japanese permission. The destruction of the line would thus have a harmful effect on Sino-American trade. But if our recent representations have had any effect on Japan there is not the slightest sign of it. The railroad continues to be bombed.

Certainly this is not the first time that American protests to Japan have gone unheeded. What is significant in Japan's action this time is that it follows the abrogation, on January 26, of the Japanese-American commercial treaty of 1911. That development has opened the way to certain far-reaching reprisals which the United States can now take against actions that contravene American rights and are destructive of American interests in China.

Tokyo seems convinced, however, that the bark of the United States is worse than the bite. And there are indications that the Japanese are not far wrong in that conclusion. A case in point is the recent sale to Japanese interests, for delivery in Shanghai, presumably for use by the Japanese army of occupation, of 300,000 bushels of wheat carrying a 30-cent a bushel United States Government subsidy.

Thus while the Department of State imposes a "moral embargo" on the export to Japan of airplanes, bombs and machinery to produce aviation gasoline, the Department of Agriculture is apparently subsidizing bread to feed the Japanese bombers.

It is not surprising, therefore, that the hard-boiled militarists who rule the roost in the island empire find it possible to pay no attention to State Department protests. They can, with justice, argue that these do not represent coordinated governmental policy.

Boost For A Third Term

Selection of Chicago as the Democratic National Convention city does not in itself indicate that President Roosevelt will be renominated for a third term. But this decision to nominate the 1940 candidate at the birthplace of the New Deal is symbolical of the powerful forces that are at work to keep Mr. Roosevelt in the White House until 1945.

The meeting of the Democratic National Committee in Washington on Monday coincided with a Presidential statement to newspapermen at Hyde Park which might be interpreted as the opening gun in a third-term campaign. Coupled with his irritation over press conference queries as to his political plans, the President's long statistical defense of the New Deal certainly suggests that the prospect of remaining in the White House four additional years has not been dismissed from his mind. And the action of the Democratic National Committee very positively confirms this view.

The authorization given Chairman Farley to fix a date for the Chicago conclave is usually interpreted as a clever maneuver to embarrass the Republican Party. G. O. P. rules require announcement of the date of that party's convention four months before it is held. So Mr. Farley will be at liberty to delay the Democratic National Convention until after the Republicans have chosen their candidate and launched their campaign.

Should President Roosevelt conceal his plans until after the Republicans have met, this strategy might leave them at a disadvantage. On the other hand, they might reap some gains out of the uncertainty and confusion which such tactics would inflict upon the Democratic Party. For the moment it is difficult to see what effect this delay in fixing a date for the convention may have, except that it favors the third-term boosters.

In effect, the President will now be able to fix the Democratic convention date to suit his own convenience. He is reported to favor a late gathering and a short campaign. With the convention date postponed until August or September, there would be little time to build up a new candidate. So arguments in favor of renominating Mr. Roosevelt would be strengthened. Moreover, every month of delay increases the possibility that a desperate international situation may weaken public adherence to the two-term tradition. The wishes of the third termers appear to have been given preference over the long-range interests of the Democratic Party.

By both word and attitude the President convinced reporters at Hyde Park he is tired of being asked whether he will run again. Heretofore the curiosity of newspapermen on this subject had been treated as a joke. Now it is a source of annoyance. But the President's distaste for questions on the subject is probably mild compared with the irritation of many Democratic leaders over his silence.

The President seems to regard the third-term issue as merely a personal question for him to decide. Actually, of course, it is a national issue in which the entire country is interested. If he persists in playing the Sphinx, he must expect increasing pressure for enlightenment as to his plans, not only from the press, but also from leaders of his own party. And if his decision is too long delayed, he may find that he has left himself no reasonable alternative to making another race under a formidable handicap.

Unhappy Ending

It must have been a bitter moment for Thorvald Solberg when he arrived at his home near Glen Echo the other evening to see not only his house and goods but also the fruits of years of patient literary acquisition being destroyed by fire. Throughout his long life, Mr. Solberg has been an ardent and indefatigable collector of rare books, most of which he intended to bequeath to the Library of Congress, where for 33 years he was register of copyright.

The ironic part of the tragedy is that had he returned a few hours earlier Mr. Solberg might have discovered the blaze in time to save the collection. As it was he managed to rescue only a bare sample of what is lost.

Mr. Solberg's loss is not merely personal. At the time of the fire he was, is seems, on his way home to get some of the books that he intended to give immediately to the Library. Perhaps it may be some consolation that his deprivation is, therefore, a matter of very definite public regret.

Mr. Mayne Ought To Know

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your recent editorial berating Representative Hook and others for producing and having introduced into the Record certain evidence linking Martin Dies with the Silver Shirts prompts me to write you.

You accept the assertion that the Mayne affidavits are forgeries. This is incorrect. What is your basis for this statement? It is ironic that the Dies Committee itself has time and again published charges against individuals on testimony of flimsy nature often given by unqualified witnesses. To such charges you have given your kudos and your front page.

Your paper, no doubt, considers itself a champion of public interest. But the fact is, that there is as much difference between you and your journalistic ancestors, the forthright and crusading editors of another generation, as there is between the lion and its domestic feline cousin, the cat.

The charge has been made that Martin Dies is tied up with the Silver Shirts. I, for one, am not in a position to know whether or not that charge is true. But neither are you. The public relies on you for accurate information—you must not make appear as actual fact what in reality is conjecture.

My point is, cut out the crusade against snow and call for an investigation of Hook's charges. If they are false, Dies will be exonerated. If they are true the Nation ought to know about it, for there is a very great need that subversive activities should be exposed to the light of day and this cannot be done if the head of a Congressional body is himself associated with or sympathetic toward subversive groups. THE JUDGE.

Webster's Woodchuck

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Regarding your inquiry in The Post of February 3, your reporter was right. There is a story about Daniel Webster and a woodchuck, often called ground-hog. It was in our old school readers, but I do not remember the name of the series; it might have been McGuffey, or Wilson, or any of half a dozen others.

The title of the story was "Daniel Webster's First Oration," but it has no reference to the shadow. The woodchuck had been trapped because of its depredations in the garden. Daniel wanted to set it free, but his brother was determined that the marauder should die.

Appeal to Father Webster brought the decision that the two boys should debate the question, the father acting as judge. Daniel won, not only because of the cogency of his reasoning; for his emotional appeal—if my memory is correct—reduced his audience to tears.

Sorry the name of the author has escaped my memory.

In The Theaters

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mrs. Roosevelt's article, "My Day," on January 24, was one that intrigued me greatly. It is indeed a consolation to know that there are still some fair-minded, clear-thinking sympathizers of the majority race who acknowledge and admit the plight of the Negro in Washington, especially in regard to racial discrimination in its downtown theaters.

Here in the Nation's Capital—the meeting place of our great lawmakers, diplomats, and other distinguished personages; the lure of kings and queens, and visitors the world over—we find such discriminatory practices in the white theaters. However, when one of that race feels the need of a midnight show packed with rhythm and entertainment, dosed out by some of the best Negro bands in the country, Saturday night usually finds them in attendance at the Howard Theater.

WESLEY WASHINGTON.

Democracy And The AFL

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: From its cozy junket headquarters in sunny Miami the executive council of the American Federation of Labor issues one of its periodical, typical, stereotyped statements. Time-worn glittering generalities and truisms are duly emitted, such as "condemning Hitler and Stalin," branding the C. I. O. movement as "communist," deploring the latter's "dual unionism" and pointing out to the gullible public that the A. F. of L. has and always will stand for all that is good, true and beautiful, just as our Sunday school teachers taught us. Really this is not news.

What would be news would be a statement from the executive council explaining why the A. F. of L. pays lip homage to democracy while denying it in its own organization; explaining why many of the international unions never hold any conventions and in this manner give the rank and file no chance to vote for or elect new officers for years.

What would be news would be an investigation revealing the thoroughly undemocratic makeup of the whole A. F. of L. structure. What would be news would be a publication of the "labor background" of such influential figures as Scalese and Bioff, as Pegler suggests.

When William Green sheds crocodile tears over the "dual" unionism of the C. I. O., he conveniently forgets that the A. F. of L. was itself a "dual" union split off from the flourishing Knights of Labor of an early day by the illustrious Gompers and his supporters. It was Samuel Gompers who put the knife between the ribs of a great big industrial union, the same kind as the present C. I. O., namely the Knights of Labor, headed by the able and brilliant T. V. Powderly.

Samuel Gompers had a lot of ability, but he did not build the A. F. of L. from the ground up. He smashed a successful-going giant organization and out of the component unions rewelded the A. F. of L. on the basis of crafts rather than industries. ARISTOTLE.

Washington, Feb. 4.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I employ your columns to suggest that the objective of the "Blood Bank" be broadened to include one ounce of red blood for each member of Congress.

This thought is prompted by the humiliation I feel at the white-livered vacillation of Congress in dealing with the proposal of aid for Finland.

The prospect now appears to be that eventually we will express our official championship of democratic ideals and our admiration of the beleagured Finns by permitting them to sell bonds in our self-righteous country. In view of the destruction that threatens the Finnish government, it seems obvious that the only persons who will buy these bonds will be ardent sympathizers with this heroic battle against brutalitarianism who would otherwise give their funds gratuitously.

The adoption of this weak-kneed proposal will only serve to rob our gifts of the regenerative spirit of generosity and idealism and stultify them with a fictitious commercialism. Anything the politician touches becomes tainted with hypocrisy. Unhappily the Finnish vote is negligible, so money appropriated to preserve Finnish independence will not secure anyone's reelection.

Warfare is not an investment. If we demand bonds in exchange for our donations, five years after the war is ended we will despise these same heroic Finns because they are unable to repay their debt.

Please ask Mr. Gallup to ascertain whether or not the spirit of the Nation is really as craven as Congress believes it to be.

JOHN R. WALKER.

$25 A Week In Washington

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. Benjamin Duck's letter which appeared in your paper of the February 3 issue interested me very much. In his last paragraph he requested Mr. Tower to explain how he can support a family on $26 per week.

I do not know what size family he was speaking about when he spoke of supporting a family on $26 a week. I want to tell him a little of what I am doing with a salary of $25 a week.

Even before I get my salary check there has been 25 cents deducted for social security. When I do get it I divide it among the different places to which it is to go and place it in small envelopes to be used when I need it. To be able to "stretch" each dollar I have to look for bargains of the lasting type.

I first look for a bargain in rent in the apartments for rent columns in The Washington Post. I found a place which is in a respectable neighborhood and which comes within my ability to pay. In this apartment I furnish my own gas, lights and heat because it is more economical.

When I buy food I get that which is nourishing as well as economical, not a lot of fancy doodads, but things that give the vitamins which I need and are still tasty. And due to the fact that over a period of years I have saved recipes from The Washington Post I can utilize practically every crumb of the food.

When I buy clothes I again have to look for bargains. Not for bargain day stuff, but for the type of clothing that will last for a long time. I don't look for the fancy or latest-from-Paris counter, but I look for the counter that contains those clothes which I know from experience will last longer than others and still be stylish. I do not take part in a lot of parties nor do I go to the theater very often. Knowing that my income will not support it I do not own an automobile.

I neither smoke, drink, nor gamble. Each week I put aside a little for my church as well as my bank account. Not having had the privilege of a college education, I am now educating myself in music. Each week I place $2.75 in an envelope, which takes care of my lesson and the payments on a $120 instrument.

Yes, Mr. Editor, it can be done once a person has to do it. If Mr. Duck is still unconvinced and desires further information I can outline to him how I supported myself and my wife on a salary of $15 a week here in Washington for about a year. I did it because I was compelled to do it. And again, Mr. Editor, may I state that once you have to and want to do it, it can be done.

The Post Impressionist

Letter Home

I saw her again today, Joe. There's a little flower shop down on Seventeenth street, not two blocks from the White House. I was trudging down the sidewalk, kicking the slush with my rubbers, when I saw the White House car parked there in front.

Who else could it be? I hate to gawk at public figures, not until they've been frozen into statues anyway, but there's something about her . . . I strolled on a few yards and turned and waited.

I remember the first time I saw her. She came to a students' meeting at the university. Most officials in Washington avoid these meetings like the plague. The students are a more critical audience than they usually face, and after all they can't vote.

She was invited and she came. Just as she's gone to scores of meetings like it all over the country. She spoke for about 30 minutes and answered questions for another 30. She would have stayed longer, she said, because she liked the question period, but she had another meeting at 10.

You've only seen here in the newsreels, Joe, so you don't knew what she looks like. There's something warm and human and intimate and friendly and great . . . They haven't invented the camera yet that can quite catch it. But it's there.

"I wonder who wrote this one for her," the boy next to me said.

"What do you mean?"

"Why they're all written for her. Where you been all your life? You think she does her own stuff?"

The prepared speech was straight liberal doctrine that might have come from old Jeremy Bentham or Oswald Garrison Villard. She read it in that precise, hyperenunciated manner, and everybody applauded politely when she was through.

The chairman called for questions.

"Now you'll see, you dope," my next-seat neighbor said. "Watch her wilt."

There is a real technique, Joe, to answering these questions. Most speakers make you hand in written queries. Then the chairman can weed out all the embarrassing ones. But she's no weak sister. She stood up there and answered everything that was flung at her, and she did it without hedging. There was none of this flippant, wisecracking epigrammatic evasion that British lecturers, for instance, are particularly adept in using.

I saw, all right, and I heard, and so did my cynical neighbor.

I tell you, Joe, she was terrific. If she didn't know the answer she said so. And every reply she made went to the root of the question. There's nothing slippery about her thinking. In that pleasant, good-tempered manner, she answered everyone, and there was plenty of queries that were daggered on all sides with malice aforethought.

She's a democrat, Joe, a little-"d" democrat, and you know, I believe she's different from most of the great democrats who ever lived. I've got a theory, Joe, that the political theorists who gave us our concepts of democracy were mainly introverts. That's why so many of them, like Rousseau, hated the masses they argued for. Maybe it comes from being different: from thinking too much, from loneliness.

I wouldn't know whether she's ever lonely or not. But I don't think she hates people, individually or in the mass. She doesn't talk about the poor as if they were numbers. She doesn't tell of the poverty-stricken, hopeless, helpless, sick and dirty people she's fought for as exhibits A, B, C.

And when she meets you there's none of that professional Tammany handshake-and-smile mechanism that nine out of ten Washington bigshots use on their constituency. I'd swear she means it when she says, "I'm glad to meet you."

She actually likes people, Joe, all kinds of people. She doesn't just feel sorry for the jobless women, the sick miners, the homeless 'croppers, the girls at the reform school or the women in the old ladies' homes who're improperly cared for. You have to go way back, Joe, a long, long way back, to find someone who went about ministering to the weak and helpless in that spirit.

Maybe I'm a sucker, Joe. Maybe, as some people say, a woman's place is in the home. But the history of this country is going to be different because one woman didn't think so.

So you see, that's why I had to stop and wait.

Pretty soon, there she was, striding across the sidewalk in those long, unfeminine steps. Her chauffeur threw the door open, she paused, nodded and smiled at an old man who tipped his hat, spoke to the chauffeur, and was gone.

I felt better, just seeing her, Joe. I feel the same way sometimes when I drive down to the Lincoln Memorial and look up there and see he's still sitting there.

Maybe, maybe this country's going to be all right after all.

Resounding Silence

THE NEWS from Miami informs us that the executive council of the American Federation of Labor has been meeting there. This comes coincidentally with J. Edgar Hoover's recent announcement that the criminal scum of the country was assembling there again for its winter social and professional season.

Does this mean that I intend to identify some members of the American Federation of Labor with criminal scum?

But yes. What else could I mean? Lest there be any doubt about it, perhaps I should say in so many words that some criminal scum of the country hold high office in the American Federation of Labor and many subsidiary offices, and point out that, although the executive council in the current session has had much to say about the faults of the National Government and other matters, it has thus far taken no notice of the activities of criminal scum in its own affairs. If the American Federation of Labor had any objections to criminal scum it would have taken occasion a long time ago, and certainly could have found no more effective occasion than the present meeting, to issue some expression against criminal scum in the labor movement.

Executive Silence Proves Resounding

THIS WOULD require no revision of the federation's constitution, but it would require a drastic revision of the federation's policy and morals. The constitution does not forbid resolutions on any topic, but the policy and morality do, and thus the executive council's silence on one subject is much more resounding and expressive of the federation's character than all of the official utterances which have come forth.

Although no news has come through regarding any activity of Mr. George Scalese, the distinguished Brooklyn mackerel who is president of one of the big international unions of the federation, it may be assumed that he has been giving the labor movement, as represented by the A. F. of L., the benefit of his wisdom and character.

For it was announced in Chicago, just after Mr. Scalese received a vote of confidence from his own executive group, that he was boarding a plane at once to bear him to Miami. There were snows and cold winds in New York at the time, and it was not necessary for Mr. Scalese to return home.

Their Police Records Would Be Interesting

HE HAS thousands of scrub women who toil on their knees in the office buildings at night, scouring floors and spittoons; thousands of Scandinavian window washers who dangle on straps in the high winds on tall buildings; thousands of elevator men and porters all working to provide him with the means to dally in the land of the criminal scum, and the Chicago vote of confidence was intended to confirm his right to their contributions.

And actively on the job in New York to enforce the collections and allot, or sell, the jobs he has an alert and able staff, including, as we shall see, some more of the criminal scum of the American Federation of Labor.

It is unfortunate that Mr. Hoover did not elaborate on his mention of the scum, for it would be interesting to read a social directory of Miami and Miami Beach giving the names and addresses and police and criminal records of the colony which has transformed the community into the winter headquarters of the most illustrious and vicious racketeers out of prison. Their press agents regularly advertise the dives which are operated by members of this colony, but never are the scum identified plainly as scum, being commonly referred to as sportsmen.

'The A. F. L. Welcomes Some Criminal Scum'

MR. HOOVER, had he cared to, might have let the householders and other visitors know who their neighbors were, including not only their street numbers but the numbers of their records in the files of the FBI.

The Miamis are strangely sluggish in this phase of their publicity by contrast with other resorts which always get up lists of their noted sojourners with a paragraph or more on the background of each.

Of course, it is important to know how the executive council of the American Federation of Labor stands on the New Deal, the Labor Relations Board, industry and recovery, and perhaps it is unnecessary to make any statement of policy on the subject of criminal scum. The roster of union officials in and under the A. F. of L. provides the answer. The A. F. of L. welcomes and defends some criminal scum.

Fair at Hagerstown To Open Month Earlier

Special Dispatch to The Post

Hagerstown, Md., Feb. 6.—The Hagerstown Agricultural Fair will be held September 24-28, inclusive. The officers decided for an earlier fair this year, pointing out that the third week in October, when the fair had been held in the past, often found the weather too chilly, which had a tendency of cutting down night attendance. The Fair Association also holds a 10 day racing meet in the summer.

Hitler as Stooge for Stalin Is History's Supreme Irony

By Dorothy Thompson

IF, FROM a military point of view, Stalin appears to be no menace to Hitler, from an ideological viewpoint Stalin is ahead. Hitler is a usurper of ideas. He has never invented an ideology at all. His movement started by the usurpation of the ideas of the German Nationalists, combined with ideas that he took from the Marxists. The combination distorted both. Now, he is usurping the idea of the World Revolution, and is rapidly becoming a Charlie McCarthy for the Kremlin. This is history's supreme irony.

He is forced into this position. Hitler cannot, this column believes, conquer the west. He cannot seek a decision on the field of battle. He cannot do so because he has not the material necessary for a "real" war. He lacks the most essential thing: oil. For a large-scale offensive he would have to have from 23 to 25 million tons a year. He has not got it, and it is impossible to see from where he can get it.

For a kind of war he is waging now, 5 to 6 million tons will suffice. This is covered. From home production and coal conversion he gets about 3.5 millions. From conquered Poland he gets another half million. From Rumania, with luck, he can get another 1.5 millions.

Hitler Can Expect Little Soviet Oil

THE BRITISH blockade and the lack of foreign exchange cuts off overseas oil. What can he get from Russia? The Russian wells produce 30 millions tons annually, but Russia exports only a million tons and cannot greatly increase that quota. The rapid collectivization of the Russian farms and the peasants' reaction to it in killing off their livestock mean that Russian agriculture is dependent on machinery, which eats not oats and hay, but oil. Stalin cannot meet Germany's demands for a major war except by producing famine in Russia.

Moreover, the Russian wells are peculiarly vulnerable to attack from the air. Eighty per cent of Russian oil is conecentrated in Batum and Baku, inside a very small area. A few bombs would set fire to the whole works.

Furthermore, Hitler's military and economic advisers must know that he cannot starve England. The German navy is out of the war. Submarines, airplanes and mines can combine to make life costly and inconvenient for the British people and the northern neutrals, and Hitler, who does not go in for "honor" and "heroism," considers even a fishing smack fair prey. Unarmed commerce of any sort, belligerent or neutral, is his particular meat.

Why does not Hitler bomb British industries and British ports in an enormous "blitzkreig"? The German air fleet is still numerically superior to the combined Allied air fleets. But two considerations must hold him back. In the first place, even with her industries destroyed, Britain could still get goods. She still controls the seas and has resources all over the world.

In the second place, such an attack would certainly mean reprisals, and if the German industries were bombed, Germany would be finished.

'Jekyll-Hyde Role Desired By Adolf

WHAT, THEN, is Hitler's game, if he cannot force a decision? As a matter of fact, it would appear that he is playing two games, that he is a Dr. Jekyll and a Mr. Hyde. On the one hand he would still love to be the savior of Europe from bolshevism. Since he is sadly compromised for this role he might return and turn the job over to Goering. There is the Kaiser's letter, produced not by an opponent of Hitler, but by a man who only a short ti. ago was praising him, proposing that England, France and Germany should fight Russia. T would be nice for Germany, but it happens that Hitler brought Russia into Europe.

On the other hand, there is the possibility that the Russian idea may be t right one—win, not the war, but the revolution! Hitler can take that side, too.

He can argue that middle-class civilization and capitalism are on their last legs. He saw both capitulate before his Brown Shirts in Germany. They even helped him come into power. His contempt for "these gentlemen" is great. If military socialism is to be the coming world order, perhaps Russia and Germany can better survive this sort of war than the Allies. For the Allies, being a part of an international money economy, are vulnerable there. The Nazi war costs the work of slaves. The British and French war costs money. It is flowing out at the rate of a half a billion dollars a month in Great Britain. That hemophilia means levies on capital and in one form or another wage cuts. Hitler perhaps argues that when the classes in Britain and France, who have most to lose, begin seriously to fear that their particular jig may be up he can make an anti-Russian peace. Or perhaps he can become the heralder and maker of the world revolution! Either role would do, provided that it puts Germany on top.

Considerable Aid Received From U. S.

SO FAR he has got considerable aid from the world's greatest democracy, the United States of America. Under the cry "never again send our boys to France"—an eventuality of which there is not the least likelihood and is wholly predicated on the last war, which was an entirely different kind of war—this country proceeded to upset the machinery of international credit, inside the money economy of which we are a part, with the cash-and-carry clause and the prohibition of loans to belligerents.

With most of the world's gold sterile in this country, we therefore contribute to pushing the rest of the nations, which are on a money-and-trade economy, toward one form or another of socialism. This may be all right, but it is certain that the Republicans, for instance, who have been aiding the process, did not do so with their eyes open.

Actually it is unlikely that either of Hitler's programs will succeed. If the Allied campaign becomes the fighting of social reaction, Europe will be lost in chaos. The attempt to put the clock back to 1912 is hopeless obscurantism. This war against Hitler is a people's war, fought to determine what sort of Europe will emerge and what concepts of economy and politics will dominate the rest of the twentieth century. It is certainly not being fought by the people for the sake of putting the kaiser back on the German throne or putting Goering in the place of Hitler. That way lies real revolt in the Allied countries themselves.

At Once A War And Revolution

IT IS NOT being fought for communism of the Russian variety. Communism without freedom is tyranny atop mob whim. To say that it is being fought for the restoration and renewal of human dignity sounds high faluting, but some such conception is in the hearts of the people who are paying for it. It is at once a war and a revolution; a war that is inhibited on the Allied side by the lack of terrain on which to fight. Had the Allies been Nazis they might have won the war by now. They would have marched upon Germany through Belgium and Holland in a "Blitzkrieg" when Germany had 100 divisions tied up in Poland.

The war is inhibited on Hitler's side by fear of the political results in America if Holland is violated and by lack of adequate resources with which to replace and feed his immense war machine.

And the coming shape of things—the great change that this war will bring if it does not bring merely anarchy and chaos—does not yet show its lineaments.

Morale Improved

By Ernest K. Lindley

The Democrats Take Stock

THE TEMPER of the Democratic Party, as transmitted through the National Committee meeting this week, is optimistic but not enthusiastic. Its morale has improved strikingly since the heavy setback in the 1938 election.

Business recovery and the war have helped the Democrats. The feuds in the party have subsided. They still smolder and will flare up again here and there during the Presidential primary period. But the general feeling is that they will not disrupt the party. In fact, there is evident a determination that they shall not be allowed to disrupt it.

The Democrats have a better than even chance of winning the 1940 election. There is hardly a doubt that an overwhelming majority of the National Committee members feel so—although many of them are worried about their State tickets.

But this optimism falls short of enthusiasm. You can't be enthusiastic until you know for whom and for what your enthusiasm is expected. In 1936 the Democrats knew who was going to lead them, and what the issues would be. In 1932 they didn't know who would lead them, but they knew that the Hoover Administration had sagged almost as much as the national income, and that the Democratic ticket, whoever it was, would probably win.

Feared Applause At Wrong Place

ABOUT THIS national committee meeting there was a wandering, lost-sheep appearance. Members sauntered around asking each other whether Roosevelt was going to run again. Nobody knew. Vice President Garner received only polite applause. Jim Farley, still highly popular, was received rather lackadaisically. How do Garner and Farley stand with Roosevelt? Nobody was quite sure. There was fear of applauding at the wrong place, of saying something that might prove embarrassing later.

Roosevelt is the controlling influence in the party. There is no doubt about it. Until he announces his own plans, the Democrats will continue to mill around asking each other what he intends to do, making no plans of their own.

Third-term declarations popped out on all sides. But not often with real enthusiasm. Some of the National Committee members really believe, perhaps, that Roosevelt would be the strongest candidate. But most of them are worried about the effect of the third-term issue if he should be renominated. They are practical politicians, most of them, who rely heavily on experience. On this there is no past experience to guide them.

Polite And Loyal To Back Third Term

THE PROFUSION of third-term declarations from National Committee members can be attributed largely to these causes:

1. It is the polite and loyal thing to do. The Chief—Roosevelt—has indicated in various ways that he likes to have people declare for a third term.

2. It would be dangerous to come out strongly against a third term. Perhaps Roosevelt does not want to be renominated. Perhaps he will be renominated. The Democratic National Committee members are not John L. Lewises. They don't want to have to swallow rash predictions of defeat.

3. Roosevelt is the most convenient hitching post. Why take a risk on coming out for another candidate—one who may not be nominated? Like Roosevelt, perhaps, a good many National Committee members want to take plenty of time to look the field over. Those who are the real political bosses in their States will have more power at the convention if they avoid commitments to other candidates.

4. If they were not for Roosevelt—or for presentable favorite-son candidates—they might feel compelled to declare for James A. Farley. They like and respect Jim. But many of them do not sympathize with his aspirations to be on the national ticket. They can avoid telling him so by coming out for Roosevelt.

5. There is no real enthusiasm for other candidates. No logical successor to Roosevelt is in plain view. The leading second choices seem to be McNutt and Hull. Either would be fairly acceptable if approved by Roosevelt.

Confusion Traced To Wars Abroad

PART OF THE confusion among the Democrats is traceable to the wars abroad. They don't quite know what their party is going to stand for by the time the election rolls around. The Wilson strain in the party conflicts with the Bryan strain. There is no real issue because Roosevelt has prevented it from arising. But there is a vague fear that events may force a clear-cut stand. It underlies the general admiration of the practical politicians for Roosevelt's adroitness in conducting his foreign policy so as to minimize criticism.

The Democrats are perking up, but they are not too confident. This is a healthy state of mind for them to be in at this stage of the 1940 campaign.

Behind The Lines

By Barnet Nover

Totalitarian War—Russian Style

THERE ARE TWO wars going on in Finland.

There is, first of all, the war which has been featured in the headlines, a war in the classic style, a war of armies pitted against armies even though waged with the most modern of weapons.

In that struggle the Finns have thus far achieved a truly remarkable success. They have repulsed wave after wave of the invading Red army. They have held their lines unbroken all the way from the Karelian Isthmus to the Arctic and at certain points have even penetrated Russian territory. And however much we may discount the recurrent reports of whole Russian divisions surrounded and cut to pieces, there appears to be little doubt that the Finns have inflicted terrific losses on the invaders.

BUT THERE IS another war going on in Finland and in that war the Finns are not winning at all.

Last week, according to a Finnish communique, from 50 to 400 Red planes flew over Finland, dropping a total of 6,800 bombs on no fewer than 141 localities. And as the days get longer in the Northland, as the darkness of winter gives way to spring sunlight there is every reason to believe that these air raids will increase rather than diminish in intensity.

And that war from the air on ports, railroad junctions, military concentrations, cities, towns, villages and even isolated farms, may in the long run prove of decisive importance in the outcome of the Russo-Finnish struggle.

AS FAR AS can be determined, the actual number of Finnish noncombatants who have fallen victim to this type of totalitarian warfare is not yet very large. Last week's casualty list shows 145 civilians killed and 179 wounded. The Red airmen do not appear to be particularly good marksmen. On the basis of the above mentioned figures it would appear that it takes more than 20 Red bombs to produce one Finnish casualty.

But this by no means tells the whole story.

THE IMPORTANCE of the economic factor in the German-Allied struggle has come to be recognized by most people, if for no other reason than that military inactivity on the Western Front has emphasized the significance of the Allied blockade and the German counter-blockade.

The economic factor is not less important in the Russo-Finnish War. Russia can call on vast resources not only in man power but also in industrial power. Finland's resources are decidedly limited. And even if sufficient man power were available to the Finns they could not go on fighting without a continuous flow of supplies to the front lines, nor unless the needs of the civilian population were also taken care of somehow.

THE POTENTIAL significance of the Russian air raids is that, in the long run, they may destroy Finland's economy or reduce its operations to the vanishing point, at the same time making it difficult for outside supplies to reach that nation.

It is not merely a matter of demoralizing civilian morale. What happened in Spain and China has made it quite clear that the morale of a civilian population cannot easily be broken by air raids, no matter how often repeated. But there can be no question whatever that such bombardments do result in a lowering of civilian efficiency and thus in a slowing up of economic life in the areas subjected to such terrorism from the air.

FROM THIS point of view it is far more important that the Red air raids in Finland last week involved no fewer than 141 localities than that the total dead and wounded were around 325.

Those who came out of these raids unscathed were not unaffected. Some of them lost their means of livelihood. For all inhabitants in the affected areas the raids involved the necessity of having to take to cover for a greater or lesser period and thus involved a certain loss of production.

In the long run, therefore, this other war which Russia is waging, a war not against soldiers but civilians, not against fortified positions but undefended towns, may prove decisive.

Russia can win that war not because her planes are good or her fliers so efficient but simply because if sufficient bombs are dropped on a sufficient number of places the cumulative damage will be enough to break Finland's capacity to fight on, even if her will remains unbroken. And in that war the Finns are as yet in no position to fight back. They lack the fighter planes needed to drive back the aerial invaders, the antiaircraft that might make the latter's operations costly.

In other words, the civilian relief which the Finns most desperately need is not so much from cold and hunger and exposure as from the death and destruction and demoralization that day after day rains down upon them from the skies and which is likely to increase rather than diminish as the weeks go on.

A. F. L. Plans Drive To Unionize 500,000 In Far West And South

Council Says Campaign Will Enter Fields Which Have Resisted Unionization, Including Teachers, White-Collar Workers

By the Associated Press

Miami, Fla., Feb. 6.—The American Federation of Labor announced today an organizing drive to enlist 500,000 new members by October, but denied the campaign was aimed at similar efforts of the rival C. I. O.

Emphasis will be placed on the Far West and South, but a statement by the federation's executive council said the campaign in general would be extended to all fields which have "hitherto resisted unionization."

In announcing the federation's program, President William Green said it was not in any way spurred by activities of the C. I. O., and that he did not believe it would result in any intensification of C. I. O. membership work.

Newspaper Field Included

Among fields upon which the federation plans to concentrate are textiles, retail trade, marine workers, office and white-collar workers, Government employes, teachers and "miscellaneous industries."

Included in the latter is the newspaper field, where Green said the federation already has some local chapters. He said no particular emphasis would be placed on organization among newspaper workers, but that "wherever the newspaper unions want to come into our federation, we will take them in."

Green said results of a recent meeting in Salt Lake City, when a five-State membership drive was launched to unionize workers in West Coast industries, had been "prompt and encouraging," and that the next major regional conference would be held in Atlanta, March 2.

Declaring that the Atlanta meeting would inaugurate "the widest organization campaign ever conducted in the South, Green said "more than 2,000 representatives of our unions in the South will attend."

"The South has made great industrial progress in recent years, but cheap labor still is stifling its economy," said the statement of the executive council. "We believe the time is ripe for teaching the workers of the South the benefits of self-organization."

"But," he added, "we realize that each section of the country has its own special problem. Therefore, local union leaders best familiar with these problems will be called upon to direct the drive in each locality with the full assistance of our national organizations!"

The council adopted a resolution calling upon Congress to increase by $800,000,000 annually the amount of loans authorized by the Government for slum clearance and rehousing projects and to increase by $45,000,000 annually the amount of annual grants for the upkeep of such projects.

Nicaraguan Firm Sued for $300,000

Portland, Me., Feb. 6 (AP).—A $300,000 Superior Court suit was filed today against the Ferrocarril del Pacificao de Nicaragua, a Maine corporation, named in the writ as an "instrumentality of the Nicaraguan government."

The action seeks $185,333 in legal fees claimed by the law firm of Miller & Chevalier, Washington, D. C., and the late George T. Weitzel, Washington lawyer, in an attempt to secure a "refund of monies paid or to be paid by the said defendant corporation as income and excess profit taxes to the United States Government."

New Zealand Air Line Favored

By International News Service

Permission for Pan-American Airways system to inaugurate its long-deferred commercial air service between San Francisco and New Zealand, via Honolulu, was recommended late yesterday in a trial examiner's report to the Civil Aeronautics Authority.

The report followed extensive hearings. If it is formally approved by the authority, the company will commence operations soon with fortnightly and later weekly flights to the Antipodes in 72-passenger flying boats.

It was during the hazardous surveys for this aerial route that the Samoa Clipper crashed into the Pacific in flames, killing Capt. Edwin C. Musick, China Clipper pioneer aviator, and crew members.

Establishment of the new route over the South Pacific was termed in the report a valuable adjunct to the national defense.

The new service would reduce travel time between the Pacific Coast and New Zealand from 21 days, as now required by fast steamer, to four days.

Passengers, mail and express would be carried. The Postoffice Department has already issued an estimate that the company might be expected to carry 4,268 pounds of outbound mail and 13,203 pounds of inbound mail, with a postal revenue of $234,177, annually.

New planes contemplated for the service are of the Yankee Clipper design, now in operation over the Atlantic route. They are 42-ton flying boats, mounting four giant motors, accommodating 40 passengers on night flights, and 72 on daytime flights.

The route would originate at Treasure Island, San Francisco Bay, and complete the flight to Honolulu on the first day; thence to Canton Island on the second day; to Noumea, New Caledonia, on the third, and into Auckland, New Zealand, on the fourth.

Though the company applied originally to include Los Angeles as a stop on the flight, this drew an adverse recommendation from the examiner, on the ground that city is connected with San Francisco by eight daily plane services, making a "shuttle" for clipper connections convenient and feasible.

The examiner's report is not final. Exceptions may be filed to it before the authority considers the case. The final decision of the authority, under the Civil Aeronautical Act, must be submitted to President Roosevelt before publication.

The Once Over

The St. Bernard

("The suit was brought against the railroad for refusing to let the couple take their St. Bernard dog along with them in a train drawing-room."—News item.)

Counsel—Now, then, what kind of dog was this?

Plaintiff—A St. Bernard.

Plaintiff—Without.

Counsel—I thought all St. Bernards carried casks of rum.

Plaintiff—This one was on vacation.

Plaintiff—The porter came in.

Counsel—Did he notice the St. Bernard?

Plaintiff—I'll say he did!

Counsel—WWhat did he say?

Plaintiff—He said: "Mr. Buck, you can't bring 'em back alive this way."

Counsel—What happened next?

Plaintiff—He got the conductor.

Counsel—Did the conductor put the dog out?

Plaintiff—No, he was too small for the job.

Judge—Couldn't he have called another conductor?

Plaintiff—Yes, but I threatened to call another dog.

Counsel—Did the conductor argue with you?

Plaintiff—He kept asking whether the dog got on with me or I got on with the dog. And he said the rules forbade animals riding except in the baggage car.

Judge—Why didn't you put this dog in the baggage car?

Plaintiff—Because they had to have room for the baggage.

Judge—There is the matter of public health. Do you consider it a healthful practice for dogs to ride with passengers?

Plaintiff—I have carried my dog on trains often, and never had him catch anything from a passenger yet.

Judge—But isn't there a limit to size? Couldn't you have offered to compromise with the conductor?

Plaintiff—How?

Judge—By agreeing to bring two small dogs instead of one big one.

Counsel—Was there any complaint from the passengers?

Plaintiff—Only from one man. He said the road had refused to let him bring his polo pony along, and he thought it was prejudice.

Film at Met. Falls Short of Stars' Merit; Eddie Duchin Orchestra Coming to Earle; News Notes and Gossip of the Theater

"MUSIC IN MY HEART." Columbia picturization of an original story and screen play by James Edward Grant, featuring Tony Martin and Rita Hayworth, with Edith Fellows, Alan Mowbray, Eric Blore, George Tobias, Joseph Crehan, George Humbert, Joey Ray, Don Brodie, Julieta Novis, Eddie Kane, Phil Tead, Marten Lamont and Andre Kostelanetz and his music. Directed by Joseph Santley. Reviewed Tuesday afternoon. At the Metropolitan Theater.

SOME TIME, no doubt, somebody will produce a picture that will do justice to Tony Martin as one of Hollywood's most agreeable singing actors. "Music in My Heart," which opened a week's engagement on the screen at the Metropolitan Theater yesterday, is not that picture.

BELL

Instead of this film play's doing him a favor, he does it one. Almost single-handedly he makes it everything that it is in the way of innocuous and tuneful entertainment. The credit would be all his, were it not for the introduction of Andre Kostelanetz and his admirable orchestra in the closing sequences of a screen fable that is feeble in story and deficient in production values, adroit direction and all of the elements of dramatic cohesion essential to sustained interest.

The "plot" is an unoriginal variation of the time-tested formula of the rich Park avenue socialite, in love with the obscure maiden who perceives a more worthy helpmeet in the handsome young singer who is threatened with the law, deportation and all manner of personal catastrophes. Both the millionaire and the refugee have hearts of gold and all that sort of thing. The girl in the case never seems to know on precisely which side her meager bread is buttered—except as prodded into alertness to her own best interests by the kid sister, who virtually "steals the show" from her.

It would be difficult to recall a time when Tony Martin has been more ingratiating on the screen. He sings five songs in what amounts to perfect voice and is as authentic a romantic figure throughout the action as his role will permit. Alan Mowbray and his "man's man," Eric Blore, do much for the whimsical comedy of the piece and Rita Hayworth, in whom Washington has a particular interest, is, again, as believable as her author and director have permitted her to be. The kid sister, who so nearly purloins the feminine honors—such as they are—right out from under her nose, is played with fine skill by Edith Fellows, one of the most generously blessed of the West Coast's younger actresses. Mr. Kostelanetz and his orchestra are highly melodious in the brief footages they are allowed.

The two short-reel subjects that do most to bolster the major feature at the Metropolitan this week are "Kennedy, the Great," a comedy in which Edgar Kennedy, the funster who made the "slow burn" famous, attempts to further his business interests by a display of doubtful skill as a magician, and "Skiing Technique," a pictorial lesson in what the elongated runners are all about. The composite newsreel is another item that will engage the interested attention of those who feel some anxiety over the present state of the world.

The flaming advocacy of the cause of the heroic Finns which has prompted Tallulah Bankhead, star of Lillian Heilman's "The Little Foxes," at the National this week, to donate her impressive basic salary of $1,000 per week to the Finnish relief fund, goes even farther than that. It has prompted the brilliant star of a bitter play to swell the fund's receipts by posting charming young women, recruited from the acting ranks of the Washington Civic Theater, in the lobby at each performance to solicit donations. On Monday night Lansing Hall occupied a position of conspicuous isolation as the only temptation of a generous pocketbook, but at all subsequent performances—and it will hold good throughout the week—three enticements to audience generosity will decorate the lobby of the National during the pre-curtain and entr'acte intervals. All will occupy seats during the performance of "The Little Foxes" as persona' guests of Miss Bankhead.

Eddie Duchin, eulogistically billed as "the magic piano fingers of radio," and his famous orchestra will headline the stage bill at the Warner Brothers Earle Theater the week of February 16. That billing is not entirely specious. Mr. Duchin, as must be known to everyone by now, plays an exceedingly mean piano. His coming should be good news to Marguerite "Babe" Parker, Southern representative of the Eddie Duchin Fan Club, and the ardent members of her organization. It comes as no pall upon the anticipations of some of the rest of us, as far as that goes.

They tell me that when I missed yesterday's preview screening of "Remember the Night," coming into Loew's Capitol Theater on Friday, my grippe germs and I ducked a heart-warming bit of sentimental tribute to the old home State. It seems that a deal of the action of this sprightly opus, costarring Fred MacMurray and Barbara Stanwyck, takes place in Indiana and that the recurrent theme song, which Mr. MacMurray insists be sung every whipstitch, is "Back Home in Indiana." The bugs and I will try to catch up on that, come Friday.

And speaking of Indiana, when the Variety Club barges into the fore with its 1940 luncheon season on February 14, St. Valentine's Day, in the small ballroom of the Willard, Paul V. McNutt will be guest of honor and principal speaker. The Hon. Mr. McNutt, in more ways than one, is the fair-haired boy of the Hoosiers. The luncheon, incidentally, will be open to the distaff Varieteers, as well as the membership's weaker gender.

'End of a Day,' French Film, Opens at Little

Story of Aging Actors Is Brilliantly Played and Directed

By Richard L. Coe.

Because it is a distinctive story, brilliantly directed, adroitly acted, "The End of a Day," the Little Theater's new French importation, should be a signal for dancing in the streets, for fireworks in the evening.

With that curious blend of realism and sentiment that one seems to find only in Gallic films, Julien Duvivier's latest directorial triumph manages to be strangely gay about that impending tragedy that awaits us all, old age.

That to grow old is too bad, this story of a home for retired actors does not deny. But with the many ways of achieving age, it is both humorously and powerfully concerned. That it has a setting hitherto unmined for film purposes makes it all the more fascinating.

The actors, some great, some small, all spend their quiet days reliving their real and their unrealized triumphs. In a magnificently inventive shot, Director Duvivier takes his camera around the old abbey, which has become the actors' home, during the stillness of the night. Silence is everywhere until the sleeping rooms are neared and there the sound track picks up the thunders of applause, the "bravos," the "encores" with which the performers' dreams are sweetened while the camera's eye follows its realistic course. The effect would be impossible in any other medium than that of the talking picture; its use makes one fully conscious of the imaginative heights to which the cinema may rise.

A Memorable Figure

One of the actors is a character that remains indelible long after the film is over. He never did perform at all. An understudy who never got his chance, this elderly chatterer asks only that his fellows listen to him, not that they believe him. He feels that "to be serious is to be resigned, to be resigned is to grow old, and to grow old is against my nature." And when this fellow's chance to play does come, his reward is the appreciation of his fellows. Michel Simon's understanding playing brings this contradictory figure joyously to life.

Louis Jouvet is the matinee idol who falls into the haven, a Don Juan to the end, the pitiable rogue about whom the story revolves. Victor Francen, as an "actor's actor" who was never fully appreciated by the public, contributes a thoughtful, telling portrayal, and Madeleine Ozeray is charming as the young girl who feeds the vanity of the aging Don Juan. The other figures in the drama are individually and finely drawn, while the subtitles catch much of the wit that is in the French dialogue. "The End of a Day" is film-making at its best.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Feb. 6.

Talked with Warner Baxter the other day on "Earthbound" set—a picture in which Baxter dies and as an invisible man heckles his mourners at his own funeral services. Seems to me Leo Dietrichstein did that in a play years ago, which was a huge success. Leaning on his "coffin" he remarked how relieved he felt because this is the last picture he'll make for Fox after 12 years on the same lot. "I'm tired," he sighed, "mentally exhausted. The emotional strain of living through scenes like this one of playing a dead man take so much out of you. I'll never make more than two pictures a year again. You know, Hedda," he added, "I'm not so young any more, and when I see friends dropping right and left from heart failure I wonder what it's all about, why we keep punching away at top speed and think we're an exception to the rule of burning the candle at both ends." Warner wanted to forget it by taking a trip to the Orient—his wife talked him out of it. So they're going to sail around South America way. I asked him if he'd, like giving up acting to direct. "Not me," said Warner, "if there's anything more nerve-wracking than acting it's directing!"

HOPPER

Baronova's work in "Florian" was so good that Winnie Sheehan rushed her back for additional scenes to fatten her part . . . Talking about fat, Andy Devine wires he's reduced from 280 to 268 and will continue reducing because his favorite mount, Audrey, the Palamino he rode in "Buck Benny Rides Again," can't take him . . . Darryl Zanuck liked Alice Armand (one of John Power's famous magazine cover girls) so much in "Blue Bird" he gave her Alice Faye's sister in "Lillian Russell" . . . And Mrs. Sime Silverman, widow of the beloved founder of Variety, should be technical director on that since she was a great pal of Russell's . . .

New York, Feb. 6.

BERNT BALCHEN, who was Commander Byrd's pilot, was in El Morocco Saturday night, and stated that he returned to America to buy 400 planes for Finland. "I'll buy them from anybody who'll sell," he announced . . . Balchen is a naturalized American, and was relieved to learn of the President's announcement that American volunteers for Finland won't lose their citizenship. He's been instructing Finland's aviators—and participated in 12 air battles there.

IMPORTANT legislation concerning the development of Alaska by European settlers will be introduced by Congress this week . . . Harold Ickes will attack Tom Dewey's economy plea, in a forthcoming magazine piece. One of the items involved will be the new Criminal Courts Building, in New York City . . . Maki and Nurmi, the Finnish runners, will be sent to Palm Springs before they race. Maki is suffering from rheumatic pains . . . Ralph Hitz, who was the foremost hotel man in this country, left practically no estate. His best friend, Seymour Weiss, has vowed to provide for any of Hitz's needy relatives . . . Dewey is trying to link Waxey Gordon to the current Lepke trial.

TO A FAMOUS actor's home in Hollywood came an impoverished vaudevillian who reminded: "I'm Mason, of Clark & Mason. Remember me? We played the Pan-time together, in vaudeville 20 years ago" . . . "Of course," said the actor, "I'm delighted to see you." Mason then confessed that he was broke, and that his wife and three children were starving. "Too bad. I'm sorry about that, consoled the actor—and slipped a $10 bill into his pocket . . . The pleased vaudevillian brought the bill to his wife, who assured him it wasn't enough to provide for their immediate needs—and so he went to Al Jolson's elegant house. "Remember me, Al? We played the Pan-time" "No," snapped Al. "What do you want?" . . . "My family's starving," Mason sighed . . . "Then why come to me with the story?" Jolson shouted—turned to his valet, and said: "Joe, give the bum 500 bucks and throw him out."

Mayor LaGuardia has requested the SEC's monopoly committee to investigate fire-insurance rates in New York, with a view to having them reduced . . . Paul V. McNutt wrote a new article for the American Mercury, and called it "If the Improbable Happens." The editors changed the title to "If the Republicans Win" . . . Poultney Bigelow, who sailed to Holland last week to see the Kaiser, didn't reveal the full contents of Wilhelm's letter. Wilhelm wrote that he was lonely, that he had no friends there—and hoped that Bigelow would be the peace-mediator in Europe . . . George Jessel is arranging to bring Miami's Royal Palm show to Broadway.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT complained to some dinner guests that when "Gone With the Wind" was shown at the White House he was in the room next door, trying to write a speech—and that the booming of the cannon, during the fall-of-Atlanta sequence, distracted him for a long time . . . "Don't say that," Mrs. Roosevelt cautioned, "it might get back" . . . "Get back to whom?" returned the President, "to Gen. Sherman?"

AUGUST HELFIELD, the New York correspondent for a chain of Nazi papers, gave a party at his home here Saturday night . . . In the midst of the celebration, the sofa caught fire—and Helfeld shouted: "What'll I do?" . . . "If this is an American party—throw water," a newspaperman suggested. "If it's a Nazi party—throw books."

SENATOR BURTON K. WHEELER is very much pleased at the support being given him by John L. Lewis. "I smoked my first 25-cents cigar last week," Wheeler boasted. "Lewis gave it to me" . . . . Gov. Keen Johnson, of Kentucky, is letting his friends know that he's serious about reducing the cost of operating his State government. Even for personal letters, Johnson uses the stationery of his predecessor, Happy Chandler, puts a line through Chandler's name, and substitutes his own.

MR. AND MRS. Nelson Rockefeller were at a dinner party last week with Mr. and Mrs. Ernst Lubitsch, Sam Behrman and others . . . Mrs. Rockefeller discussed a big-game hunt in which she had participated, in Africa—and described the manner in which sportsmen shoot tigers . . . "By the way," Mrs. Rockefeller suddenly interrupted herself, careful about any possible proletarian sensibilities, "I hope I'm not stepping on anybody's toes in telling about this,"

Louella O. Parsons

Hollywood, Feb. 6 (INS).—You'll see Edward G. Robinson as Benjamin Franklin as soon as he finishes "That Man Reuter." The assignment to prepare the script has been handed John Huston with William Dieterle, named as director. Franklin, in addition to being an inventor and philosopher, had quite a way with the ladies and was a colorful figure at the Court of St. James' when he went there as the first United States Ambassador to England. Eddie will soon be making Paul Muni look to his laurels with these biographies.

LOUELLA PARSONS

In Robinson's "Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet," an outstanding character is Albert Basserman. I was so impressed with him, although his part is not a big one, that I asked Hal Wallis for information. Basserman was one of Germany's greatest actors and Was given the Iffland Ring, which for 150 years has been handed to Germany's greatest actor. When he left his native land, a refugee, he buried the ring in Moisse's grave because he felt that German art and culture are dead.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Eddie Goulding is critically ill with double pneumonia at the Good Samaritan Hospital; the love interest in Eddie Hillman's life these days is his former wife, the former Lady June Inverclyde; Charles Laughton, having paid Uncle Sam his back income tax, has bought himself a house in Bel Air; the Natalie Draper-Randy Scott romance looks very serious and you needn't be surprised if Randy gets a divorce from the duPont heiress. They've been separated for months; Ida Lupino and Robert Coote celebrated their joint birthdays Saturday night. Ida's bridegroom, Louis Hayward, arrived very late, being detained because of an injury. If he is better, he and Joan Bennett will travel to Sun Valley to take ski scenes for the "Son of Monte Cristo."

Miriam Hopkins, who has been in New York for several weeks, celebrated her homecoming with a cocktail party Sunday; the Jules Steins are taking a party to the Ambassador tonight for Guy Lombardo's opening; Jock Lawrence, popular member of Sam Goldwyn's staff, is very ill at the Good Samaritan with flu; Lucille Watson, who is on her way to Hollywood, has just obtained her citizenship papers (she is a Canadian). Artie Shaw, Betty Grable's past big moment, at Earl Carroll's with Judy Garland; Mary Carlisle in a ringside seat with James Blakely; Mrs. Freeman Gosden (Amos of Amos 'n' Andy has been very ill: Paulette Goddard and Charlie Chaplin buying an ice cream soda in a Beverly Hills drug store and not being recognized by a soul; Fannie Brice, whose hobby is interior decorating, lending Lola Lane a hand.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow.

Your Figure Madame!

By Ida Jean Kain

Mother of Four Revives Perfect Fgiure at 34

By Ida Jean Kain

SINCE the first of February is often a bleak period for the new year's reducers this seems to be the psychological time to pass on a letter. This one is from a busy Toronto housewife and mother of four children who has done a wonderful job of remaking her figure.

"It is just and proper," she writes, "that we should look back on the past year and take stock of the promises we made ourselves. My foremost resolution last year was to achieve a beautiful figure. Thanks to your daily guide of diet and exercise, I have achieved it—or, so people tell me!"

1939 MEASUREMENTS — Bust, 32 inches; waist, 29 inches; hips, 38 inches.

1940 MEASUREMENTS — Bust, 32 inches; waist, 25 inches; hips, 33 inches.

Her weight was 133 pounds and now is 116 pounds, perfect for her height of 5 feet 2 inches, medium frame!

Life a Glorious Adventure

This remade woman is 34 years of age. She confides that her husband is very proud of her—and that "life is just one glorious adventure." And if her record isn't enough challenge to you, the closing words of her letter are: "Come on mothers! Let's show the younger generation we have what it takes!"

The Canadian Venus now has a waist of 10 inches smaller than the bust, and the bust and hips measure the same. That is a better figure than many of the movie stars can boast She did what I am sure you will agree was a perfect job of remodeling. With the loss of only 17 pounds, she took four inches off the waist and three off the hipline. But the most astonishing thing about her program is the fact that she developed a scanty bust and chest contour by three inches while reducing the other two measurements.

Exercise Helps

There are a great many women whose figures would improve markedly for the same type of exercise program. When your exercise time is limited, the use of a stretching bar will enable you to double up on your exercises and to get results quickly. The bar should be firmly fixed in a doorway so that you can reach it when standing on the toes. This height affords stretch without strain. The following exercise is a complete figure program—it slims waists and hips, improves the thighs, and strengthens the pectoral muscles supporting the bust:

Position: Standing on tiptoes, hands grasping bar, palms turned forward.

Movement: From this position, flex the right knee, swing it around to the right side, and then straighten the leg out in back with a high kick from the hip. Repeat five times, then repeat with the other leg the same number of times.

It's Watermelon Pink for Glamorous Make-up

Subtle, misty pinks and subdued reds are the harbingers of new cosmetic colors for spring. Delicate pinks are correlated to harmonize with the prevailing romantic mode in frocks and accessories. Naturalness is the keynote of the pink family, which includes "sky blue pink," "hot pink" and "pink mist." For those who demand more vividness there are reds of every hue ranging from the brilliant, militant "cockade" (for the red, white and blue motifs) to the gentle luscious "watermelon red" that is a perfect background for the new pastel woolens. For the most part the reds are true, not diluted with yellow, blue or purple as in previous years

Provincial Style Furniture Can Be Refined

Type Varies in Different Nations, Except in Simplicity

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

THE TERM provincial is heard frequently in furniture talk these days, and a lot of people have confused ideas about its meaning. They're justified, for it is used so broadly as to be applied to many very different types of furniture.

Properly, it denotes the popular everyday furniture of a country as contrasted to the formal elegant modes from which it derives its themes. Thus it is a term that must be qualified by French provincial, Spanish provincial.

Often the term "peasant furniture" is used in place of provincial, and in some countries that is an accurate enough description. But in other countries the every-day furniture had far more refinement and sophistication than the term peasant implies.

Provincial furniture in any country is a simplified livable version of the prevailing fashions, usually stripped of its pretenses and foreign flavor. But it doesn't change as often as do the more elegant styles, and manages always to be a more revealing portrait of the national character than the grander fashions in furnishings.

In this country, we are most familiar with American provincial furniture of course, though we more familarly call it early American or Colonial. It is the staunch New England pioneer furniture that we generally mean, but of more recent years we've been discovering the Pennsylvania Dutch styles, the Shaker designs from the Middle West, California Spanish, Louisiana French and other localized provincial styles of interest.

There has been, from time to time, a vogue here for English provincial or English cottage furniture as it is also called. There's a hearty mood about these pieces that blend well with our British tradition of living. There's more of a peasant quality to the provincial furniture from Sweden, Switzerland, Austria, Italy—a gay, bright informal spirit that is delightful in a casual little house or for certain rooms.

Ilka Chase Makes Innovation in Fashion Commenting; Eliminates Sugary Descriptions

New York, Feb. 6.

NEWSREEL and short picture comments are pretty cut and dried. Of course, we probably like some voices better than others, but the content is serious and routine. It has taken a girl, and a mighty smart one, to bring something absolutely new to that busy field. Her name, one that is probably well known to you, is Ilka Chase.

ILKA CHASE

She has made her unique contribution to such film commentary in the lovely technicolor fashion forecasts produced by the clever Vyvyan Donner. Ilka's mother is the extremely able Mrs. Edna Woolman Chase, editor of one of the famous high-style monthly magazines. Thus Ilka was brought up in an atmosphere that reeked with fashion, and soon turned to the stage for her own career. She has appeared in many a play and some films. It was she that created on the stage the catty vixen in "The Women."

Unless one has heard her in these colored fashion pictures before, one is apt to be taken completely off guard. Especially the men, who like these reels because they project dozens of the town's loveliest models, in all their dental body, and often in 6-ounce bathing suits. Accustomed as we are to straight commenting in these matters, Mlle. Chase throws us off guard with her witty and irreverent cracks between descriptions of the clothes. She ribs the models delightfully and with no malice, and emits many a nifty about the scenes through which they parade to exhibit the new duds. The other day I heard Ilka do one on a collection of play suits, shorts and infinitesimal bathing suits that was a perfect honey.

Ilka's a swell actress, as well. But if she should be best remembered as that witty girl who talks for the fashion reels, it would be strange, but eminently fitting. As I say, that contribution is unique.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Two high school girls from Worcester, Mass., wanted to see Broadway. So Mildred Vincent and Rita Ringer, each 15, quietly grabbed a bus and arrived to see the noted, or sometimes notorious, street. Worcester cops communicated with our own constables, and careful checking permitted them to tell the very hour of the bus' arrival. Two coppers in a radio car went to the bus station and, sure enough, there were the kids. Officer Lowery went up to them and called them by name, much to their astonishment. "We're just tired of school and wanted to see Broadway," said one. Therefore, the gentlemanly gendarmes put them in the radio car and drove slowly up Broadway, so the girls could have their hearts' desire. Then they were quietly harbored in a safe spot until relatives could arrive and take them home.

Ideas to Furnish Woman's Closet

A woman's closet needs a high rod so that long dresses can be hung there without sweeping the floor, and a shelf or cabinet for plenty of shoes. She'll need lots of high shelves for keeping boxes of this and that, along with as many small drawer cabinets and cubbyhole cabinets as can be fit in.

The most luxurious thing is to line the walls and shelves with quilted satin and add a flowered hooked rug for the floor and plastic boxes for hats, blouses, blankets and so on with tops of a flowered design. But if quilted satin is beyond the budget, then wall paper can achieve a pretty effect—a striped paper to use with flowered boxes and cabinets or a flowered paper with plain covered accessories. And clear plastic hangers and a plastic ring for a fur piece.

For the closet that's to be shared, more ingenuity is required in planning—to fit in the needed elements for both occupants.

Today's Health Talk

Divided Diet, Light Meals Advisable for Stomach Ulcer

"Please send me a diet list for one who has ulcer of the stomach."

Answer—The best plan is a divided diet, small meals and often. Separate eating from drinking. Avoid the three S's—Sweet, Sour, Spice. Avoid candy, pastries, soggy foods of all kinds—puddings and soggy desserts. Avoid fried meats and fatty meats, such as fat fish. Cereals, such as rice and oatmeal, should be boiled three or four hours before eating. Never use white bread except the crust, or have it toasted. The best food for you is lean, tender meat broiled, such as the breast of lean, young chicken, steak, roast beef or lean fish and oysters. Cream vegetable soup, mashed potatoes, peas, beans, well-cooked cereals, eggs in any form and milk and cream. A glass of half milk and half cream taken with meals and in the middle of the morning, middle of the afternoon and before going to bed will give you a great deal of relief. This diet will be excellent for your bowels.

"What is Addison's anemia?"

Answer: Thomas Addison, of Guy's Hospital, London, described the anemia that was afterward called pernicious anemia. It is no longer called pernicious because it can be cured with liver.

"Is there any home treatment for pyorrhea? Will salt used on the toothbrush harden the gums?"

Answer: Pyorrhea of mild grade can be treated at home. The object should be to harden the edges of the gum by hard rotary brushing with a small, stiff brush. Salt is a good dentifrice and will harden the gums. If pyorrhea has got to the place where there is pus formation and tartar, it is advisable to seek expert treatment from a dentist.

There Are More Than White and Brown Sauces

THE INCOMPARABLE "Tilda" of the funnies says: "There's many a live wire around that would be dead except for its connections." The same is true with many foods, they would be "dead", unless enlivened with a zestful sauce. Gourmets agree that plain melted butter, as a sauce, is tops with angelic morsels such as grilled lobster. Sweet, unsalted butter is best for melting. For a bland, creamy sauce it has no superior and with toothsome additions it can be made into herb, fish, egg and piquant, sauces. The following are the ingredients added to make the different types of sauces:

Fish Sauce: By stirring in a little anchovy essence, or mixing smooth with an equal quantity of flour, adding fish stock, stirring for 5 minutes while cooking and seasoning at the finish.

Piquant Sauce: By adding wine, tomato juice, onion juice, any sort of condiment or table sauce—for seafood, spaghetti, broiled meat or fish, baked and boiled vegetables, eggs, rice, etc.

Paris' very own sauce is Bercy Sauce, taking its name for the local market of Bercy, always lavishly stocked with foodstuffs. The following is a recipe for making this sauce that may be used with eggs, fish, calf's liver and many other foods:

Bercy Sauce

Simmer 3 chopped shallots or 1 small onion in 1½ cups white wine. Add ¼ cup melted butter and beat thoroughly. Stir in 1 teaspoon minced parsley and the juice of ½ lemon. Season with salt and pepper to taste.

The Gentler Sex

By MALVINA LINDSAY

R.S.V.P.

DEAR MRS. TWITTERLY: I have received your invitation for the evening of Friday, February 9, and shall be glad to accept, provided you return to me in the next mail the following questionnaire satisfactorily answered:

Will I be assured of a seat the entire evening—on something other than a gilt chair?

Will there be adequate mirror facilities in your powder room or your bedrooms for my primping, so that I will not have to engage in an elbowing contest with the feminine guests?

Will you promise not to introduce me as "Miss Gink, of Cheatham," or "Miss Gink who collects feather dusters," or "The Miss Gink I have been telling you about?"

Will you guarantee that I will not have to work a puzzle, complete a short story, undergo a historical quiz, or be subjected to any public intelligence test?

Will you also guarantee that I will not have to "pick cherries," turn handsprings, stand on my head, do a strip tease or other stunt for the entertainment of the guests?

Will you promise that if I am stuck forever in a corner with Mr. X (or Mrs. X) that you will extricate me?

Will you make your introductions so distinctly that I will not have to address those I meet as Mr. or Mrs. "Uh-Uh" all evening?

Will you have among your guests any man who feels violently about politics; who has recently taken a long motor trip; who has just won a law case; put over a deal or made a golf hole in one; who has just heard a new one about the two Eskimos; or who in early life had an "unusual" experience in Lima, Ohio, or Independence, Kans.?

Will you have any woman guest who has just taken her first plane trip; who has recently been in a hospital; who has been trailed by a strange man; who has just been to see "Gone With the Wind," who has inherited a family antique; who has just heard of a new diet; who has enlisted in a new cause; or has had someone tell her that she is uttrely fascinating to men?

Will you make it possible for me to get my refreshments without standing interminably in a breadline?

Will I be able to eat them at a table—sitting down?

Will you serve any meat that cannot be cut with a fork? Will you serve anything out of a casserole?

Wil your waiters—if any—have regard for my safety of life and limb—also my cleaning bills?

Will you have any guests more important that myself and if so, will they leave shortly after arriving so that I will not have to stick around all night if I don't feel so inclined?

Will I be able to depart when I get ready without being made to feel that I am a killjoy for not remaining in a state of coma until 3 a. m.?

Will you have enough places where wraps may be deposited that I will not have to engage in a football scrimmage to get my coat?

If I wear a hat will I be able to find it—somewhere else than squashed behind the radiator or in with the victrola records?

Will you have the attitude of having bestowed a gracious favor upon me by making it possible for me to get a free helping of creamed shrimps, brick ice cream and coffee—after midnight?

Have you ever heard the old adage, "Eight's company and ten's too loud?" Yours respectfully,

GUSSIE GINK.

Silver Polisher

Just heard of a new cloth that keeps silver from tarnishing because the cloth itself has silver threads which monopolize the tarnishing elements in the air and keep them from reaching your silver at all. It's guaranteed for 5 years, but is said to last even longer.

Baste Slip Covers

When there's neither time nor talent to make a form fitting slip cover and the budget won't stand the strain of a custom-made job, buy a cheap ready-made slip cover, then fit and baste it snugly on the chair in question. If you take pains you can make it look as if it were tailored to fit instead of like the covered wagons most "boughten" slip covers resemble.

Mainbocher Sees 'Fashionable '40s' In Women's Wear

The next decade will go down in history as the "fashionable '40's" if women apply the same science to their dressing as they do to modern makeup, predicts Mainbocher, American-born creator of Paris fashions.

The designer who created the corseted silhouette of '39 would help matters along by furnishing a 12-point plan for chic. It follows:

1. You can be pretty, beautiful, lovely and be careless about your appearance, but you can never be chic unless you are well groomed.
2. That's why no lazy woman is ever chic.
3. Money will never take the place of time, taste and thought.
4. It is impossible to be chic unless all the accessories you wear make a perfect ensemble—that means the right dress, hat, shoes, gloves, bag, jewelry, coiffure and scent.
5. Chic is as much what you don't wear as what you do wear, because an overdressed woman is like an overfilled glass, rather messy.
6. That's why you must wear clothes that you don't understand, or you will find yourself being taken for a fashion ride.
7. A slapdash, rough and ready attitude toward fashion can easily make you into a caricature of chic.
8. Beware of the theatrical, which so easily leads to "ham" chic.
9. Never forget that chic can be acquired.
10. Chic is independent of age.
11. Chic is never independent of

Garner Votes Swinging To Hull, Society Hears

Gossip Over Teacups at Mrs. Byron's Reception and Mrs. Distler's Party Hints Vandenberg Would Settle for Cabinet Post

By Hope Ridings Miller.

AMAZING—HOW MUCH gossip trained ears can pick up over the teacups. Yesterday, when the final pre-Lenten whirl had Capitalites out in droves for two large teas, I heard enough table talk—political and otherwise—to fill many columns. Not that I intend to use it—not all, anyway.

HOPE R. MILLER

Out at Mrs. William D. Byrons' reception, where cave-dwellers in droves mixed with official big-wigs, diplomats and shoals of Marylanders, rumors were flying as thick and fast as at a political convention. And later, at the mammoth tea and cocktail party given by Mr. and Mrs. Walter George Distler at the 1925 F Street Club, "have-you-heards" and "do-you-believe-thats" were voiced in muted tones all over the place and were invariably followed by off-the-record bits.

To get down to brass tacks, in a little over two hours at both parties, I heard that:

The Hull-for-President campaign is gathering support in the Congressional contingent hitherto pledged lock, stock and barrel to Vice President Garner.

Capitol Hill leaders who have been proclaiming loudly that Roosevelt won't run again are now admitting they "aren't sure."

Senator Vandenberg, whose Presidential campaign is well under way, would just as soon settle for a Cabinet job—especially that of Secretary of State.

Topflight members of the National Republican Committee are saying firmly, but quietly, and in the bosom of the family, "Looks like the tickets had better be Taft and Dewey."

If the President takes out for a third term, his running mate will be Attorney General Robert H. Jackson. If the President doesn't run, the Democratic ticket will be either Hull and Farley, or Hull and Wheeler.

Postmaster General James A. Farley made a significant statement in referring to Cactus Jack as "sturdy, stalwart John Nance Garner" at the Democratic shindig on Monday.

Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller—one of the inimitable "Guffey Girls"—threw a cog into the Democratic women's machine yesterday when, at a luncheon for the Democratic National Committee Women at the Democratic Club, she made a long and detailed speech, saying exactly nothing, and managed totally to ignore Mrs. Dorothy McAllister, head of the Women's Division, National Democratic Committee.

A Supreme Court Justice of liberal leanings declared at a recent dinner party—"The Republicans have got to decide—not so much who they want as what they want."

Many Notables At Byron Party

Well, so much for what I heard. As to whom I saw—well, let's take the Byron party first, as it was well under way an hour before the Distler fete started.

One of Washington's most popular official hostesses, Mrs. Byron has a flair for entertaining that is as rare as it is delightful. Always at her house, whether the party is large or small, guests generally come early and linger long after the last cup of tea is poured.

Decidedly on the larger side was yesterday afternoon's reception, which is the first of two Mrs. Byron has planned for this season. For well over two hours, many members of topflight Washington and Maryland society called at the Byron residence to enjoy the party. The hostess, becomingly turned out in turquoise faille taffeta, fashioned floor length with a flaring skirt and a short jacket, wore a scarlet camellia in her hair and a matching one at her throat, received informally in the drawing room. The residence at 2400 Wyoming avenue, which the Byrons have taken for the season, is admirably suited for a gathering such as the one that filled the spacious rooms yesterday.

An open fire crackled in the living room, where punch was served and guests collected in interesting groups. Representative Byron, who was here, there and everywhere, found many male friends in the company, which was both lively and interesting.

When I stepped into the dining room where Goodloe ancestral portraits (Mrs. Byron's mother was a Goodloe) decorate the walls, a gay company had assembled. Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg, wearing a smart green ensemble, was pouring tea, and Mrs. Russell Train was at the coffee urn. A few minutes later, Mrs. James F. Mitchell slipped into Mrs. Vandenberg's place, and Mrs. George Thorpe took over the coffee service. Meanwhile, the drawing room and the music room were moving masses of social and official notables.

Chinese Envoy Among Guests

To mention but a few I saw there: The Chinese Ambassador, Dr. Hu-Shih, had guests gathered around him during the entire time he remained. Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne was telling friends she will be off for New York today and will go from there to Philadelphia to visit Mrs. Lewis Emery. Mrs. Gilbert Hitchcock was taking her turn at the tea table and rushing away to get to another party and then a dinner. Mrs. Dorothy Trevor, of La Jolla, Calif., was a center of much attention. Looking like a model from Vogue, was Mrs. Thomas Hardinge, of Hagerstown, Md., whose frock of gray and chartreuse was one of the prettiest there.

Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone was among the guests; also Edward Van Devanter, who seemed to know everybody; Mrs. Samuel Conner, who had on the snappiest off-the-face hat I have seen lately; Mrs. Emil Hurja also assisting later at Mrs. Distler's party; Mrs. Loren Johnson, Mrs. McCeney Werlich, Mrs. Henry D. Flood, and scores from the Congressional contingent. Among the earlier arrivals was pretty and popular Mrs. Charles Edison, who had a full afternoon of calls ahead of her, and Mrs. Robert Brennan, wife of the Irish Minister, later going on to Mrs. Ralph Brewster's "at home."

Meanwhile, the Distler party was going full speed ahead with one of the most representative gatherings of Washingtonians that I have seen since the President's birthday ball drew them out by the hundreds. The hostess received in the drawing room. Mrs. Distler was smartly turned out in bright red crepe, cut on flowing lines with a brief jacket incrusted with gold. Matching earrings and a white orchid corsage completed her costume.

While a two-piece orchestra played a series of lively selections, the company collected in the dining room, which was crowded to the walls for well over two hours. To mention but a few I saw there were Mrs. Jean Bello, mother of Jean Harlow, who appeared in a gray frock with chinchilla sleeves and a gray crepe crownless turban, and almost stole the show; and Msgr. O'Dwyer and Msgr. Buckey, who were completely surrounded from the minute they entered until they left; Mrs. Meredith Howard, and her twin-sister, Mrs. Lou Wertheimer, of California, who were telling everybody their other sister, Mary Howard, featured player in "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," "is not a twin." There were Mrs. Edward Everett ("Dolly") Gann and Mrs. Thad Brown; Mrs. Abner Drury, looking as if she might have hailed straight from Hollywood, and her sister, Mrs. John J. Shugrue, who is attractive enough also to have come from the film city. There were Dr. and Mrs. William A. Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Langlais, William ("Shorty") Lipscomb, up from the Virginia hunt country, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hill, Col. and Mrs. Harrison Brand, jr., Dr. and Mrs. John Lyon, George Williams, Pendleton Hogan, Mrs. Duke Shoop, Mrs. Stephen Early, arriving with Mrs. George Holmes; Mrs. James Wright, Joe Tumulty, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ship, the latter of whom resembles Baroness von Pagnehardt, who was there also with Baron Pagnehardt, and Royal McKenna, who looks enough like Thomas Ship to pass for his twin.

Assisting the hostess were Mrs. Robert V. Fleming, Mrs. Royal McKenna, Mrs. C. H. Pope, Mrs. John F. Crosby, Mrs. Jay Hayden, Mrs. Irene Caldwell, Mrs. Mae Hamilton, Mrs. Jay Hayden, Mrs. Everett Sanders, Mrs. A. M. Nevius, Mrs. Robert Cahill, Mrs. Fred Britten, Mrs. Chilman Hendrick, Mrs. John F. Crosby, Mrs. Lov Henderson, and several others.

White Roses Fill St. Matthew's Cathedral For Ceremonies Performed by Rev. Mr. Moran; Jack Dempsey Is Among the Guests

St. Matthew's Cathedral was massed with white roses for the wedding there yesterday morning at 11 o'clock of Miss Rosemary Turner, daughter of Mrs. Arthur Gordon Turner, of Washington, and the late Mr. Turner, to Brien McMahon, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. McMahon, of South Norwalk, Conn. The Rev. Joseph Moran officiated.

The bride wore a gown of white Chantilly lace made with sweetheart neck, and fashioned over white satin. Her tulle veil fell from a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Her aunt, Mrs. Sylvia Brainerd Kauffmann, was matron of honor, attired in chalimar chiffon with an aqua hat, veil trimmed, and carrying pink roses. There were four bridesmaids, Miss Eileen McMahon, sister of Mr. McMahon; Miss Marie Robinson, Miss Dorothy Fleharty and Miss Mary Holmes Clark. Miss McMahon and Miss Robinson wore aqua chiffon and carried Johanna Hill roses and the other two were dressed in pink chiffon and carried bouquets of Talisman roses.

Jack Dempsey Steals Reception Show

Dr. William H. McMahon was best man, and the ushers were Dr. John D. McMahon, Richard J. Connor, Alfons Landa, Arthur Gordon Turner, brother of the bride, Gordon Dean and Walter E. Gallagher.

Jack Dempsey, the former champion, stole the show at the reception in the main ballroom of the Mayflower. He came to Washington from New York especially to attend the wedding.

Several There From Out of Town

Mr. and Mrs. McMahon, sr., came here for the wedding. Other out out-of-town guests were Miss Anna Cornell, and Mr. and Mrs. John McGinn, of Norwalk; Miss Agnes W. O'Brien, of Brooklyn, and Mr. and Mrs. Amos Gerard, of South Norwalk.

The bride attended Holton Arms School and George Washington University. Mr. McMahon, a graduate of Fordham University and Yale University Law School, was formerly Assistant Attorney General of the United States. He is now practicing law here.

Chilean Counselor Fetes Secretary

The Counselor of the Chilean Embassy and Senora de Gazitua entertained at dinner last night for the newly appointed First Secretary and Senora de Rodriguez.

In the company were the Chief of the Division of American Republics of the State Department and Mrs. Laurence Duggan, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Briggs, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burke, Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Bonsal, Mr. and Mrs. Newbold Walmsley, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Drew, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Pearson and Robert Woodward.

Sail Loft Assumes Ante-Bellum Guise For Charity Event

By Carolyn Bell.

A SET that would have put Hollywood to shame, dazzled the eyes of those attending the Navy Relief Ball at the Navy Yard last evening. The Sail Loft has been disguised in a score of ways since the innovation of this always gala charity ball but last night's pre-Civil War dress was tops.

"Just a bit of old Charleston" was how Mrs. Charles M. Hartigan modestly described the galaxy. With Mrs. Oscar Badger, she executed the completely charming set. Stepping from the elevator on to the "deck," Mrs. Roosevelt, who arrived shortly after 10 o'clock, must have been amazed with the beauty of it all.

Mrs. Roosevelt wore a stunning plum crepe dress, very decollete, trimmed in bands of gold. The gown was cut on simple lines with a crisscross of gold from the neckline to the waist. Completing her ensemble was an ermine wrap trimmed in white fox.

The old southern mansion, with its stately white pillars, fooled more than one person, for although the doors and windows were simply "appliqued on," any number of people tried to go in. However a buffet supper later in the evening, was served through the side windows.

Admirals Are 'Dime a Dozen'

Real Spanish moss, flown here especially for the occasion from the Carolinas, was festooned about and trees "grew" in the bricked-in garden of the colonial home. Vines (artificial) were twined about the trellises erected at various intervals along the brick wall. Completing this realistic picture of the old South were the slave quarters and stables. Amusing horseshoes had been tacked over each stall.

Admirals, complete with gold braid, were a dime a dozen last night. With their ladies they wandered from their boxes through "Charleston," often stopping at the milk bar. Street lamps illuminated the way to the bar, where bonnie milkmaids and bartenders, with mustaches, held sway.

After greeting a number of guests Mrs. Roosevelt found her way to the box in the large ballroom, where she joined the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Charles Edison. Chic as always was diminutive Mrs. Edison wearing a white angel-skin frock banded in fuchsia and apple green about the bodice and decked with opalescent sequins. The Edisons had come on to the ball from a dinner party given by the Brazilian Ambassador and Senhora de Martins.

Several Parties Precede Ball

Milkmaids dashed about in their fetching costumes and a bevy of pretty cigarette girls had donned costumes, rumored to be those worn by the Atlanta beauties at the premiere of "Gone With the Wind." At any rate they were definitely picturesque in the frocks, replete with cunning pantalettes.

Miss Betty McBride entertained at a buffet supper at her home preceding the ball for the cigarette girls. She was gowned in a china blue silk sprigged with pink roses and trimmed in lace. The gowns were all made with off the shoulder decolletage and tremendous hoop skirts.

Among the girls attending the summer, who later tried their hand at selling cigarettes were, Miss Alice Barry, whose gown was of yellow silk, printed with pink roses; Miss Ann Wilkinson, another who selected blue; Miss Louisa Popham, Miss Betty Fischer, Miss Lavinia Chambers, Miss Anne Atkins and Miss Patricia Griffin.

Others attending the party included Miss Katherine Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey Kauffmann, Mr. and Mrs. John Hornberg, Sam Biddle, Grant Boss, Bill Sheldon, George Ray, Murray Preston, Alden Briggs, Bill Gray, Edward Prichard and John Oakes.

The Federal Security Administrator and Mrs. Paul V. McNutt greeted friends on all sides, many of whom they had known in the Philippines. Mrs. McNutt's smart black velvet frock had a series of tiny bustles down the back. Mrs. George Pettengill, who later took Mrs. Edison's place in the receiving line, had donned a smoke gray frock of filmy lace. One of the prettiest gowns there was worn by Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert and was fashioned entirely of small black lace ruffles. The Naval Attache of the German Embassy and Frau Witthoeft-Emden were among the guests, she wearing a red satin dinner gown.

A high spot in the evening was the raffling off of Howard Chandler Christie's attractive sketch of a feminine drum major in a military hat and carrying a baton. The picture was framed in blue and gold.

Flags festooned the boxes where high officials in both Army and Navy watched the dancing. At one end of the ballroom a huge anchor of electric lights added a colorful note.

The Chief of Naval Operations and Mrs. Harold Stark had guests with them in their box. Mrs. Stark wore a cherry-red crepe gown trimmed in fringe. With the Starks were their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Semans, down from Wynnewood, Pa., for the occasion. Other guests included Commander and Mrs. Charles Welborn, jr., Lieut. and Mrs. William R. Smedburg 3d, and Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. H. D. Krick.

Wrights Here From Annapolis

An attractive group occupying another box were Commander and Mrs. L. G. Wiltse, she was the former Mrs. F. Haven Clark, mother-in-law of John Roosevelt, and Commander and Mrs. Jerauld Wright; who motored over from Annapolis for the party. Capt. and Mrs. Morton L. Deyo attended the ball and were among the many entertaining at dinner parties beforehand.

A colorful sight were the representatives of foreign nations in their uniforms. In a box together were the Naval Attache of the British Embassy and Mrs. Curzon-Howe, and the Naval Attache of the French Embassy and Mme. Benech, who were accompanied by Capt. and Mrs. C. Olive O'Donnell.

Among the House hostesses there were Mrs. Robert L. Doughton, Mrs. Schuler Otis Bland, Mrs. Clarence F. Lea, Mrs. Frank Crowther, Mrs. Hamilton Fish, Mrs. Daniel A. Reed, Mrs. Hampton P. Fulmer, Mrs. John E. Rankin, Mrs. John Taber, Mrs. Harry L. Englebright, Mrs. William Whittington, Mrs. Wilburn Cartwright, Mrs. James M. Fitzpatrick, Mrs. Clarence E. Hancock, Mrs. Wright Patman, Mrs. J. Roland Kinzer, Mrs. Robert F. Rich, Mrs. Clyde Williams, Mrs. R. Ewing Thomason.

Still others there included Mrs. William E. Hess, Mrs. G. W. Johnson, Mrs. Millard F. Caldwell, Mrs. John D. Dingell, Mrs. Richard M. Duncan, Mrs. Thomas Ford, Mrs. Dow W. Harter, Mrs. John Kee, Mrs. Donald H. McLean, Mrs. Charles A. Plumley, Mrs. Jennings Randolph and Mrs. A. Willis Robertson.

Mrs. Roosevelt Gives Another In Lunch Series

Out-of-Town Guests Include Mrs. Bok, Miss Cornelia Chapin

Mrs. Roosevelt entertained yesterday at another in the series of large luncheons she has been giving for the wives of diplomats and officials.

There were several out of towners present, among them Mrs. Curtis Bok, wife of the Philadelphia publisher, and Miss Cornelia Van A. Chapin, sculptor, who is visiting her brother-in-law and sister, the Solicitor General and Mrs. Francis Biddle. Mrs. Joseph Patterson, wife of the publisher of the New York Daily News, was also present.

Capital Boxholders Will Be Unable to Attend 'Help Finland' Cabaret Tonight in New York

COLDS, PREVIOUS engagements and business affairs will keep all the Washington boxholders away from tonight's "Help Finland" cabaret at the Waldorf Astoria in New York. The Finish Minister, Hjalmar Procope, will be unable to attend, and a cold will prevent Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean from being there. For the same reason Wollmar Bostrom, Swedish envoy, will not be present, though he is among the diplomats who have boxes. Others include the French and Italian Ambassadors and the Norwegian and Danish Ministers. Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, a member of the committee for the benefit, finds that at the last minute she will be unable to get away.

So it looks as though Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg would be Washington's only official representative at the party, which promises to be one of the most brilliant of the season. She will be a guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Shaw in their box.

WHEN NEW YORKERS stage a benefit they really go to town, and everybody's going to get his money's worth out of the $10 tickets. Beginning at midnight a huge cabaret show will be put on by Leon Leonidoff, vice president of Radio City Music Hall. Outstanding acts from the leading New York plays and revues will be given, together with performances by many stars of the stage, screen and radio. In addition there will be a "Parade of Stars" featuring other celebrities in Manhattan, who will be introduced to the audience.

Two orchestras—swing and tango—will play, and the tables will be decorated with Finnish and American flags. Former President Herbert Hoover, chairman of Finnish relief, will entertain guests in his box.

LAST NIGHT Lord Lothian's entire staff gathered at the British Embassy to see a complete movie of the tour here last summer of King George and Queen Elizabeth. The films are in color and show every part of their trip from the time they stepped on United States soil to the moment they waved goodby. The movies were made and developed by a well known kodak company.

NATIVES OF VIRGINIA, who have long since ceased to be surprised at anything the Northern residents do, may shortly see Mrs. John Hay Whitney's farm, "Llangollen," swarming with actors and cameramen. It's reported that Mrs. Whitney will use her estate as a setting for some of the horse epics which she also will finance.

WILHELM EICKHOFF, popular Counselor of the Danish legation, will not return here from his vacation in Denmark. He has been appointed to the staff of the foreign office after several years in Washington.

THE POISE of several of the movie stars who attended Mrs. Roosevelt's luncheon last week was for once shattered. Two of them told an aide they were so afraid of saying the wrong thing that they had decided not to talk at all. The child stars, however, remained calm, but then it's a well-known fact that the sang froid of movie children is positively frightening.

CAPT. GAINARD of the City of Flint, who has become a social lion in Washington, is telling friends here that he has two enthusiasms—the Norwegians and United States Minister Mrs. J. Borden Harriman.

House Wives Entertain

Something new in table decoration was introduced yesterday when Mrs. Karl Stefan, wife of Representative Stefan, of Nebraska, and Mrs. Joe L. Smith, wife of Representative Smith, of West Virginia, entertained at a large luncheon at the Congressional Club. Instead of flowers, the hostesses used ivy stemming from shells arranged artistically around the "H"-shaped table.

The ivy was shipped from West Virginia especially for the event; the shells were purchased in Washington, and the entire effect of white and green made one of the most beautiful luncheon tables seen here this season.

Ninety guests, many of which were drawn from the Congressional contingent, attended the party. Among those present were Mrs. George W. Norris, Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg, Mrs. Walter F. George, Mrs. James F. Byrnes, Mrs. Edward Burke and Mrs. D. Worth Clark—all wives of Senators.

Egyptian Envoy Host at Dinner

The Danish Minister and Mme. de Kauffmann were ranking guests at a dinner given last night by the Egyptian Minister and Mme. Hassan.

Others in the company were Mr. and Mrs. William R. Castle, the Secretary of the Italian Embassy and Mme. Conti, the Third Secretary of the French Embassy and Mme. Lucet, Mrs. Fred Britten, Maj. and Mrs. Horace Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thomas, Harry Villard, Miss Mary Moore and, from the legation staff, Mr. and Mrs. Cattaui, Anwar Niazi and Hussein Hosny.

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

WITH THE THAW, hunting conditions have improved and the different packs are going out on "bye days" whenever possible.

Piedmont Fox Hounds will go out three days a week in February instead of the usual two. Dr. A. C. Randolph, M. F. H., has sent out fixture cards for meets Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. For time and place call Central at Upperville by 9 o'clock on these mornings.

OF MUCH INTEREST in Virginia is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Elizabeth Harris Leake to Bradford Hastings Waller, which took place Saturday at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Harris Leake, of Richmond. Only the immediate families witnessed the ceremony, after which the couple left for an extended trip to Florida, Mexico and Havana. After the first of April they will be "at home" at "Garland," Richmond.

The bride wore a light gray wool suit, trimmed with gray fox, and a matching hat. She is the daughter of the former Miss Sue Spilman, of Washington; is a niece of Robert Scott, of Richmond and Culpeper, and has made many visits to the Virginia hunt country.

Brazilian Envoy, Mme. de Martins Hosts at Dinner

The Brazilian Ambassador and Mme. de Martins entertained last night at another in the series of dinners they are giving this winter.

Among the guests were Attorney General Frank Murphy, the Spanish Ambassador and Senora de Cardenas, the Swiss Minister and Mme. Bruggmann, the Secretary the Navy and Mrs. Charles Edison, who went on later to the Navy relief ball; Senator and Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg, Senator and Mrs. Warren Barbour, Robert Woods Bliss and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meyer.

Miss Bankhead Enjoys Newswomen's Club Tea

'The Little Foxes' Dominate Social Stage As League of Women Shoppers Honors Author While Writers Compliment the Star

By Jessie Ash Arndt

The Post Club Editor.

"The Little Foxes" dominated the tea hour yesterday. The author of the play, Lillian Hellman, who is also national vice president of the League of Women Shoppers, was honored by the local league at the home of Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, 1615 Rhode Island avenue, and the star of the production, Tallulah Bankhead, by the Newspaper Women's Club at a tea held at its headquarters in the Raleigh Hotel.

Miss Bankhead delighted the newspaper women and their guests with her friendliness and enjoyment of talking about the play. Even the role of a heartless woman in a real play is better than that of a more appealing character in a less forceful production, she said.

One of the amusing stories she told was that of a young cousin, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Owen, of Washington. He attended a performance when the play first opened and heard the woman next to him remark at the end of the second act: "She is the most terrible woman I ever saw."

"Why, she's not at all; she's my cousin and she's only acting," he declared, on the verge of tears.

At the close, the woman applauded and remarked: "She's really a great actress."

"I told you she was only acting," said the boy in triumph.

Miss Bankhead was asked to talk to the whole group of guests just before she left but she declined with the brief remarks, "After all, I'm only the Speaker's daughter—God bless you; and help Finland, all of you!"

The Speaker and Mrs. William B. Bankhead were unable to be present at the tea because the Speaker was ill. Miss Bankhead, who was greeted by an eager crowd of young autograph-seekers as she entered the hotel, wore a wine red dress with a jeweled clip at the V-shaped neck, and a round brown felt hat trimmed in fur. Miss Katharine Brooks, the club president, received with her.

Alternating at the table were Mrs. P. T. McGerr, mother of Miss Grace McGerr, who was in charge of arrangements; Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, Mrs. Peter G. Gerry, Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, Representative Edith Nourse Rogers and Mrs. Golden Donaldson, the former Frances Starr. Serving at the punch table was Mrs. Kate Scott Brooks.

Among the guests were Mrs. Ernest Lundeen, Mrs. Thad Brown, Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, president of the League of Republican Women, who was there with Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose; Mrs. Leland S. Conness, Mr. and Mrs. Hardy Meakin, Mrs. Elmer Collins, Jay Carmody, Mrs. Abner Drury and Mrs. John Shugrue, Peter Davis, company manager for the play; Mrs. Smith Hempstone and Mrs. Edwin T. Meredith.

Two Parties for Miss Hellman

Preceding the tea at which Miss Hellman was entertained at Mrs. Pinchot's home, a luncheon was given in her honor at the Raleigh by the board of directors of the League of Women Shoppers.

Those who attended included Mrs. Mordecai Ezekiel, the local president, and Mr. Ezekiel; Mrs. Stephen Raushenbush, Mrs. Alvin Rockwell, Mrs. William Hoad, Mrs. Robert Wyman Horton, Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Jackson, Miss Shoshana Garber, Miss Frances Rice, Leon Henderson, Mrs. Harold Glasser, Mrs. Thomas Blaisdell, Mrs. Arthur Bachrach, Mr. and Mrs. Marquis Childs, Mrs. Walter Gellhorn and Mrs. Edith Halpern.

Miss Hellman spoke briefly to the more than 100 members who attended the tea, urging them to add to the membership. She asserted the league was becoming increasingly important because of the present tendency toward reaction and away from liberal thinking. To counteract this, she advised enlarging expanding its program.

Those who alternated in pouring included Judge Fay Bentley, Miss Dorothy Detzer, Mrs. Ernest Gruening, Judge Marion Harron, Mrs. Leon Henderson, Faith Williams, Representative Caroline O'Day, Mrs. Helen Hill Miller and Mrs. Edward P. Costigan.

How to Lose Fat and Get More Youthful Feeling

All over the world the Kruschen Plan is appealing to great numbers of girls and women who want to promptly and safely lose fat and get more attractive figures—

Take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water first thing every morning. Cut down your calorie intake. Eat wisely and satisfyingly.

Be sure to do this EVERY morning. Don't miss this little dose of Kruschen for by so doing excess poisonous waste matter, acids and gas are gently impelled from the system.

Liver, kidneys and bowels are gently activated by Kruschen's aperient and diuretic properties and because of this there usually follows "that Kruschen feeling" of more energy, greater vivacity, improved health and more youthful feeling which reduction of excess fat so often brings.

Get a jar of Kruschen today at any drugstore. It lasts 4 weeks. Money back if not joyfully satisfied.

CHILDREN'S Frequent COLDS

✓ For relieving discomforts of chest colds and night coughs, rub VapoRub on throat, chest, and back at bedtime. VapoRub's poultice-vapor action relieves congestion of upper air passages—eases soreness of chest and back muscles—helps the youngster relax into healing sleep.

✓ For coughing and irritated throat caused by colds, put VapoRub on the child's tongue to relieve the irritation. Then massage VapoRub on throat and chest.

✓ For "sniffles" and misery of head colds, melt VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water. Have the child breathe in the steaming vapors. This loosens phlegm, clears air passages, makes breathing easier. Also massage VapoRub on throat and chest. Millions of families use these three time-tested treatments.

Arts Club to Hear Talk on France

An illustrated talk on French regional costumes and modes of living will be given by Miss Florence Berryman tomorrow night at the Arts Club.

In her study, originally written for the American Federation of Arts, Miss Berryman depicts the country side of France as well as something of the habits and aspirations of its rural inhabitants. She deals with geographical influences, showing contrasts in costumes and habits in provinces of the mountain regions and those of the water front.

Mrs. Shouse Announces Session On Photography in New York

Mrs. Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Institute of Women's Professional Relations, has announced a conference on "Photography" to be held at the Biltmore Hotel in New York Friday. Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse, director of research at the institute, Connecticut College for Women, will be present as she was at the conference on government service held here before Christmas.

Mrs. Shouse, who is just recovering from an illness, will not be able to attend, but there will be several Washingtonians on the program. Among them will be Roy E. Stryker, chief of the historical section of the bureau of information of the Farm Security Administration, and Joris Ivens, of the United States Film Service, who will discuss different phases of photography as an adjunct in social science, and Jackie Martin. Miss Martin will discuss it from the viewpoint of the news photographer, at a round table on photography as a profession. Mrs. David Cushman Coyle, chairman of the Washington committee, expects to attend also to participate in the discussions.

Mr. Stryker will take with him for the exhibition in connection with the conference the work of three women photographers which he considers outstanding. It will be that of Marion Post and Dorothea Lange, of the Farm Security Administration, and Barbara Wright, of the National Youth Administration.

The conference, which is planned in response to many requests for information as to opportunities in the field of photography, will cover it from the standpoint of a profession, an adjunct in science and industry, in social science and its use in museums, magazines, education and the teaching of photography.

300 Women Urged to Aid Youth Alliyah

Mrs. Chaim Weizmann, Zionist Leader, Talks At Hadassah Meeting

Mrs. Chaim Weizmann, president of WIZO, Women's International Zionist Organization, yesterday was guest of honor and speaker at a luncheon given by the Washington Chapter of Hadassah. More than 300 guests heard her plea at the Shoreham Hotel for funds for Youth Alliyah.

Mrs. Weizmann, who arrived less than a week ago from her home in London, with Dr. Weizmann, president of the World Zionist Organization, said the attacks being made on the Jewish people of Germany and the countries under its domination are attacks not alone on a people but on the democratic principles of justice, of right, of Christianity and of all the things that make life beautiful and good.

She said there was hopelessness among the older refugees but still hope for the young people to rehabilitate themselves in Palestine, where they are sent through Youth Alliyah. Their greatest hope lies in the generosity and kindness of the American people, she asserted.

Mrs. Weizmann sat for three months as a member of one of the tribunals in London which decrees the fate of enemy aliens in England, deciding whether they are dangerous aliens or those who may be permitted to remain there. Among them were the highest type of men and women, educators, industrialists, bankers who were refugees and had no future, she said.

Mrs. Moe Offenberg, the president, presided and introduced the speaker.

Mrs. F. M. Stockwell Will Address School

Mrs. Frederick M. Stockwell, field secretary of the Institute of Euthenics at Vassar College, will talk at National Cathedral School Friday on the summer institute. She will show films of the nursery schools and the activities of the children and adults and will answer questions concerning the educational program of the institute, which embraces many fields of adult education.

The talk will be at Beauvoir, the lower school of the National Cathedral School, 3500 Woodley road, on Friday evening, at 8.

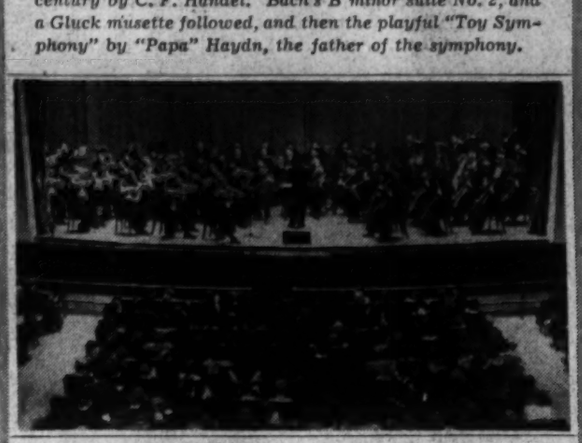
Students Learn From Music of Old Masters How Symphony Grew

CONDUCTOR—Francis Garzia, who conducted his first program in the Student Series yesterday, was mobbed by the young music lovers at the conclusion of the concert. He is giving his autograph to Anne Valentine and Joan Wick, each 11, from Holy Trinity School

Nearly 1,100 children enjoyed an hour's music lesson yesterday at Western High School, with the National Symphony Orchestra as teacher under the direction of Francis Garzia, assistant conductor.

The subject was "How the Symphony Grew," and the story began with the "water music" written in the 16th century by C. F. Handel. Bach's B minor suite No. 2, and a Gluck musette followed, and then the playful "Toy Symphony" by "Papa" Haydn, the father of the symphony.



Two movements of Mozart's G minor symphony came next, and the lesson ended with the "Chinese Doll Dance," "Dance of the Mirlitons," and "Waltz of the Flowers" from Tchaikowsky's "Nutcracker Suite."

Yesterday's concert will be repeated today at Roosevelt High School, Friday at McKinley, next Wednesday at Woodrow Wilson and next Friday at Eastern. Each concert will begin at 2:30 p. m.

The last children's concert will be given March 16 in Constitution Hall, when Dr. Kindler will conduct.

Thirty Years Of Progress Are Recalled

Citizens Association In Mount Pleasant Holds Celebration At Bancroft School

Thirty years of progress were recalled last night by the Mount Pleasant Citizens Association at a tri-decennial celebration in Bancroft School, Eighteenth and Newton streets northwest.

Projects which have been backed by the organization during its 30 years include purchase of land for Piney Branch Parkway, the Capper-Crampton Act authorizing purchase of land in Washington, Maryland and Virginia for parks; establishment of the Mount Pleasant Branch Library, and adoption of zoning restrictions in the suburb.

Other improvements which have received support from the association are the construction of the Rock Creek and Piney Branch sewers, removal of billboards from highways leading to the National Capital, improvements of streets in Mount Pleasant, and establishment of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Congratulations Given

Harry N. Stull, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, extended the congratulations of his organization on the anniversary.

He also said he was convinced the federation "is the most democratic institution in Washington."

"Like Congress," he remarked, "we mull along and arrive usually at sensible conclusions, although sometimes after too much discussion."

The growth of Mount Pleasant as a part of the city was traced by Mrs. William G. Stuart, a lifelong resident of the section.

She emphasized that sale of liquor in Mount Pleasant was a very recent development.

Residential restrictions banned liquor sales in the early days of the community and "later it could not be sold within a mile of Soldiers Home, which included Mount Pleasant within the prohibited zone."

Guests at the function were welcomed by Miss Elizabeth M. Andrews, principal of Bancroft School, who stressed the "building is dedicated to the community."

She was joined by Mrs. Harold Morrison, president of Bancroft Parent-Teacher Association, who said "the school is a natural center for community activities."

Projects Recalled

Association projects recalled included purchase of land for Piney Branch parkway, securing of the new sewer in Rock Creek Park which will remove sewage from the stream, backing of the Capper-Cramton Act authorizing land purchases in Washington, Maryland and Virginia for park purposes, establishment of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, construction of the Mount Pleasant Branch Library, removal of advertising billboards from highways leading to the National Capital, improvement of streets and adoption of zoning restriction in Mount Pleasant.

Honor guests included W. F. D. Herron, C. Melvin Sharpe, Joshua Evans, jr., Mrs. John A. Hunter, Theodore A. Hostetler, Harvey A. Harding, John Clagett Proctor, G. Grosvenor Dowe, M. W. Louis, Charles F. Consaul, John DeLaMater, A. M. Holcomb, Frederick G. Hunt, Robert J. Werner, Mrs. Grace D. Elgen, Dr. Edward W. Thompson and David D. Caldwell. William C. Lee presided.

Columbia Heights

Approval of the Zoning Board proposal for requiring new apartment houses to provide parking facilities as expressed last night by the Columbia Heights Citizens Association.

The action as a result of a motion introduced by George H. Brown, chairman of the public safety committee. The association's viewpoint will be presented before the Zoning Board hearing today.

Charges that House committee members were attempting to "bulldoze" the ABC Board were voiced in a discussion of the District liquor question. The association commended the work of Thomas E. Lodge, board chairman.

On a resolution presented by Dr. A. V. Smith, the organization voted to oppose granting of liquor permits near schools. Seven new members were inducted.

Christian Science Lecture Is Given By T. E. Hurley

A lecture on "Christian Science" was delivered last night by Thomas E. Hurley, of Louisville, Ky., before an audience in Memorial Continental Hall.

"In her search for the true nature of God, Mary Baker Eddy, the discoverer and founder of Christian Science, went to the inspired word of the Scriptures," said Mr. Hurley. "After being raised from what was thought to be her deathbed through the spiritual illumination gained while reading the account of Jesus' healing of the palsied man, Mrs. Eddy devoted her entire time and thought for a period of three years to this search," he said.

"Through this consecrated study and an extraordinary spiritual perception that had been unfolding in her consciousness since early childhood, the Scriptures were illumined, and their spiritual signification was revealed to her.

"This final revelation of the true nature of God and His creation, Mrs. Eddy reduced to human comprehension and set it forth in her textbook, 'Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures,' in such a way that all may read and understand.

"This concept of man in the likeness of divine Mind is, of course, quite contrary to the evidence of the material senses, which declares man to have a finite, limited mind of his own, located in a material brain, and capable of thinking evil as well as good. But we have seen that this material evidence must be false."

Clerk Indicted For Stealing Paralysis Dimes

Confession Reported To Admit Taking Six Roosevelt Letters

Michael Carta, 33-year-old postal clerk, was indicted yesterday for stealing dimes sent to President Roosevelt to aid infantile paralysis sufferers.

Carta pleaded guilty when arraigned before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage on January 19. He has been at liberty on bond of $2,000.

Prosecutors declared Carta signed a confession in which he admitted taking six letters.

The man is a native of Sicily and came to this country when he was 3 years old. He lives with his wife and three children at 913 Quincy street northwest. He had been a postal clerk 3½ years and drew a salary of $2,100 a year when he was suspended.

The indictment of Carta was one of 29 presented by the District grand jury yesterday before Justice Peyton Gordon of the District Court.

Others indicted were: Grand larceny, Robert Bledsoe, 27, colored. Unauthorized use of automobile, Wallace H. Lomax, 20, colored. Nonsupport of wife, Vincent J. Pokorney. Schulte Hints Economic War On Maryland Over Milk Ban

Suggests Midwest Could Bar Products Of Free State, in Reply to Tydings' Defense of Capital Area Farmers

Another War Between the States—this one economic—was threatened at the Capitol yesterday in connection with the latest milk squabble.

Representative Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, suggested that Midwestern milk producing States boycott Maryland products in retaliation for the Maryland-Virginia trade barrier against outside milk.

Schulte's invitation to war was brought on by a statement by Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, that the Maryland and Virginia congressional delegations were prepared to defeat Schulte's bill to open the Washington milkshed.

"The attitude taken by the Senator from Maryland did not surprise me because I have maintained right along the Washington milk market was created for the sole benefit of a few wealthy farmers in Maryland and Virginia," Schulte said.

After insisting his measure is designed to help the "honest-to-goodness farmers" in the local milkshed, Schulte added:

"I wonder how the Senator from Maryland would feel if the people of Indiana, Ohio, Illinois and Wisconsin, the big milk producing States, would say to the manufacturers of Maryland: 'In view of the attitude taken by your Senator barring the milk products of our States, what is to prevent us from barring the products manufactured in Maryland?'

"I cannot understand the Senator when he says my bill is not in the interest of the people of Washington. Does he infer the people of Washington don't want a reduction in the price of milk?"

Ex-Convict Loses $500 Damage Suit

James F. Donovan, 36-year-old former convict, last night lost his suit against Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent, and two other officials, for $500 damages for holding him more than six hours last August 12 without displaying a warrant for his arrest.

A jury in the Municipal Court found for the policemen after being instructed by Judge Nathan Cayton that Donovan's civil liberties were entitled to respect, but that he ought not to win the case if the officers had sufficient justification for not producing the warrant.

Lynchburg Man Shot in Hotel At Clifton Forge

Clifton Forge, Va., Feb. 6 (AP).—A man Clifton Forge police identified as John W. Craddock, jr., of Lynchburg, was found dead in his hotel room here tonight. He had been shot through the head. A note asked police to notify his brother. A revolver lay near the body.

(At Lynchburg it was said Craddock, son of one of the founders of the Craddock-Terry Shoe Co., of Lynchburg, left his home there yesterday.)

20 Members of Catholic U. Faculty Awarded Papal 'Benemerenti' for 25 Years' Service

Presentation Made Before 300 at Dinner In University Hall

Twenty members of the faculty of Catholic University received last night the papal medal "Benemerenti" in recognition of 25 years' service or longer at the university. The presentation was made by the Right Rev. Joseph M. Corrigan, rector, before 300 professors and their wives at a dinner in the university dining hall.

The occasion marked the first time papel honors have been conferred upon lay members of the faculty, and the number of awards was the largest conferred in an institution in the United States.

Announcement of the awards was made at the convocation of November 13, 1939, at the close of the university's golden jubilee, but the medals and diplomas only recently reached the university.

The medal, whose name means "good merit," was instituted by Pope Gregory XVI in 1832. Those presented last night bear the image of Pope Pius XI, who authorized the awards.

Heading the list of those who received the medal was Dr. Charles Hallan McCarthy, Knights of Columbus professor of American History, who retired last year after 37 years' service. Lecturer and author of high school texts and other works on United States history, he was head of the history department for several years.

Others who received the awards:

Dr. Patrick J. Lennox, professor of English, who retired last September after 32 years' service; the Right Rev. John M. Cooper, professor of anthropology; Louis H. Cook, associate professor of mechanics; and the Very Rev. Nicholas A. Weber, professor of history, all of whom served the university 30 years.

The Right Rev. Patrick J. McCormick, vice rector and professor of education; the Rev. Adolphe A. Vaschalde, professor of Semitic literature, who retired last summer; Dr. John B. Parker, professor of biology; the very Rev. Thomas V. Moore, professor of psychology; Dr. Frederick V. Murphy, professor of architecture; Dr. Paul G. Gleis, professor of German; Dr. Anthony J. Scullen, dean of the school of engineering.

Dr. Aubrey E. Landry, professor of mathematics; Dr. Otto J. Ramler, professor of mathematics; Francis X. Burda, associate professor of physics; Dr. Leo Behrendt, associate professor of German; the Right Rev. Peter Guilday, professor of American church history; Dr. George J. Brilmyer, associate professor of biology; the Rev. James A. Geary, assistant professor of Celtic literatures, and Albert B. Bibb, who retired last fall as former associate professor of architecture.

Rossiter ABC Hearing Ends Today

Lodge Wants Applicant to Appear; Petworth Leaders Oppose License

Thomas E. Lodge, chairman of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, yesterday insisted Leo J. Rossiter appear before the board today at 1 p. m. when the concluding hearing on his application for a renewed liquor license will be held in the District Building.

Although Rossiter appeared at the hearing early yesterday he became ill and did not return. His attorney, Albert Levin, told the board he did not plan to place any witnesses on the stand and that as far as he was concerned the matter rested with the board. The day had been taken up by testimony from Petworth civic, religious and school groups, which were united in their opposition to renewing the license for the restaurant at 4132 Georgia avenue northwest.

Lodge, however, informed Levin that Rossiter should be given an opportunity to be heard and then said:

"I want Rossiter to testify."

Blue Print Introduced

Lodge said he was interested in a set of blue prints, introduced by Levin, which was said to be plans for remodeling the restaurant. Levin could not explain the blue print drawings, from a technical viewpoint, and Lodge said he would prefer an explanation from Rossiter anyway.

Some 75 persons appeared at the hearing, most of them to oppose the license. Ernest Henry, of the Petworth Citizens Association, led the opposition.

In the light of recent events on Capitol Hill, bearing on the Rossiter case, Dr. Frank Steelman, pastor of the Petworth Methodist Church, told the board he "did not want a Congressman representing a wet constituency in Maryland imposing his will on Washington."

"I call upon the control board to protect us against liquor in our homes," Dr. Steelman said.

Capt. G. H. Storey, president of the Piney Branch Citizens Association, opposed the petition for renewal and asked the board to consider a plan which would prohibit the sale of liquor within a mile radius of any school, library or church.

Dr. Howard B. Safford, principal of the Macfarland Junior High School, said the school property was within 300 feet of the door of the restaurant. He said, however, that the closest entrance of the school to the entrance of the applicant's property was more than 300 feet. It is on this consideration, from entrance to entrance, the board attaches weight in a decision.

Most of the opponents asked the board to "protect" the large educational development of Petworth, which includes, besides Macfarland, Powell and Petworth elementary schools, Roosevelt Senior High, Dennison Vocational School and the new Petworth Library.

Mrs. Elva C. Wells, assistant principal of Roosevelt, said more than 5,000 boys and girls used these facilities during the day and that 1,073 attended night schools three times a week.

Other Civic Leaders Appear

Others who appeared to protest were George W. Potter, president of the Petworth Citizens Association; Charles H. Dexter, representing the Arkansas Avenue Community Association; Mrs. Richard C. Woolfolk, of the Petworth Women's Club; Mrs. Bess MacMaugh, of the Petworth Women's Club; Miss Grace Lind, supervising principal of Division Five of the elementary public schools; Mrs. George P. Barse, president of the Roosevelt High Home and School Association; Miss Charlotte H. Clark, representing the libraries; Dr. C. E. Hawthorne, pastor of the Wallace Memorial United Presbyterian Church; R. T. Haugh, president of the Macfarland P.-T. A.; Dr. Henry J. Smith, pastor of the Petworth Baptist Church; Mrs. C. D. Lowe, president of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers; William J. Tucker, vice president of the District Public School Association, and H. O. Craver, first vice president of the Petworth Citizens Association.

The hearing resulted from a split vote by the board, prior to the death of Isaac Gans, who sat with the board when the hearing was held two weeks ago. Gans became ill and never voted on the matter. Mrs. Agnes K. Mason voted for renewal and Lodge against. William P. Meredith, who succeeded Gans, sat in on the hearing yesterday, which was requested by Levin.

Fund Asked

Tuberculosis Group Reconsiders Request

The District Health Department's request for $11,300, twice turned down, is expected to be reconsidered at 11 p. m. today at a meeting of the District Tuberculosis Association board of directors.

The board agreed earlier to contribute $1,280 to supplement regular Health Department funds for tuberculosis work, but Dr. George C. Ruhland, health officer, maintained that it would not be enough to pay the ssalries of six clerks at the tuberculosis clinic and to augment the salary of the Glenn Dale Sanitoria surgeon, the purposes for which he is seeking Tuberculosis Association aid.

The association's executive committee Saturday voted to uphold the board's action in limiting the grant to $1,280.

356 Dwellings Are Provided Here by Loan

President Approves Contract of USHA And Alley Authority

Presidential approval yesterday of a $1,485,000 loan from the U. S. Housing Authority will provide for the construction of some 356 additional low-cost dwelling units here by the Alley Dwelling Authority, it was announced.

The contract is the fourth granted to the Alley Dwelling Authority, the three previous loans having made $12,087,000 available to build 2,429 dwelling units.

The new dwellings will be for colored families, it was learned. John Ihlder, executive officer of the local housing body, declined to specify the site of the project before its purchase, but admitted it would be "somewhere on the other side of the Anacostia River." It is believed to be in the Northeast section of the city.

The project planned under yesterday's loan contract will consist of about 308 units in two-story row houses and about 48 in three-story apartments, with central plant heating in the latter and individual heating for the former. Adequately equipped kitchens and bathrooms were promised.

Capital News In Brief

Woman Slugged

Mrs. L. M. Everett, 34, wife of a General Accounting Office auditor, was injured when she was slugged by a man who was apparently attempting to rob her.

Mrs. Everett, of 6309 Seventh street northwest, said her assailant struck her over the head at Ninth and Sheridan streets northwest, and fled when she screamed. She was treated by a private physician.

A Bold Burglar

The burglar didn't know it, and he may just be finding it out.

When he entered the Carroll Arms apartment of Representative John H. Tolan (Democrat), of California, Sunday night, and helped himself to a purse containing $12, there was a gathering of G-men on the floor below.

According to the report the Federal Bureau of Investigation agents numbered between 50 and 60.

The Tolans reported the theft to Washington police yesterday.

Music Class Today

Wheatley School pupils will receive a music appreciation lesson from the Works Project Administration this afternoon.

A WPA chamber ensemble, playing works by Gluck, Mozart and Tschaikowsky, will prepare the boys and girls for their next National Symphony Orchestra student concert. The program is one in a series the projects orchestra is playing in public and parochial schools.

Prospective Bride Takes Life by Gas

An attractive 25-year-old prospective bride, grieving over the recent death of her father, and a woman, 52, died yesterday in gas-filled homes.

The younger woman, Miss Eloise Malone, was found dead in her apartment, 926 Massachusetts avenue northwest, by her mother, Mrs. Arthur G. Malone, and her aunt, Mrs. Louise Ware, of Goldsboro, N. C. Five jets of a kitchen range were open.

Miss Malone, who police said was to have been married in June to William H. Sawyer, of Raleigh, N. C., a student in the University of Maryland Medical School in Baltimore, left two notes.

One read in part: "Bill darling, I'm sorry I'm breaking my promise to you." Sawyer told police Miss Malone had spoken frequently of committing suicide.

Another note, largely illegible, requested those who found her body to "phone Bill," and gave a Baltimore telephone number.

Mrs. Ona L. Royster was found dead in the kitchen of her home, 4631 Fifth street northwest, by her husband, Thomas Royster. Several jets of a gas stove were open and door chinks were stuffed with rags. Police said the woman had been despondent over ill health.

Coroner A. Magruder McDonald issued certificates of suicide in both deaths.

Capt. Hunt, 55, Killed by Truck Near Waterloo

Capt. Richard D. Hunt, 55, real estate operator and member of a family which has been prominent in the military annals of the United States since the Revolutionary War, was killed yesterday when he was struck by a 12-ton trailer truck on the Baltimore boulevard near Waterloo, Md.

Capt. Hunt, who served as a captain in the United States Army Quartermaster Corps at St. Nazaire, France, in the World War, and more recently with the CCC camps and the War Department here, had been pushing his automobile, which had run out of gasoline toward a nearby gasoline station. State colice said he stepped from behind his car into the path of the truck, operated by Preston T. Hill, of Temperanceville, Va..

Capt. Hunt leaves his wife, Mrs. Helen Hunt, an employe of the Washington Loan & Trust Co.; his mother, Mrs. Hughes Oliphant, of the Ontario Apartments; a sister, Mrs. Margaret C. McGraw; a brother, Judge Hunt, of Rockville, Md.; two half-brothers, Col. Thomas G. M. Oliphant, U. S. Army, and M. C. Oliphant, of Washington.

He also is survived by his first wife, who now is Mrs. Arthur Condon, and two sons by the former marriage, Lieut. Richard D. Hunt, jr., U. S. N., former White House aide, now on duty on the West Coast, and Frederick Hunt, commercial attache at the American Legation in Bucharest.

D. C. Opens Observance Of Lent

Special Services Today Inaugurate 40 Days of Fasting And Penitence

The Lenten season will begin today with simple and impressive Ash Wednesday rites.

Catholic and Protestant churches of the Capital have arranged special services for today and the 40-day period which commemorates Christ's fast and temptation in the desert.

A period of fasting and penitence for Christendom, Lent will be climaxed with services on Good Friday and Holy Saturday, followed by the Resurrection commemoration Easter Day—March 24.

Easter will come two days after the earliest possible date. It was celebrated on March 23 in 1913, on March 22 in 1818, and will not be observed earlier than March 24 until 2008, when it falls on March 23.

Catholic Services

Lent will begin in Catholic churches with the distribution of ashes and special services.

At the Church of the Immaculate Conception, ashes will be blessed before the 6:45 a. m. mass today, distributed afterward and at the 7:30 and 12:15 masses, and at the 3 and 7:45 p. m. services. Noon mass will be celebrated daily in Lent.

The Franciscan Monastery, of which the Very Rev. Leonard Walsh, O. F. M., is superior, has scheduled masses for 6, 7 and 8 a. m. today, the Rev. Herbert Gallagher, of Philadelphia, being celebrant for the last service. St. Matthew's Cathedral masses are set for 7, 8, 10 a. m. and 12:10 p. m.

The custom of distributing ashes, observed principally in Catholic churches, is said to have originated centuries ago, the faithful being reminded at the start of the penitential season that they "were but dust and ashes, and to dust would return."

Federation to Hold Services

Denominational and interdenominational services will mark Ash Wednesday among Protestant congregations, many of whom will sponsor rites of Holy Communion.

Beginning today at 4:45 p. m. at Epiphany Episcopal Church, 1317 G street northwest, the Washington Federation of Churches will hold Lenten services each Wednesday at that hour. Today's message will be delivered by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington.

Epiphany's noonday Lenten services will begin at 12:05 p. m. today, with the Rev. Granville M. Williams, D. D., superior of the Society of St. John the Evangelist, preaching then, and also tomorrow and Friday. Epiphany will celebrate Holy Communion today at 7:30 and 10 a. m.

Other leading Episcopal rites will be centered at the Washington Cathedral, St. John's, Lafayette Square, and other churches, with the former's services slated for 7:30, 11 a. m. and 4 p. m., the Very Rev. Noble C. Powell, dean of the cathedral, preaching at 11 a. m. A series of Lenten lectures will be given by cathedral clergy daily in Lent.

Natie Brown Stops McAvoy But Loses on Foul

The Washington Post Sports

16 WASHINGTON: WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1940 X*

Judges Rule 'Kayo' Blow Is Illegal

Coast Boy Counted Out by Referee in Third; Officials Say Brown's Left 'Foul'

By Al Hailey

Utter confusion, no stranger to local boxing, reigned last night at Turner's Arena as Natie Brown, Washington's latest gift to the comeback field, was declared the loser on a foul to Mickey McAvoy, San Diego's unknown "wonder."

Natie, making his first start in the ring in a year, floored McAvoy midway of the third round and a few seconds later swung a left hook which sent mysterious Mickey to the floor groaning and screaming, "Oh, oh, oh."

Referee Harry Volkman stood over the howling McAvoy counting 10. The general impression was a knockout victory for our hero. Cries of "foul" began to rent the air, a hasty conference between judges and referee was noted. Then came the ruling which brought tears to our hero's eyes.

Volkman held up the hand of McAvoy, who by this time was in his corner, and announced him the winner on a foul.

1,197 Watch Card

Up to that point it had been a good fight, and the 1,197 customers who paid $1,241 to see the business were happy.

They were sitting in the upper tiers singing "Roll Out the Barrel" as the 223-pound Natie came out with a kittenish look on his face and shot a left, which promptly disappeared into the folds of Mickey's ample stomach.

McAvoy rushed out with a surprise for our hero in the second heat and made it a rough-and-tumble affair. Then Mickey began to pant. Natie began to pant.

Came the third round, and Natie opened up a wild attack on Mickey's "watermelon" that sent him down for nine, a very weary fellow. He was hardly on his feet before Natie shot his questionable left hook that ended the brawl with the time at 2 minutes, 35 second of the third.

A ringside physician, called in to examine McAvoy's 215-pound frame, said that the fallen warrior could have continued to fight, that he wasn't seriously injured. But the foul rule prevailed—despite the so-called "no foul" protection furnished present-day fighters.

Confusion Reigns

The ruling, arrived at in a bedlam of confusion, appeared to be a gross miscarriage of justice, according to District Boxing Association rules. The foul rule states:

"If a bout is stopped because of accidental fouling, the referee shall determine whether the boxer who has been fouled can continue or not, and if his chances have not been seriously jeopardized as a result of the foul may order the bout continued after a reasonable interval set by the referee, he shall so instruct the timekeeper."

The rule further states that any contestant losing on a foul is automatically suspended for a period of 30 days—"in addition to such other penalties as the commission may impose."

Natie's status remained undetermined last night. Heinie Miller, N. B. A. president, had little to say by way of enlightenment. Referee Volkman beat a hasty retreat from the ring. Brown's handlers—chiefly Jim McNamara—stormed about the arena shouting, "We wuz robbed."

If the District Rule 69 had been observed, however, the whole affair could have been avoided. That rule states:

"Contestants must be clean, pre-

Locals Trail By 4-0 After Two Periods

Ramsay Is Hero of Eagles' Belated But Futile Bid; 2,000 Watch Fast Struggle

By Jack Munhall.

The Washington Eagles' stirring final-period rally fell one goal short last night as the New York Rovers hung grimly to an early lead for a 5-4 victory before 2,000 fans at Riverside Stadium.

Trailing 4-0 going into the final period and apparently a badly tired and outclassed team, Washington suddenly popped to life and came within an ace of forcing the fray into overtime. But sandwiched between Eagles' first and second tallies was a decisive one for the Rovers who thereby boosted their Eastern Amateur lead to nine points over the second-place Baltimore Orioles. Washington is now hopelessly out of the running, thirteen points behind.

Blond Leslie Ramsay was the hero of the Eagles' belated and futile rally, scoring his team's third and fourth goals on spectacular shots which even New York's star goalie, Harry Braithwaite was powerless to stop.

Ramsay Scores Again

Ramsay's second point, coming at 18:30, provoked an uproar from the crowd, which, until this time, had had little cause to cheer for Washington. But hard as the Eagles tried to deadlock the score their efforts bore no fruits as the Rovers stalled by knocking the puck to the Washington end of the rink whenever they could. The Eagles played without a goalie near the end, having withdrawn Gordon Lee to insert a third wing for increased scoring chances.

Bunny McKillop and Paul Courteau accounted for the other two Washington goals, McKillop counting at 0:41 of the period and Courteau at 3:36.

Rovers Take Lead

After the Rovers had taken a 2-0 lead in the first period the Eagles received the game's first break by the banishment of New York's Loree for interference. But during the two minutes that Loree was in the penalty box and the Rovers were a player shy, Washington seemingly could not get the puck past Goalie Braithwaite.

Shot after shot rained on the Rover goal guarder, but somehow he stopped all but one, and Referee Boyd stopped that by nullifying a goal shot by Center Covert, because it was made after the whistle had blown for face off.

For the first ten minutes the teams offered an excellent brand of good, cautious hockey. Sallies seldom progressed past the defen-

WHITTLESEY

Golf pros have a habit of deserting their winter chores for a hand of rummy and a spot of beer on a rainy February day, and we ran into just such a threesome yesterday at Kenwood, where George Diffenbaugh and two guests, Mel Shorey and Tom Doerer, jr., of East Potomac, were seated in the bar.

Typical rainy-day stories were making the rounds, and we happened to sit in on a retelling of one of Shorey's choice Florida experiences that we'll pass on for what it's worth. Shorey and his traveling companion, Al Houghton, were winding up a short stay in Miami and Shorey was getting a little restless while Al was all for staying a while longer.

So when Mel ran into Jack Keefe, a former pro and now a sporting goods representative, on the street, Jack said he was leaving the next day for Hot Springs, and invited Mel to accompany him. That suited the East Potomac pro fine so he went to the hotel and packed, and prepared to leave the next day.

He arose early the following morning and said goodby to Houghton, gathered his bags and left for Keefe's hotel. Houghton was awakened a little later on by Mel stumbling back into the room and throwing his bags on the floor in disgust.

"What's the matter Mel?" asked Al, "why did you change your mind?" And Shorey's barely intelligible reply was "he's not going to Hot Springs, Va., he's going to Hot Springs, Ark. Why in the hell would I want to go over there?"

Tommy Was Good Material for Potomac

That reminded Doerer of a match he'll never forget played at East Potomac some time ago. It so happened it was another rainy day and between showers Tommy and B. C. Brown decided to play nine holes. Mel, he's in this one too, was in the role of matchmaker and told Tommy to give Brown two up on the nine. Well the net result was Tommy birdied four of the first five holes and was two down. Brown threw two eagles and matched his birds.

Well, Tommy wanted his money back, so they played another nine, even this time, and Brown, an average 40 or 42 golfer, went around in 35 and won 4 and 3. By this time Brown had little respect for Tommy's game and, between showers, offered to plany another nine and give Tommy 1, 2 and 3 up in three matches. Tommy almost went through the door in his haste to get in the tee but Brown added insult to injury by winning all three ways and the nearby Potomac almost claimed another victim. To coin a phrase, Tom was fit to be tied, and to this day he shudders when anyone asks "How many will you give me?" when young Doerer steps on the tee.

P. S.—Tom gathered courage for another match some time later and won, 7 and 5. Brown then admitted the three rounds of the previous date were the three best of his life.

Caddy Irked Him to a Whisper

That recalled Diffenbaugh's famous Pittsburgh story, that many of you know, of his match with Al Kreuger in the first round of 1937 P. G. A. championship. All even playing the eighth hole, George drove one down the middle and when he went to play his second shot—no caddy.

He looked all around, yelled over to Horton Smith in the adjoining fairway if he's seen an extra caddy, and he and Butch continued the search in vain. Finally George played out of Kreuger's bag and naturally upset, lost the next three holes.

After driving off the eleventh, he walked disgustedly down to his shot and there, as though nothing had happened, was his caddy. George was so mad he could merely ask in a whisper where the boy had been.

The bespectacled caddy thought for a minute and suddenly remembered he'd forgotton three holes. "I'm getting married next week and must have been thinking about that; you know you promised me $25 a day for every day you played, and that'll help a lot.

P. S.—He didn't get the $25 and George didn't play the nex day.

Babe's Drive Put Pro to Rout

The boys told another, I won't mention any names, about how a local professional was playing an exhibition match with Babe Didrikson, prior to her marriage to Wrestler George Zaharias, on a course in Virginia.

While hitting practice shots, the pro asked Babe to have dinner with him following the match, and she agreed. Well, on the first hole Miss Didrikson knocked one past a sand trap some 275 yards from the tee. The pro stepped up, and hit one some 25 yards short of her drive, and Miss Didrikson came back with "the dinner's off; any man I can outdrive doesn't rate company for dinner."

We'll wind up with this one on Shorey, that wasn't told yesterday but has been before. The incident was a poker game after a tournament and the hand was draw poker. The cards were dealt and someone raised and Shorey raised. This went on once or twice more before the discards.

The opener bet and Shorey raised again. The pot was boosted at the other end of the table and Shorey raised again. Finally they all called, asked Shorey what he had, and to top it off he didn't even have a hand. He raised four times without a card to his name, and they tell that story during every game.

To this day, no one knows what happened to Shorey's hand, or if he had one in the first place.

Misses Bauer And Jameson Golf Winners

Favorites Have Hard Time Gaining Second Round in Florida Play

By the Associated Press

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 6.—Betty Jameson, of San Antonio, Tex., national women's champion, and Jean Bauer, of Providence, R. I., had tough times today getting by the first round of the annual Women's Palm Beach Golf Championship.

Miss Bauer, winner of the tournament last year, was carried to the nineteenth hole by Mrs. Dewitt Untermeyer, of Rumson, N. J., before she could eke out a 1-up victory.

Miss Jameson seemed doomed to defeat by Clara Callender, of Long Beach, Calif., who was 2 up with a 39 to Miss Jameson's 41 on the first nine.

The Texas girl played top golf in the back nine and emerged with a 4 and 3 victory.

Betty Hicks, of Long Beach, Calif., semifinalist in last year's nationals, eliminated Mrs. Lillian K. Zech, of Chicago, 2 and 1.

Grace Amory, of Palm Beach, medalist in a star field at Miami last week, shot a one over par 36 on the first nine of her match with Mrs. T. E. Nolan, of Newcastle, Pa., and finished with a 5 and 4 win.

Mrs. William Hockenjos, of Lake Hopatcong, N. J., New Jersey State champion, won an 18-hole 1-up victory over Shirley Ann Johnson, of Chicago.

Jane Cothran, of Greenville, S. C., bowed to Neoma Copic, of Toledo, 2 and 1, and Mrs. Briggs S. Cunningham, of Green Farms, Conn., defeated Mrs. Marion Hochheimer, of New York, 1 up on the nineteenth. Mrs. R. B. Jarrett, of Philadelphia, won, 4 and 2, from Mrs. Dave Bonella, of Attumwa, Iowa.

Colonial Rally Beats Wayne Here, 34-33

Zunic's Foul Throw Proves Winning Point as G. W. Registers 10th Victory In 13 Games; Garber Is Scoring Star

By Bill Burnett

"The Big Team" did it again last night.

Washington's hottest collegiate five, George Washington, came out of another up-and-down battle with a precious 34-33 margin over Wayne University of Detroit as 2,500 fans at Tech gym yelled themselves hoarse.

The final count was a perfect indication throughout of the running score. In taking their tenth triumph in 13 starts, the Colonials were never able to get more than four points ahead after the first half of the opening period, and the Tartars, winners of their last four games, couldn't do any better. Most of the time there was a one or two-point difference.

Zunic's Shot Wins

It was a foul shot by Long Mat Zunic, with two minutes of the game left that eventually saved G. W. the energy and uncertainty of an overtime. At the time, with the Colonials leading 33-31, it appeared the single-pointer would merely increase the Colonial's final margin, but a Wayne field goal with 35 seconds left gave the home team and its screaming adherents ample cause for distress.

As much as Zunic was responsible for G. W.'s crucial point, Wayne's Steve Staryk brought Wayne's downfall. Staryk stood at the foul line with one minute and 25 seconds remaining, the score 34-31 in G. W.'s favor, and missed his charity toss. A half minute later he tallied the last points of the game on a wild toss from center court, but his earlier failure spelled defeat for the Tartars.

Garber Paces Mates

George Garber, Colonial veteran who paced his club's effort with 9 points, was the player who helped the G Streeters to the widest margins of the game. They both came early in the first period, 9-1 and 11-3, and it was Garber who accounted for five of those initial points.

Wayne came back strong, however, taking a 14-11 lead before the winners could score again, and then alternating with the rather wild Colonials to end the half at 17-all.

Bobby Gilham's 6 points were second to Garber in the scoring column, and one less than the record of Carl Shultz, Wayne's highest point maker. Jim Garretson, for the last two years a selection on G. W.'s all-opponent five, was limited to a squeaky pair of points, and Howard McCarty, the bespectacled "prima donna" of the outfit could scramble for only three.

In a preliminary the G. W. Frosh annexed their thirteenth straight triumph against no defeats this season when they trampled G. W. High, of Alexandria, 39-29. Rein's 12 points paved the way.

Lou Veltri Lost To G. W. Quintet, Marks Reveal

With the release of semester marks yesterday, George Washington's cage team lost one varsity and three freshmen players for the remainder of the season.

Lou Veltri, junior cager and one of the Colonials' first-line varsity reserves, was relegated to "civvies" for the rest of the year, and Bob Hood, Jim Guinnup and Johnny Parish were lost to the frosh.

The one bright spot in G. W.'s scholastic standing release was the return to eligibility of Pat Deming, sophomore, whom Coach Bill Reinhart expects to fill a regular berth next year.

Bob Dunkelberger Paces Golf Field

Ormond Beach, Fla., Feb. 6 (U.P.).—Bobby Dunkelberger, Southern amateur champion from High Point, N. C., today shot a 67, four under par, for medalist honors in the annual Ormond Beach championship. The 1939 winner, Frank Strafaci, of New York, was not defending.

Terrors Beaten, 38-27

Durham, N. C., Feb. 6 (A.P.).—Duke defeated Davidson, 47 to 30, in a Southern Conference basketball game tonight.

Finn Relief Game O. K.'d By National League Also Ratifies 1940 Schedule; Tampa Seeks All-Star Clash

(Schedule on Page 18.)

New York, Feb. 6.—The first all-star major league baseball game South of the Mason-Dixon Line, to be played this spring in Florida for the benefit of the Finnish relief fund, received final approval today from the National League.

The American League and Commissioner K. M. Landis previously approved it.

At its annual schedule meeting the National League also ratified the 1940 schedule, approved the umpiring staff, and passed a resolution designed to bring major-minor league relations up to date and correct any evils or abuses found to exist.

Initial plans to play the Finnish benefit game in Miami were sidetracked, and it was decided to stage the American vs. National League contest in the Florida city submitting the largest guarantee, provided that city has the "proper" facilities.

Daniel Has Charge

The all-star tilt was turned over in full to the baseball committee of the Finnish relief fund sports division, headed by Daniel M. Daniel, of the New York Telegram. The National League empowered Daniel to cancel any regular scheduled exhibition game, or take any action he deemed necessary to make the game a success.

"We want to make all the money possible with this game," Daniel said, "but we have to have a place where it can be done right. The park at Miami Beach is not fenced, and the short foul lines in Miami's Organge Bowl would make it very dangerous for the right field spectators."

Tampa opened with a $20,000 guarantee for the game, and St. Petersburg also was anxious to land it.

Yale Tankmen Shatter Six U. S. Records

By International News Service

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 6.—The Yale swimming team broke six existing American records today in a Connecticut sanctioned A. A. U. meet against time. The meet was held in a 20-yard short course pool and was supervised by A. A. U. officials.

Eddie Gessner, a junior, broke the 100-yard breast stroke nad 100-meter breast stroke records. Making the 100 yards in 1:01.7, Gessner bettered the previous mark by 1.1 seconds. He broke the 100-meter mark by 1.9 seconds, swimming the distance in 1:07.8.

A five-man team broke the 200-yard free style relay record by 6.1 seconds. The time was 1:29.5. Each man swam 40 yards.

With four men swimming 100 yards each, the 400-yard free style relay mark was bettered by 2.8 seconds. The team made the distance in 3:27.9.

Adding one man to the team, the 500-yard free style relay mark was broken by 5.3 seconds. They covered the distance in 4:20.7.

The team then took on another man, and covering the 600 yards distance in a free style relay event in 5:13.4, broke the existing mark by 6.6 seconds.

Tigers Turn Down Offer for Training Camp at Honolulu

Detroit, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—The Detroit Tigers would not be interested in training at Honolulu, Walter O. (Spike) Briggs, jr., vice president and treasurer of the Detroit Baseball Co., said today when told that Hawaii would like to have a big league club in its midst.

Civic-minded citizens of Honolulu were reported to have made inquiries on the West Coast regarding the attitude of the Tigers or "any major league team" toward training at Honolulu.

The Detroit team will train at Lakeland, Fla., for the seventh straight year, activities being scheduled to open on February 25.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Feb. 6.—Maybe there was nothing else Herbert Hoover could do, inasmuch as everyone at the New York Baseball Writers dinner was thinking about it when he stood up to speak, but we thought he did a good stout thing in bringing up the time he was booed at a Philadelphia ballpark.

CONSIDINE

He was given the rude razoo at Shibe Park during the 1929 World Series. A chant of "We want beer," went up at the park, followed by that moist, raucous, and impious salute known to all thoughtful ornithologists as "the bird."

"There were a number of people there that day who had patience with the orderly processes of constitutional amendments," Hoover chuckled. "And I'm here to tell you that it made me unusually sore, and the main reason for that was because I was the only man in the grandstand that day who had obeyed the law and been thirsty for 15 years."

Honus Wagner Goes Way Back

Bowlegged old Honus Wagner turned out to be a surprisingly glib speaker. He looked fondly down at Ed Barrow and at the insistence of Sid Mercer he told the story of his discovery, by Barrow.

"I'm living around Mansfield and Carnegie, Pa., in those Days," old Honus said. "Had a brother playing in the old Eastern League. Well, one day a gang of us were down around the railroad track, throwing them rocks and cutting up, when we see two strange fellows coming down the road bed. One of them is Ed Barrows.

"I thought they were bulls. You know, cops, and we were all for ganging up on them until Barrows says he's a baseball man and looking for a fellow named Wagner. I tell him Wagner's my brother and he's already got a baseball job, but Barrows says 'No, I'm looking for the kid wagner.'

"We talk awhile and he says he wants me to go to Paterson and I says 'where's that at?' That right, Ed? Well, so after a while it come time to sell me. Barrows tried to sell me to the Phillies but George Stallings said he wouldn't even pay my carefare there. That's how I happened to go to Louisville and then on to Pittsburgh."

A Firecracker Broke Up the Game

Wagner says there is nothing new under the lights. "Ed Barrows and a fellow named Denny Long, who had the Wilmington team, put on a night baseball game 45 years ago in Wilmington. Had the darned lights strung out on lines, like a lawn fete. They were close to the ground but you couldn't see much. The fellow who was pitching threw me a shooting cracker. The light was so bad I hit it into the crowd and when it went off the game broke up.

"Barrows was the best manager a player ever had. I asked him what to do one day when I come up to bat, and he says 'see that fence? Well, hit the ball over it.' Barrows is still getting them kind of players."

Bill Miller, who is circulating adjectives for the Henry Armstrong-Ceferino Garcia middleweight title fight in Los Angeles, takes Walter Winchell to task for slipshop reporting. He sasses W. for writing "intimates suspect that the Henry Armstrongs (he's the welter champ) are on the verge of a purge."

"In the interests of good reporting," Miller taunts, in one of his gabby handouts, "here's how the item should have been written:

"'Intimates suspect that the Henry Armstrongs (he's the welter champ who fights Ceferino Garcia, middleweight champ, at Gilmore stadium, corner Beverly and Fairfax, Los Angeles, February 22 at 8:30 p. m., prices $2 to $10, for the world's middleweight championship) are on the verge of a purge'."

Jimmy Foxx Says Watch The Bosox

'We're Not Afraid of Those Yankees, Says Boston's Swat King

By the Associated Press

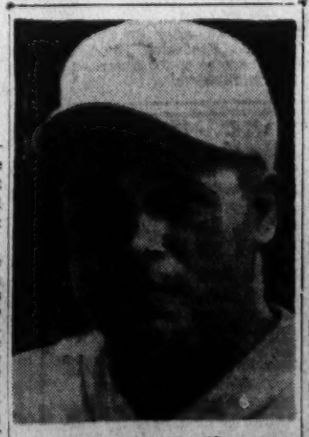
St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 6.—Homerun King Jimmy Foxx of the Boston Red Sox insisted today that the Sox won't toss in the towel when they meet the New York Yankees.

To a big extent, he said, it's the inferiority complex of the seven other American league teams that's made it possible for the Yanks to run off so many pennants and titles.

"I never have seen an invincible baseball team," said Foxx, "but the other clubs in the American League seem to think the Yankees are that sort of team. Some of them throw in the towel before the umpires call 'play ball.' They keep their star pitchers on the bench."

Foxx suggested that the clubs which have been "giving in" too easily to the Yankees, ponder the case of Connie Mack's 1932 Athletics.

"We had won three straight pennants and everyone figured we'd make it four. That is, everyone but the other clubs," Foxx recalled.



JIMMY FOXX

"Instead of folding up, they fought us tooth and nail that season and we finished second, 13 games back of the Yankees, with the same club that had been on top three straight seasons."

Foxx declared the Yanks undoubtedly are the team to beat again this year but "they're not invincible and we Red Sox, for one, are likely to give them a whale of a battle. We outhit them last year but our pitching bogged down."

The slugger said pitchers like Jim Bagby, Woody Rich, Charles Wagner, and rookies like Herb Nash, and Will Lefebvre will train with the Sox at Sarasota this spring and, at least two of them ought to "deliver the goods."

The Tigers and Indians won't be much improved this year, as far as Foxx can see, but he predicted the Athletics, while not a pennant contender, will be real troublemakers.

Fully recovered from an appendectomy last September, and with two months of daily golf under his belt, he's down to 190 pounds now and looks for a big season.

Asked about home runs, Jim replied, "Well, this is as good a year as any for me to hit about 60."

By Bill Burnett

Central's jinx over interhigh basketball opponents died a natural death yesterday in the Roosevelt gym as Western, on the strength of a fine passing attack and uncanny pot-shot ability, ground out an impressive 44-34 decision. In the first half of the season's initial afternoon double-header, Roosevelt, as anticipated, had no trouble defeating Anacostia, 43-32.

The Rider gym was packed to its capacity of 1,000 for the games, two of the highest-scoring affairs of the public high series. A two-way deadlock for third place between Western and Central was the result of the feature, while Roosevelt only increased the certainty of its berth in the championship round robin with its victory. Anacostia definitely dropped out of crown consideration with its loss.

In neither clash was the outcome uncertain after the opening period, though the Western-Central battle easily highlighted the bill.

Western to Front

After tying the score at 6—6 midway of the first period, Western jumped into an 11-6 advantage and still was out front at the horn, 11-9. A pair of field shots by Johnny Lumpkin and points by Jim Karas and Hop Perrell brought the Raiders' half-time lead to 20-14.

In the third session the Raiders went ahead by as much as 11 points, but managed for only a 33-28 margin at the end. Central further sliced that lead on the first play of the final quarter when Sam Di Blasi ripped the cords with a fancy pivot shot, but that was as close as the Mount Pleasanters were destined to get.

Karas, Hal Mitchell and Lumpkin pumped through a brilliant succession of points that brought the count out of Central's reach.

It was Karas, a chunky forward, whose 13 points stole the show in Western's first victory after losing its last two starts by 3 points each. He potted from almost every angle. Second honors went to his teammate, lanky Mitchell, who registered four out of six foul shot tries and wound up with a 12-point total.

Midway of the third period, Jake Hilleary, Western guard, was involved in a slight shoving incident with Central's Sam Di Blasi and was withdrawn. Di Blasi stayed in to lead his team's scoring with 8 points, closely followed by Teddy Thomaides and Benny Steiner with 7 points each.

With the score 35-30 against it in the fourth quarter, the Central club changed shirts in a superstitious effort to get back into the game. The net result was five straight points by Western's Karas.

All Players Used

Roosevelt's rough ride over Anacostia was a surprise to no one. Every man on the bench was shoved into the fray, and every combination possible was used by Coach Herman Littman. At one time in the third period the Riders had amassed a 35-to-12 lead, and only frequent substitutions kept them from winding up that much ahead.

For the first time in any interhigh game this year, Anacostia went scoreless in the first period. Meanwhile Roosevelt tallied 12 points. At the half it was 19 to 9 in the Riders' favor; at the third quarter, 35 to 16, and Roosevelt coasted in to its fifth straight series victory.

George West, frail-looking forward of the Riders, was high-point man of the game with 12 points, all on field goals. His running mate, Hymie Perlo, was a close second with 11, and Lambert Anderson, of the Indians, matched that record.

American U. J. V's Triumph 33 to 23

The American University junior varsity added St. Alban's School to its lengthening string of victims yesterday, defeating the high school representatives, 33-23, on St. Alban's court.

Reese scored 14 points to pace his team's attack, while Hanna led St. Alban's scoring with 11. An interesting sidelight of the game was that ten players were used and ten players participated in the scoring.

White Tide Piles Up 33-26 Score; Victors Get to Front Early

Revenge was sweet for Eastern High's basketers yesterday as the White Tide obtained an early lead and throttled Washington-Lee's last-ditch rally to win, 33-26, on the Eastern court.

In winning Eastern atoned somewhat for its dismal showing last month at Arlington, where it was defeated by the Little Generals, 34-18.

An early lead was an important factor in Eastern's victory. "Gun" Custer was the big noise in Eastern's attack in the first quarter when it rolled up an 8-1 count before little "Shorty" Alexander was able to count Washington-Lee's first field goal.

Eastern's march to the basket continued in the second half, although its frequency was interrupted somewhat by an abbreviated offense by Washington-Lee. The Tide led, however, by 16-9 at halftime.

Schulman Scores

Moe Schulman, who formerly played at Tech, joined Custer in locating the enemy basket in the third period, scoring direct hits to lengthen the Parkers' advantage to 25-17 at the end of the third quarter.

Here Alexander, whose stature might well permit him to curl up in a thimble, stepped in the breach and almost single-handedly put Washington-Lee back in the running. All he did was ring up six consecutive points to place the Generals at a 26-22 disadvantage. Reuben McNab had an opportunity to place his team within striking distance of the enemy, but he missed a pair of foul shots.

As if waiting for this break, Custer retrieved the ball off the backboard and whipped a long downcourt pass to Adriani, who converted the shot and followed this with another quick field goal to place the game beyond Washington-Lee's reach.

Harvard Official Urges Case of Proselyting

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 6 (AP).—A plea either to conduct intercollegiate athletics without subsidizing and proselyting or to frankly pay athletes for their services was sounded over an international chain of short wave broadcasting stations tonight by William J. Bingham, Harvard athletic director.

"Policies are still being compromised and many college presidents, under the pressure of alumni groups, are yielding to modified systems of athletic subsidies and proselyting practices," he said.

At the same time he stated his opposition to the idea of "giving the game back to the boys" because, he said, students do not have time to plan and supervise all of the many details connected with any sport.

In calling for an end of "outside influences and outside pressure," he said that there never could be a common policy of amateurism in the college ranks until the administrators of each college have the final decision in the matter.

Tom Harmon Quits

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 6 (U.P.).—Tom Harmon, all-America halfback at the University of Michigan, announced today he was quitting the basketball squad because of "studies and finances." Harmon led Michigan cagers in scoring last year, but reported late this season and failed to win a regular berth.

Hardell, Once 'Gloomy Gus,' Predicts Track Marks for G. U.

Mile Relay, Shotput Records to Fall at Baltimore, He Says

By Jack Munhall.

With an optimism no less than astonishing, Elmer (Hap) Hardell, whose preevents forecasting has earned him the sobriquet of "Gloomy Dan," yesterday predicted his Georgetown University track squad would smash two meet records in the Maryland-Fifth Regiment games at Baltimore Saturday night.

In an amazing reversal of form (he used to warn you Tech High's football team couldn't touch an opponent which it later nosed out about 35-0) Hardell announced he would be greatly disappointed if (1) his mile relay team doesn't better the existing mark of 3:25.2 and (2) if Al Blozis doesn't toss the shot farther than 50 feet 6 inches, which is his own record.

Hardell, however, isn't exactly going out on the limb when he makes these predictions. The Hoyas' mile relay team only last Saturday zipped off a 3:21.6 effort to win in the Millrose games and Blozis, although he hasn't made his competitive debut this season, should be a mortal cinch to heave the ball 51 feet.

Starred Out-of-Doors

The 6-foot 6-inch, beautifully-proportioned football star has tossed the 16-pound iron 53 feet and more innumerable times out-of-doors and despite his limited practice this year he should easily boost the record he established last year as a freshman.

Georgetown's 1-mile relay team, composed of George Tucknott, Vinnie Braun, Ken Lyden and Mort Alnwick, is the fastest quartet that ever represented Georgetown indoors. That it proved in the Millrose games when it ran the best race ever turned in by an indoor G. U. team.

Moreover, under the able direction of Hardell, whose transition from high school to college track apparently has not dimmed his ability to produce winners, this team should improve steadily and may even walk away with national honors.

A 3:21.6 effort this early in the season is remarkable, especially when it was accomplished by a team that hasn't even an indoor practice track. The Hoyas are forced to work outdoors on an improvised board track on the intramural field and with the recent bad spell of weather you can imagine how little practice they have had.

Besides the mile relayers, Hardell is entering four other track events in the intercollegiate division of the sixth annual Regiment meet in an effort to win the team title. Tucknott, Alnwick and Johnny Motzenbecker are listed for the 440; George Bogan and Alnwick for the 70-yard dash; Lyden and Charley Williams for the 880, and Vincent Carnevale for the mile run.

Georgetown will also be well represented in the A. A. U. section, with Blozis, Art Lemke, Joe Kilcullen and Walter O'Connell in the shotput; Pete Davidson, Joe Devine, Johnny Doolan, Lou Napoli and Dave Wiley in the 70-yard sprint; Wiley and Johnny Buckley in the high jump and pole vault; Johnny Fish and probably Phil Graves, 1,000 yards; Bill McLaughlin, high hurdles; Graves, 2-mile run (miss and out*), and a mile-relay team of Jim Fish, Francis McAtee, Jim Hockey and Napoli.

Lefty Grove Off To Join Red Sox

Lonaconing, Md., Feb. 5.—Robert Moses (Lefty) Grove left his home here yesterday for Hot Springs, Ark., to rejoin the Boston Red Sox. The team will undergo conditioning there for three weeks. During his four months here Grove had been keeping in condition by bowling on his own alleys and fishing and hunting.

Since he signed his first major league contract in 1925 Grove has won 286 games and needs only 14 more to attain 300 and equal Plank, Mathewson, Alexander and Johnson.

Hoyas Meet Temple, C. U. Plays Tonight

Washington College Invades Cards; D. C. Fives Out to End Slumps

Impelled by the mutual motive of ending a losing streak the Catholic University and Georgetown University basketball teams swing into action here tonight.

The Hoyas, beaten twice in succession after their surprising victory over Army on a recent road trip, play host to Temple at Tech gym at 8:30, and the Cards, winless in eight games, are at home from 8:15 to approximately 10 p. m. to Washington College.

Hoyas' Line-up

The local teams have been established slight favorites. Georgetown, despite an earlier 38-28 loss to the Owls, has precedent strongly in its favor. Never has Temple whipped a Hoya five here. Even the Owls' 1937-1938 national championship team failed in that. C. U., though it has been going from bad to worse during the most disastrous season in modern history, should snap out of the slump for the Shoremen don't seem up to normal strength. Washington College won the Maryland intercollegiate title with 15 victories in 19 games last season but . . . well this is another year.

Temple will start a comparatively inexperienced line-up against the Hoyas. Capt. and Center Don Henderson is the only seasoned member of a team otherwise composed of sophomores, namely Angelo Musi and Billy Bechtloff, forwards, and Howard Kahn and Morris Snyder, guards.

Local Teams Favored

Georgetown will counter with the senational George Pajak and Al Lujack, forwards; Jimmy Giebel at center and Buddy O'Grady and Irving Rizzi at guards. Pajak, having scored 42 points on Georgetown's three-game road trip last week, now is the team's leading scorer, with 108 tallies, for an average of 9 per game.

C. U. Coach Fod Cotton is confident the Cardinals will chalk up victory number one tonight, not so much because of the law of percentages as because of their recent improvement.

C. U.'s new form was in evidence Saturday night. Although the Cards dropped a 47-31 decision to powerful Fordham they played their best game of the season in Cotton's opinion, holding the Rams on even terms in the second half.

Cotton will start his original line-up of Pete Sachon and Joe Carrig, at forwards; Carmen Pirro, at center, and Johnny White and Gene Daly at guards.

Howard Bows To Lincoln's Five, 58-45

Howard and Lincoln, traditional sports rivals, clashed last night on the court and the local Bisons went down swinging to the tune of 58-45. With 1,200 rooters in the Howard gym, the home team was unable to keep pace with the visitors who led all the way and held a 27-17 advantage at the half-way mark. Lincoln now has a record of five victories and one defeat in the C. I. A. A.

It was the ability of Ernie Young, of Lincoln, and the inability of the Howard defense that decided the issue. Young hit the cords for 10 field goals and held Howard's Capt. Parker to 5 points. Jackson and Brown did the bulk of the Howard scoring.

In a preliminary, the Howard Freshmen downed the Bowie State Teachers College, 32-16.

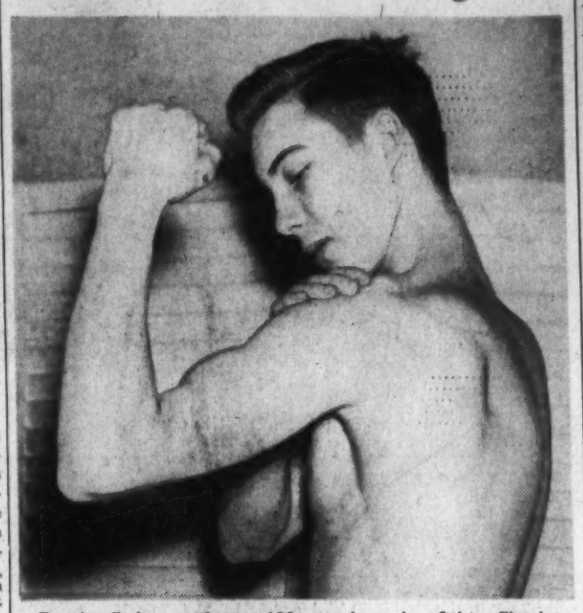
Star National Guard Welter Makes Gloves Debut Tonight



Bernie Cady, southpaw 126-pounder who fights Charles Schneider tonight in the Golden Gloves Tournament semi-finals in Turner's Arena, makes a serious survey of the potent left arm which enabled him to defeat Benny Frady in the outstanding fight last week

Billy Kekeris Will Take on Nick Mancini in Renewal of Old Fistic Feud at Arena

Billy Kekeris, National Guard welterweight star, will make his debut in the current Golden Gloves boxing tournament tonight in Turner's Arena in the renewal of an old feud begun last October with Nick Mancini in Griffith Stadium.

Mancini was the victor then and will be attempting to make it unanimous tonight in the semifinals which will see his brother, John, fighting Jim Perrow in the other 147-pound match. If both are victorious, the two brothers will fight in the finals next week for the title.

The welter battles have a double meaning, for the race for team honors hinges on the outcomes. National Guard and Pete's A. C. are virtually in a dead heat for the senior team trophy.

The featherweight battle between Bernie Cady, unattached, and Charles Schneider, of Colmar Manor, in the novice division, will hold a cofeature role. If Cady wins decisively he will be in the running for the outstanding novice fighter title, which has been conceded to Phil Furr's protege, Ray Landis, up to this point.

Sixteen matches are on the card for the night, nine in the novice class.

Pairings:

Explorers Face Wildcats On Saturday

Cohen to Fight Again As Heavyweight for Columbus U. Team

Abe Cohen, the Columbus University heavyweight who fought one of the most sensational battles ever seen in local college boxing against Catholic University's Jay Turner last week, will be in action again Saturday night when the Explorers fight the University of Kentucky Wildcats in Turner's arena.

Undefeated as a freshman at the University of Maryland last year, the 18-year-old Cohen was floored four times last week in his varsity debut but came back to knock Turner down before losing a decision.

"Cohen has the physical requisites of a great college heavyweight and a fine fighting heart," Coach Jim McNamara said yesterday, predicting that Cohen will hit the heights as a collegiate boxer.

"The point that impressed me most is that the big fellow can take a punch and come back for more. He lacked the experience and polish to finish Turner when he had him in a bad way, but that will come later."

A southpaw, Cohen has suffered no ill effects from his defeat and is working out with a determination to win the heavyweight point for Columbus this week-end.

Louis Works On New Punch For Art Godoy

By the Associated Press

Pompton Lakes, N. J., Feb. 6.—No one, to date, has accused Joe Louis of being short of artillery, but the Brown Bomber, nevertheless, is developing a new cannon for the fireworks display with which he is planning to entertain Arturo Godoy in Madison Square Garden Friday night.

This is a left uppercut, delivered in close, and, like most of the heavyweight champion's firecrackers, it does tricks when coming in contact with an opponent's chin. Oddly enough, while most of Joe's wallops are delivered in an effort to knock an opponent down, the purpose of this particular punch is to straighten him up.

Louis has used the blow before but never has concentrated on it so much as in his training here on the frozen shore of Pompton Lake for his ninth title defense. This is because the rough, tough Chilean clouter, who hopes to put a crimp in the Bomber's string of seven straight knockout title triumphs, is a bobbing, weaving warrior, who fights out of a crouch and rarely gives an opponent an open target to pitch at.

It's a Set-Up Shot

Joe showed against Tony Galento last summer that he has a tough time tagging a rival who forces him to punch down. As long as Tony, who took in today's four-round boxing drill, stayed in his crouch, Joe couldn't hit him with a handful of buckshot. Godoy is a somewhat similar socker, and that's where the uppercut comes in. When pitched properly, it straightens a rival upright and sets him up just to a nice position to receive the following straight right-hand shot, which is strictly nothing to take on the chin if you want to remain conscious.

Louis tried it in his semifinal boxing drill today several times against Emil Scholz, of Boston, one of his spar mates, and each time the crouching Emil stood up as straight as a private receiving a top-sergeant's command.

A Crushing Blow

There's the angle, too, that if Joe tries straight punching at a crouching rival, he is in danger of bouncing a blow off of said rival's skull. And even the best of battlers have found out that the bone of a hand can be crunched by such a puch. Joe never has had any serious trouble with his hands, but they were hurt to some extent by punches to the head of Tommy Farr and in the first fight with Max Schmeling. And there's no reason to believe Godoy's head is any softer than those of Tommy and Maxie.

Otherwise, Joe is in the "pink" for Friday's 15-rounder. He was positively vicious today in working out on four spar mates, and he dropped one of them—Scholz—to the canvas with a short right hand which even the ringsiders felt.

Galento, who exchanged a "Hello, Joe, howya feel" greeting with Joe during the workout, figured Louis should win and "might do it by a knockout if he gets a good shot at Godoy." Tony should know. He's tangled with both of them.

Royal Man, Flinchum Up, Wins in Hialeah Sprint Feature

Colt Travels Six Furlongs In Fast Time

Crump's Entry Runs In 1:10 4-5; Second Cash to Town Boy; Billy Bee Surprises

By the Associated Press

Hialeah Park, Fla., Feb. 6.—Breaking out of the No. 9 stall like a bullet, Royal Man, speedy colt representing former Jockey Willie Crump, easily defeated nine other 3-year-olds in the featured Key Largo Purse this cloudy, warm afternoon. With popular Apprentice Jack Flinchum handling the reins, Royal Man breezed to the wire with four lengths to spare over J. E. Widener's Town Boy, the favorite. Betty's Bobby, which the H. & H. Stock Farm privately purchased from the E. R. Bradley Stable earlier in the day, lost the place by five lengths.

Royal Man returned $10.90 for $2. He ran one of the fastest 6 furlongs of the meeting, being clocked in 1:10 4-5.

Four of the starters are eligible for the $20,000 Flamingo Stakes. They are Town Boy, Betty's Bobby, Counterglow and Dusky Duke.

Flinchum and Eddie Arcaro continued their hot riding rivalry today. The older jockey won the previous event to gain a tie with the apprentice at 22 winners each for the meeting. Then Flinchum shot back into the lead astride Royal Man.

Once Royal Man rushed into command, the contest was as good as over. Smoothly handled, the Man O' Night—Royal Purple colt never was in danger. Betty's Bobby tired chasing the eventual winner. Town Boy beat only one horse out of the gate. He ran a game race to become an easy second.

Billy Bee Wins

Making his first start of the winter, the 6-to-1 shot Billy Bee proved an easy winner of the 6-furlong second race, for $2,500 platers. Irving Anderson guided the 8-year-old gelding past the wire with two lengths to spare. Rye Grass was a belated second, with Roy T., another two lengths away. Isaiah relinquished the lead to Billy Bee after a half-mile duel. The latter then pulled away with little effort. Court Counsel and Noble Boy finished in a dead heat for fourth position.

Early Settler, displaying speed that was sadly lacking in his recent efforts, finished like an express train to win the fourth event by two lengths at odds of $25.90 for $2. Eddie Arcaro was up.

The favored Go Home overcame a tardy beginning to annex the place, a half length before Moonfolly. Sargazo, Double B., and Ritz Z., the bunched early leaders, all faltered when the important running began. Moonfolly then assumed a daylight advantage only to weaken when Early Settler, far back the first 3 furlongs, made his remarkable rush the last furlong.

†Maemere Farm entry.
Two-dollar mutuels paid—PAINTED VEIL, $5.80, $2.70, $2.70; MAEGAY (entry), $2.30, $2.30; MAEMANTE (entry), $2.30.

PAINTED VEIL, away forwardly, was carried to the inside in the opening furlong by FANTASMA, then bore out and forced FANTASMA toward the outside, but responded gamely to vigorous pressure and outgamed MAEGAY in the final drive. MAEGAY secured clear passage, assumed command at the furlong pole, but was unable to withstand the winner's bid. MAEMANTE, on the outside and clear the entire trip, closed strong but could not overtake the leaders. REACT and MISS THIRTEEN suffered early interference.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from Puett gate. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 2:31. Off 2:31½. Winner, W. F. Mannagh's dk. b. or br. g. (8), by Jean Valjean—Under the Rose. Trained by D. W. Carroll. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth ($25; fourth (dead heat), $25. Time, 1:11⅘.

Horses	Jockeys	Wt.	Post	St.	¼	½	¾	Str.	Fin.	Straight

RITA Z.	(Harrell)	102	5	5	2½	3½	5h	10	10	28.45

Two-dollar mutuels paid—EARLY SETTLER, $25.90, $8.70, $5.50; GO HOME, $4.50, $3.80; MOONFOLLY, $4.80.

EARLY SETTLER, under stout restraint until straightened into the stretch, moved up fast on the extreme outside, wore the leaders down and won going away. GO HOME, rated off the leaders in the opening half mile, finished with good courage and wore MOONFOLLY down. The latter, in the thick of contention throughout, assumed command turning into the stretch, but faltered in the final drive. HANDIBOY made up ground in the final furlong.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,100. The Key Largo. For 3-year-olds. Start good from Puett gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 4:01. Off 4:02½. Winner, W. Crump's b. c. (3), by Man o' Night—Royal Purple. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $775; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:10⅘.

Horses	Jockeys	Wt.	Post	St.	½	¾	Str.	Fin.	Straight

BEAUTY FLAG	(Caffarella)	103	6	10	10	10	10	10	38.25

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROYAL MAN, $10.90, $4.60, $3.20; TOWN BOY, $4.00, $2.90; BETTY'S BOBBY, $3.00.

ROYAL MAN, quickest to begin, set a fast pace while saving ground in the early running and drew out into a safe lead entering the stretch, winning in hand. TOWN BOY broke sluggishly, gained steadily and finished with good courage, but could never reach the winner. BETTY'S BOBBY, prominent all the way, held the others safe in the final drive. JUNE BEE suffered minor interference early, but saved much ground in the last 3 furlongs.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles (on the turf). Purse, $1,100; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from Puett gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:32. Off 4:32½. Winner, W. H. Berl's ch. m. (5), by Peter Hastings—Periscope. Trained by W. C. Winfrey. Value to winner, $770; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:49⅘.

PRINCE DEREK	(Berger)	120	6	4	7½	8h	9½	11	11	17.50

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BROAD VISION, $12.50, $5.30, $4.90; SCANDALOUS, $6.30, $5.90, AUTOGRAPH, $15.40.

BROAD VISION, going in vastly improved form, worked her way up steadily after leaving the backstretch, continued gamely and wore SCANDALOUS down through the stretch to win going away. SCANDALOUS, nearest in pursuit of the leader in the early stages, took command through the stretch, but was not equal to the winner when the real test came. AUTOGRAPH, rushed to the front, set a steady pace while saving ground and faltered in the final eighth, but outlasted MARCHING FEET. MARCHING FEET closed stoutly. FELSUN showed a poor effort.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from Puett gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:01½. Off 5:02. Winner, W. Acree's ch. c. (4), by Ha Ha—Prancing Sprite. Trained by J. Bainton. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:53.

LIMERICK	(Wright)	113½	1	4	1h	2h	2h	6½	8	8.40

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GEN L. $4.30, $2.90, $2.50; BUDDIE TREACY, $4.20, $3.10; RED CHIEF, $3.60.

GEN L, rated off the pace to the stretch turn, weaved his way through between the leaders in the final quarter mile and got up in the last stride. BUDDIE TREACY opened up a good lead rounding the lower turn, but faltered in the final sixteenth mile. RED CHIEF ran well up and saving ground all the way, finished with good courage under punishment. GOLD CROSS could not get up.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from Puett gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:36. Off 5:36½. Winner, J. H. Carr's ch. g. (6), by Sun God II—Erin's Bride. Trained by R. Metcalf. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:53⅘.

MANHATTAN	(Donoso)	117	9	10	10	10	10	10	10	95.25

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ERIN'S SUN, $8.70, $3.30, $3.30; BAILIWICK, $2.90, $2.90; READY-ABOUT, $6.80.

ERIN'S SUN, going forwardly on the outside in the early stages, took command under punishment through the stretch and outlasted BAILIWICK. The latter broke slowly and was far back in the early running, moved up gradually in the last 3 furlongs and came to the inside through the stretch, but could not get up. READY-ABOUT saved considerable around entering the stretch and held the others safe. DEDUCE retired in the final furlong.

Rides 22d Winner

EDDIE ARCARO, veteran jockey, who is staging a keen battle for riding honors at the present Hialeah meeting. He trails young Jack Flinchum by one winner going into today's program

Bill Bennings

At The Post

Selections at Hialeah Park

Dear Al,

Remember the horse Ben Griffith which won at long odds several times during the Charles Town and half-mile meetings? Well, this horse was condtioned by Frank J. Rainey, a Washington boy who lives at 1846 Trinidad avenue northeast. Frank was brought up along with Sonny Workman, the Capital jockey. Like Workman he was small, at the time. Sonny was not long in making his mark as a jockey. Frank, seeing the success of Workman, decided on a saddle career. However, Frank did not reckon with his future size and he had hardly begun his career when the old jinx of jockeys, weight, stepped in and headed him off. However, he did get work with Trainer Fred Hopkins, who at the time was conditioning for H. P. Whitney. Frank was with Hopkins for four years and then went to work for "Big Jim" Healey. Young Rainey was the first boy to throw a leg over Equipoise. More recently, Frank turned to an exercise boy sort of "at large." He got plenty of work around Benning. It was at the District track that he came upon Ben Griffith. He was given charge of putting the horse in shape and the record of the plater shows that Rainey had a lot on the ball. With spring and the races coming up, Frank Rainey is looking for work. Of course he can go on with exercising horses. However, he would like to branch out as a trainer. Of course he does not expect to get Challedon, War Admiral and Seabiscuit. If some one has a horse or two and is looking for a conditioner, he or she may do worse than string along with this fellow. Rainey is a hard worker, knows horses and I believe he can turn out winners. In fact, he already has proven that to me. Note to A. P.—I'm trying to find out what became of Eddie H, the plater. If any of you Benningites know I wish you would let me know. The tote board odds on the boards such as Pimlico uses and the "take" are figured by a human calculator. The "tote" works on the principle of a cash register and, so far, a double action cash register has not been invented. Confucius say: I'm tired so take day off.

BILL.

First race—Perhaps I'm barking up the wrong tree but I'm going to take my chances in the day's opener with General Jack. I'm told this is a good one and Earl Steffen can do the juvenile riding for me. Perigee will draw a lot of play but must overcome an inside post position. Old Friend for part of the pay.

Second race—Travel Agent, in light thanks to the apprentice allowance and scheduled to be ridden by Flinchum, could be the right one. I'm going to string along. Affirmation has beaten as good as these and is dangerous. Whisper could be third.

Third race—Guild has enough speed to take a race of this sort regardless of general appearances. This is another mount for Flinchum. Calumet Red belongs with this kind and is a threat. Motley is a possibility.

Fourth race—Yes Or Not is highly recommended in this field. I look for Don Meade to give us a good ride. Unravelled gets in with a feather assignment and should be in the thick of contention. Dixie-Man for the show end.

Fifth race—Wise Barrister, despite the 119 pounds, deserves the call in this event. He is primed for a sprint of this sort. Calexico has been kidding and could awake with a bang. Sun Inplay has class but may need racing.

Sixth race—The Wheatley-Belair Entry of Sea Captain and Olympus should should enough improvement to account for the main money in this field. Napper Tandy is speed and will be right there if members of the entry make mistakes. Gridiron may be third.

Seventh race—Flying Lee gets my backing in this field. He must turn in his best effort, however. Bosley in racing into top condition and is a threat. Dnieper for the minor award.

Eighth race—Redbreast appears best placed of those going after the big dough in the day's finale. Camisado won by eight lengths last out from cheaper ones but carries 122 pounds. He is due respect. White Ginger may be the third one.

Best Bet—Wise Barrister.

Touchdowners Draw Stadium Battle Lines

Paper Bearing 5,000 Names to Be Handed To Jennings Today

The Washington Touchdown Club will take another step in its long campaign for a municipal stadium for the National Capital today at 11:30 a. m. with the presentation of a petition bearing 5,000 names to Representative Jennings Randolph, of West Virginia, in the old House Office Building.

Signers of the appeal to Congress "to take early and adequate measures for the erection and maintenance of a municipal stadium, in the District of Columbia, capable of accommodating athletic events of both national and international importance" represent 30,000 persons, Fred Pickett, of the club's stadium committee, announced.

Pickett, along with J. Leighton (Count) Cornwell, chairman of the club's stadium committee, will present the petition to Randolph.

The West Virginia legislator, who introduced a bill proposing a municipal stadium and sports center in Section F of Anacostia Park in the opening of the current session of Congress, has informed the Touchdowners he will take the petition before the House.

The appeal carries the names of the publishers of the four Washington newspapers, District Commissioner George Allen and other public officials, and the indorsement of numerous citizens associations.

A plan is under way to seek the signature of President Roosevelt, as a private citizen, after the club has obtained indorsement of the appeal by every citizens' association in Washington.

Local Bankers Plan to Attend N. Y. Meeting

A. B. A. Conference Will be Held February 13, 14 and 15

By Thomas M. Cahill.

A large delegation is being assembled by the District of Columbia Bankers Association for the twenty-first midwinter trust conference to be held at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York City, February 13, 14, 15, this conference being sponsored by the American Bankers Association.

Officials of Washington banks planning to attend include: T. Stanley Holland, trust officer, American Security & Trust Co.; Maj. Erskine Gordon, trust officer, Hamilton National Bank; William V. Simmons, trust officer, Liberty National Bank; Floyd E. Davis, president, Lincoln National Bank; J. Frank White, president, and Ralph G. Wilson, assistant trust officer, National Bank of Washington; Stanley D. Willis, trust officer, National Metropolitan Bank; Bruce Baird, president, William B. Willard, vice president, and Herman G. Lauten, assistant trust officer, National Savings & Trust Co.; Robert V. Fleming, president, and Sidney F. Taliaferro, vice president, and trust officer, Riggs National Bank; John A. Reilly, president, E. F. Colladay, counsel and trust officer, and William B. Wolf, assistant trust officer, Second National Bank; Willard G. McGraw, assistant trust officer, and J. Wesley Clampitt, jr., assistant trust officer, Union Trust Co.; William H. Baden, vice president and trust officer, Washington Loan & Trust Co.

Clark to Preside

Roland E. Clark, president of the trust division, American Bankers Association, and vice president of the National Bank of Commerce of Portland, Portland, Me., will preside. A number of prominent speakers have been engaged, including Elmo Roper, market analyst, who conducts the public opinion surveys for Fortune magazine, New York; William A. Irwin, associate educational director, American Institute of Banking section, American Bankers Association; Laurence G. Tighe, assistant treasurer, Yale University, New Haven, Conn., and John W. Hanes, former Under Secretary of the Treasury.

Financial Advertisers

Local bankers have been informed that this year's convention of the Financial Advertisers Association will be held at Hot Springs, Va., October 28 to 30, according to announcement made by Chester L. Price, chairman of the convention city committee after unanimous adoption by the directors of the association.

Washington had been favorably considered but the election year was not deemed the best time for a meeting here. Popularity of Hot Springs has been evidenced by its frequent selection for conventions of the District of Columbia Bankers Association.

The midwinter conference of the Financial Advertisers Association will be held in New York, beginning next Friday and continuing through Monday. Eliot H. Thomson, of the Washington Loan & Trust Co., who is a member of the senior advisory council, is expected to attend.

A. B. A. Appointment

Appointment of A. G. Brown, president of the Ohio Citizens Trust Co., Toledo, as deputy manager of the American Bankers Association in charge of the agricultural credit department is announced by Robert M. Hanes.

Mr. Brown has had an extensive banking career. Upon graduation from Northwestern University, in 1912, he became cashier of the First National Bank, Willisville, Ill. From 1913, he was president of the First National Bank, Dieterich, Ill., and from 1917 to 1930, president of the First National Bank, Greencastle, Ind. In 1928-29, he served as president of the Indiana Bankers Association.

During the period of 1930 to 1935, Mr. Brown was president of the Federal Land Bank of Louisville, president of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Louisville and executive vice president of the Farm Credit Administration at Louisville.

U. S. Savings and Loan League

Savings, building and loan associations have started their 110th year as America's only financial institution devoting its lending entirely on residential property, the United States Savings and Loan League recalls. In 1831, the first such institution in this country was established, following the model of the English building societies which had then been in operation about 50 years. It was called the Oxford Provident Building Association of Philadelphia County and was located in Frankford, a suburb of Philadelphia. Thirty-six persons in that community acquired homes through this original thrift and home financing institution.

Broker Sentenced To 7-Year Term

The Department of Justice and the Securities and Exchange Commission reported yesterday that R. M. Thompson, W. S. Combs and W. J. Allen were found guilty by Judge T. Whitfield Davidson, in the United States District Court at Dallas on a charge that they employed a scheme to defraud in connection with the sale of certain contracts to stockholders of Atlas Holding Co. The defendants had waived jury trial.

Thompson was sentenced to serve seven years' imprisonment in Leavenworth Penitentiary, and Allen to five years' imprisonment. The sentencing of Combs was deferred until February 20.

Montgomery Ward Sales Set Record

Chicago, Feb. 6 (AP).—Montgomery Ward & Co. today reported that sales for its fiscal year ended January 31, 1940, totaled $501,819,190, the best in its history. Sales exceeded the half billion mark for the first time and topped the previous year's sales of $432,813,501, previous record, by $69,005,698, or 15.94 per cent. January sales also were the best for the month in the company's history, totaling $29,984,030, an increase of $5,215,485, or 21.06 per cent, over sales of $24,768,545 for the same month a year ago.

Interstate B'ld'g Assets Climb to All-time High

All officers and directors of the Interstate Building Association were reelected at the annual meeting of the shareholders held yesterday at the company headquarters in the Washington Building.

The report of the secretary, E. K. Jones, disclosed that substantial progress was made during the past year, with assets now at an all-time high. Resources at the close of business February 1 were $2,772,000, an increase of $681,000 over the corresponding period of a year ago.

John L. Weaver was reelected president of Interstate, with Clarence Dodge and Earl M. Mackintosh vice presidents, Martin R. West treasurer, Edward K. Jones secretary and Lawton E. Inabinet assistant secretary.

Interstate Building, which began business in 1932, is a member of the Federal Home Loan Bank System, the Federal Savings and Loan Corporation, the D. C. Building and Loan League and the United States Savings and Loan League.

Westinghouse Air Brake Doubles Dividends

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 6.—Westinghouse Air Brake Co. directors today declared a dividend of 25 cents a share, payable March 15 to holders of record February 15. Company made four payments of 12½ cents each in 1939. Net profit for 1939 was reported at $2,765,629, against $993,816 in 1938. George T. Ladd and J. T. Tierney were elected directors of fill vacancies.

Miami Copper 20 Cents

Directors of Miami Copper Co. today ordered a dividend of 20 cents a share, payable March 1 to holders of record February 16. This is the first payment authorized since 15 cents was paid in December, 1937. Mines are near Globe, Ariz.

Electrolux 30 Cents

Directors of Electrolux Corporation, manufacturers of vacuum cleaners, today declared a dividend of 30 cents a share on the 1,237,500 capital shares outstanding, payable March 15 to holders of record February 15. In 1939 the company paid dividends aggregating $1.20 a share.

Sheaffer Pen 50 Cents Extra

Directors of the W. A. Sheaffer Pen Co., of Fort Madison, Iowa, declared today an extra dividend of 50 cents and a regular dividend of $1 a share on the common stock, payable February 26 to stock of record February 15. The extra dividend was 25 cents more than the extra paid last February and brought total dividends to $3 a share for the Sheaffer business year which will end February 29, 1940.

French Lines Buy Six Lockheed Planes

Burbank, Calif., Feb. 6.—Sale of six new twin-engined transport planes valued at approximately $560,000 to two major French air lines was announced yesterday by Carl B. Squier, sales manager of the Lockhead Aircraft Corporation. The planes are the 14-passenger "Lodestar" type and will be powered by American-made Pratt & Whitney engines.

Air France, one of the largest and oldest air transport companies in Europe, ordered three and has placed an option for "several more," Squier said. The other three airliners were purchased by Regie Air Afrique, another government-subsidized French company which operates a 7,600-mile route from Marseille to the Island of Madagascar. The latter line flies across the Mediterranean, thence through the Belgian Congo to southwest Africa and across a short water hop to Madagascar.

London Exchange Extends Hours

London, Feb. 6 (AP).—The London Stock Exchange today extended its daily session an hour, effective today, to cope with the increased volume of business. The new closing time is 3 p. m. (10 a. m. E. S. T.)

Following recovery in the gilt-edged market in the last few weeks, more transactions now are being handled than in July and August. The stock exchange normally is open from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m., but after closing completely on the outbreak of war it adopted a limited daily session of 10 a. m. to 2 p. m.

Textile Wage Rise

Philadelphia, Feb. 6 (AP).—The Philadelphia joint board of the Textile Workers Union of America (CIO) announced today agreements had been reached with 15 manufacturers in the city, increasing the wages of 7,500 workers from 7½ to 10 per cent. The increases, expected to add $300,000 a year to pay rolls of the 15 companies, are to be effective immediately.

Am. Woolen 1939 Pfd. Net Is $2,311,887

Compares With Loss Of $4,911,503 for Preceding Year

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 5.—American Woolen Co., Inc., reported today net profit for 1939 of $2,311,887, or $6.60 a preferred share, compared with loss of $4,911,503 in 1939.

"On the whole," reported Moses Pendleton, president, to stockholders, "it is believed that the current outlook can be favorably viewed. Unfilled orders on hand December 31, 1939, were 23 per cent more than on December 31, 1938.

"The fall 1940 selling season now is in progress and an encouraging volume of orders has already been booked. Because of increases in the cost of wool and other raw materials and the advanced wage levels, prices for the new selling season are inevitably substantially higher than last year."

Pendleton said that taxes against operations for the year totaled $2,108,747, adding: "These taxes in the aggregate amount to over $6 per share on the outstanding preferred stock."

The company operates 23 mills in New England and 2 in New York.

Industrial Rayon

Cleveland, Feb. 6 (AP).—Industrial Rayon Corporation's 1939 net profit was $1,348,923 against $184,409 the preceding year and $262,210 in 1937. President Hiram S. Rivitz reported to stockholders today.

Rivitz also announced the company would expend an estimated $4,000,000 from its cash resources to increase present capacity of the Plainesville, Ohio, plant more than 50 per cent. "Our engineers are already at work preparing plans and we expect to break ground within six to eight weeks," he said. The extension is expected to be ready in the spring of 1941. Industrial Rayon also has plants here and at Covington, Va.

"We are entering the new year under much more favorable conditions than prevailed in 1938 and the first half of 1939," Rivitz said. "Inventories are low, the demand continues to be good, and prices are firm. Orders booked ahead are for 60 days only. This condition undoubtedly prevails in the rayon industry generally."

Montreal, Feb. 6.—The annual report of The Shawinigan Water & Power Co. for the year 1939, made public today, shows gross earnings of $15,133,525 and net earnings, after all expenses and fixed charges but before depreciation and income taxes, of $4,523,826. These figures compare with gross earnings of $14,388,000 and net earnings of $4,248,492 for the preceding year.

Cotton Demand Lifts Prices 35 To 70 Cents a Bale

New York, Feb. 6 (AP).—Cotton futures came through a heavy selling barrage with colors flying today. Closing pieces, top for the day, were up 7 to 14 points. Trade interests and, to a lesser degree, foreign accounts, steadily took all sellers had to offer.

Spot houses, according to several estimates, sold between 20,000 and 25,000 bales, mostly in March and May. A good part of this was thought to represent lifting of long hedges.

Announcement by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace of a cotton stamp plan designed to speed up small consumer buying of textiles was regarded with favor by most interests allied with the staple.

Cottonseed Oil

March closed 6.84 bid; May, 6.97 bid; July, 7.07 bid; September, 7.16 bid.

Crude oil was quoted nominally at 5⅛ cents a pound in the Southeast and Valley and bid 5⅜@5¾ in Texas.

Gold Importations $49,555,496 in Week

By the Associated Press

Gold imports amounted to $49,555,496 in the week ended January 31. The Commerce Department said yesterday that principal shipments included $12,729,395 from the Netherlands, $5,182,853 from Norway, $7,011,867 from Sweden, $4,872,948 from the United Kingdom, $6,631,291 from Canada, $2,334,860 from India $6,154,605 from Australia, and $2,600,360 from South Africa.

Foreign governments and central banks withdrew $2,275,915 during the week from their deposits of gold under earmark at the Federal Reserve banks, reducing the total of earmarked gold to about $1,125,541,000.

U. S. Takes Over Philadelphia Brokers

Philadelphia, Feb. 6 (AP).—The brokerage firm of McMillan, Rapp & Co., of Philadelphia, was placed today under control of a Federal Reserve receiver by Federal Judge Guy K. Bard. He named as receiver Irving L. Stone, a member of the brokerage firm of Newburger, Loeb & Co.

Judge Bard acted on a petition for receivership by three customers who said the firm "misappropriated, misapplied and converted to its own use" their securities.

Avery to Supply Ford's Tractor Equipment

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 6 (AP).—Charles T. Ray, president of B. J. Avery & Co., said today the concern had contracted to supply the Ford Motor Co. with farming implements and special equipment for all Ford tractors.

Ray, who declined to estimate the value of the contract, said "we have already started production of the equipment under the eyes of several experts from the Detroit factory."

Steel Shares Head Upward Trend; Short Covering Considered Factor; Norwegian Bonds Improve

New York, Feb. 6.—Slightly higher prices for stocks, bonds and most of the leading commodities developed in more active trading today, but this reversal of the recent trend did not have an air of determination and consequently was not accorded any great significance in the financial district. Trading on the big board was the best in about a week and the composite average showed a net advance of a third of a point. Steels staged the best comeback and there was good support for the metals, rails and aviations. Fractional price changes again predominated but a few important exceptions included Bethlehem Steel, up 2¼; Chrysler, up 1⅝; Du Pont, up 1½, and United States Steel up 1¾.

The better tone in the steels was regarded as largely due to short covering. News of the steel industry has been bearish, including the sharp decline in the operating rate, the lax buying of steel by the automobile manufacturers and some softness in scrap prices. But when the steel shares failed to give ground more easily after the announcement of the operating rate Monday, there was some covering by the shorts.

Special support continued for the traction issues, with the three B. M. T. issues advancing and the common making a new high for the year. Canada Dry stepped forward as the day's most active stock, advancing a point to a new high, and activity continued in the aviations, with Curtiss-Wright and Bendix the most active.

Presidential Bookkeeping

In the realm of politics, domestic and foreign, there were three developments of the day which were regarded in the street as of vital moment to investors. The first was the President's discourse on national financial affairs, which, according to his system of bookkeeping, places the country in a far stronger position than his critics care to admit.

This conclusion was reached by the President through the expedient of taking one of the poorest of recent years as a basis for comparison. This is hardly a method which would be considered fair and square by the SEC. The President's claim that the increase in Federal indebtedness during his Administration had been offset by the decrease in the indebtedness of State and local governmental departments also is not supported by the comprehensive figures compiled by the National Industrial Conference Board. These show that State and local indebtedness has undergone virtually no change while the Federal debt, direct and indirect, has increased about $28,000,000,000 since 1932.

More significant to the street than the mere mysteries of the President's methods of calculation was the motive for his bringing forth this statement at the present time. There was an inclination in the street to view it as a part of the preparation for a third-term boom.

Selection of Chicago as the city for the Democratic convention and the rumors of a German peace bid from abroad were the other high lights of domestic and foreign politics which were studied for their possible effect upon security values.

Bond Market Dull

While activity in listed bonds increased moderately today, price changes were narrow and the market was steady to barely firm over much of the list. Volume was $5,435,000.

Prices of Treasurys on the exchange showed some firmness, gains ranging up to 4-32 point, while HOLC 1½s were up 6-32 point. In the over-counter market the list was steady, with maximum advances of 1-32.

Norwegian bonds improved up to 2 points in fairly active dealings. Canadas were fractionally better in most cases, along with Argentine issues.

Daily Oil Output Drops 129,355 Bbls.

Tulsa, Feb. 6 (AP).—Daily oil production in the United States declined 129,355 barrels daily to 3,511,953, the Oil and Gas Journal said today.

Oklahoma production was off 11,650 to 418,475. East Texas was up 210 to 394,598, but all Texas dropped 128,397 to 1,238,487. Louisiana declined 1,775 to 271,622; California 14,500 to 597,250; Eastern fields 200 to 108,000; Michigan 545 to 63,279 and the Rocky Mountain area 3,010 to 86,820. Kansas increased 13,850 to 181,600 and Illinois 16,182 to 373,300.

Atlantic Rfg. Head Leaves $3,818,779

Philadelphia, Feb. 6 (AP).—J. W. van Dyke, former chairman of the board of directors of the Atlantic Refining Co., who died last September, left an estate amounting to $3,818,779, an inventory disclosed today. The appraisal showed that most of the estate consisted of Atlantic Refining Co. stock.

In his will, Van Dyke put half his estate into a trust to aid deserving children, especially children of Atlantic Refining employes, to obtain an education.

Money Markets

Foreign Exchange

New York, Feb. 6 (AP).—A jump of more than 1-10 of a cent in the Netherlands guilder was offset by sharp reverses in terms of the dollar in several other European moneys today. Strong support for the guilder, which advanced .11 of a cent, came on the heels of news from the neutral country the chief of the army and navy had been replaced. The belga, however, dropped .05 of a cent and the Canadian dollar ⅛ cent. The pound retreated after early gains, losing ½ cent, and the French franc dipped .00¼ of a cent.

Foreign Markets

By the Associated Press

London, Feb. 6.—Strength in many industrial stocks and Kaffirs near the close enlivened the stock market today. Domestic rails held their ground as time drew near for announcement of government war compensation terms. Oils tended downward, while rubbers moved evenly. British government bonds, for a change, stayed in the background.

Paris—Rentes, notably the dollar guaranteed 1937 issue, struck against a lower price trend in the bourse today. Rentes closed 10 centimes lower to 185 higher. Both domestic and foreign equities shared in the decline elsewhere.

Liverpool—Cotton futures rose 5 to 7 points today after early hedging sales were taken care of. Contracts were scarce.

Wheat Closes 1½ Cents Per Bushel Higher

Firmness at Kansas City and Winnipeg Supports Market

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Feb. 6.—After drifting early within a narrow range today wheat prices stiffened, gained around 1½ cents a bushel and closed at the highs.

Buying and short-covering were encouraged by firmness at Kansas City and Winnipeg, a better stock market tone, reports of some flour business in the Southwest and rather light receipts at terminal markets. Light offerings featured the greater part of the session but selling increased after gains of 1¼ cents were scored.

Many contracts, after opening ¼ cent down, recovered slowly and in closing minutes reached 98⅝, up 1⅜. July was up 1½ at 96½ and September 1⅜ at 95⅜ cents.

Wheat on the Board of Trade closed 1⅛@1⅜ higher; May, 98⅛@98⅝; July, 95⅞@96; corn, ⅜@⅝ up, May, 56⅜; July, 56⅜@56¼; oats, ⅜@½ up; rye, ½@1⅛ higher; soybeans, ½ up; lard, 2@8 cents a hundredweight lower.

West Penn. Plans $7,000,000 Expansion

New York, Feb. 6 (AP).—The West Penn Power Co., subsidiary of the American Water Works & Electric Co., has been negotiating with investment bankers on a proposed $7,000,000 loan to finance expansion of the Windsor Station plant, near Wheeling, W. Va., financial circles disclosed today.

The plans call for installation of 60,000 additional kilowatts of generating capacity. The American Gas & Electric Co., joint operator of the station, has completed its share of a program for enlarging the plant. New financing consisting of $5,000,000 in first mortgage bonds and $2,000,000 in preferred stock has been considered, it was reported.

Beth. Steel Plans $102,000,000 Issue

New York, Feb. 6 (AP).—Dow Jones & Co., financial news agency, said today one of the largest corporate bond issues ever attempted is expected early in March with the sale of around $102,000,000 Bethlehem Steel Corporation bonds.

A syndicate headed by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and Smith Barney & Co. is expected to market the loan. Proceeds from the issue, which would be filed with the SEC before February 15, the agency said, would be applied to redemption of the company's 4¼s due 1960 and the 3¾s due 1966. Three per cent was mentioned as the possible coupon rate.

Steel Scrap Lower

Pittsburgh, Feb. 6 (AP).—Dow, Jones & Co., financial news agency, said today number one heavy melting steel crap was quoted at $18 to $18.50 a ton, a drop of 50 cent a ton from the last quotation. There is little business being done at the new levels, the agency said.

Bess Hoffman Sets Season Pin Records

Rolls 157 and 351 In Ladies Catholic League; Other Bowling

The season individual high game record for the Ladies Catholic Bowling League was broken twice last night at Lucky Strike Alleys. First woman to lower the mark of 145 was Mary Mack, of Lason, who posted 154 and 354 set. But along came Bess Hoffman to roll 157 and a set of 351 to make the mark that now stands. The old record of 145 was established by Jean Calvagno.

Louis Plowman tacked a triple-header strike onto a spare to roll high game of 165 for the Income Tax League. Collins Milne, of Executives, spared in the first eight boxes for a game of 159.

J. L. Jenkins, of Accounts, had high game of 137 for the United States Housing Authority League, and Richard Biscoff, of Accounts, had top set of 364. Richard Housman, of Office Service, established a season league flat game record with 97.

Northeast, presently the hottest team in the Diamond League, displaced Service Station in the lead by sweeping three games from Credit Union conurrent with the Servicemen losing to Southeast. This marks the first time in three years Service Station hasn't been atop the league.

Union Station whitewashed the Hotels, with Polly Hay's 143-342 leading the way, and Restaurant's took the odd game from Concessions as Pop Coleman rolled 144-376.

The sixth annual "Reds" Megaw Sweepstakes will be held at Queen Pin Alleys Saturday night in two blocks, scheduled at 2, 4, 7 and 9 p. m. The entry fee is $7.50, including the cost of games.

Joe Harrison, defending champion, will be honored with the customary free entry. Judging from the number of entries received so far a record field of 48 will compete in the event.

Rockville's Five Winner Over Md. Park

30-28 Game Marked By Ejection of Two Players for Roughing

Taking an early lead it never relinquished in a nip-and-tuck struggle, the Rockville High School five yesterday won its sixth game of the season by defeating Maryland Park, 30-28, on the home floor.

Two players, one of each team, were ejected during the course of the excitingly close but sloppily played encounter. Anders, of Rockville, was banned in the last three seconds of play for roughing Hardesty in a fight for the ball and Maryland Park lost Tom Pickett midway of the fourth quarter on personal fouls.

The loss of Pickett undoubtedly handicapped the losers, for he was their second high scorer with 11 points. Robert Beyer, a teammate, paced the point makers with 12 points and Tommy Ray, of Rockville, was next with 10.

Rockville led 13-12 at half time.

sive zones. There was little body checking, but plenty of clever poke checking by the defense men.

New York scored first at 9:03 when Hollinger took a pass from the left wing corner from Parker and beat Goalie Lee. Then at 13:50 the league leaders upped the count to 2-0 on a nifty play by Loree who eluded Defenseman Davies, feinted Lee out of position and rifled in a honey. Sawchuck, who fed the scorer a pass in center ice, was credited with an assist.

Eagles Bog Down

The Eagles were practically helpless in the second period as the Rovers clinched the game with another pair of goals for a 4-0 advantage.

Washington appeared tired and on the few occasions when an Eagle took the puck and headed up the ice some Rover would overhaul him and steal it. The Eagles also were noticeably slow in back checking and it was this fault that cost them the third New York goal.

After an Eagle attack was halted by another of Goalie Braithwaite's great saves, Rennicker, of the Rovers, scooped up the puck and Loree and Parker joined him to converge on Lee without another Washington player close enough to help his goalie. The inevitable result was a goal, scored by Rennicker on a pass from Parker at 8:51.

The Rovers scored their fourth goal at 16.58 when Hollinger knocked in a rebound after taking the puck from Rennicker who in turn had been assisted by Foley.

Rangers Trounced By Bruins, 6-2

Boston, Feb. 6 (U.P.).—The champion Boston Bruins tonight trounced the leading New York Rangers, 6-2, in a free-swinging National Hockey League game before a capacity crowd of 15,314 in Boston Garden. The victory advanced the Bruins to within a point of the Rangers.

Bill Cowley put the Bruins in front never to be headed with his first of two goals at 6:41 of the first period. He again fooled the Rangers' defense with a brilliant solo effort to notch his second marker at 4:12 of the midsession. Red Hamill made it 3 to 0 at 13:49 by deflecting home Art Jackson's scorcher. It was easy for the Bruins after that.

Indians Win, 2-1

Springfield, Mass., Feb. 6 (INS).—The Springfield Indians, minus the services of Owner-Manager Eddie Shore, tonight won their fifth straight game at the expense of the Hershey Bears, 2 to 1.

Barons Advance

Cleveland, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—Cleveland Barons advanced to second place in the western division of the International - American Hockey League tonight by defeating the New Haven Eagles, 2 to 1, in an overtime game.

sent a tidy appearance and be cleanly shaved."

Washington's other comeback artist, Phil Furr, 148, was awarded a technical knockout verdict over an unknown, Bobby Masters, 145½, of Philadelphia.

Furr floored Masters for a nine count in the second round and tapped him on the head with a stinging left as he came up at a split second before the bell. Then he toyed around until the seventh round, had Masters on the verge of a knockout again but ended it with a slashing left hook that left Masters' lip a lacerated and bleeding mess. The time was 2 minutes and 20 seconds.

El Brookman, 151, of Washington, stabbed the face of Baltimore's Eddie Finazzo, 150, bloody with a punishing left jab and too a decision over the ever-advancing Baltimorean in the first eight rounder.

Twice Brooman was staggered by Finazzo's roundhouse right hand to the jaw and he was a weary fellow when it was all over. Finazzo never stopped coming in, and never stopped taking punishment.

Frankie Martin dropped a decision to Phil Enzino and Dutch Arndt outpointed Brook Bowen in four round preliminaries.

Bob Feller, Speedy Of Arm and Foot, Is Kept Out of Air

Cleveland, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—Bob Feller, youthful Cleveland pitcher, who likes speed in an automobile so well he has threatened to buy an airplane, found himself in need of one today.

Feller, scheduled as guest of honor tonight at Cleveland sports writers' annual dinner, won't be present because he is unable to charter a private plane in Memphis, Tenn., where weather conditions are bad, said Frank Kohlbecker, business manager of the Indians.

Kohlbecker said Feller tried to fly here from New Orleans yesterday and couldn't because planes were grounded. He took a train to Memphis and encountered the same difficulty today.

McIntyre Works On Wrestle Card

Don McIntyre, Kansas villain, will return to Turner's Arena tomorrow night to meet Jim Austeri, Italian importation, in a preliminary on the card featuring Don Evans and Lou Plummer.

Tommy O'Toole and Chief White Feather, Tommy Rae and John Judiski, and Joe Cox and Alan Eustace meet in the other exhibitions.

Illini Loses Grid Star

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 6 (A.P.).—Alphonse (Flip) Anders, Moline sophomore who was a standout as a defensive end for the University of Illinois football team last fall, will not register for the coming semester and will be lost to the 1940 gridiron squad, it was learned today.

WASHINGTON SUBURBAN SANITARY DISTRICT
MARYLAND
Bond Sale

Guaranteed by Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties.

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received until 11 o'clock p. m., Eastern Standard Time, on Friday,

FEBRUARY 16, 1940,

by the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission at its office on Owens ave., Hyattsville, Maryland, for the following bonds of the Washington Suburban Sanitary District, dated March 1, 1940, maturing on March 1 in the years hereinafter stated, without option of prior payment:

$900,000 Series "TP" 2½% Bonds, maturing annually, $15,000 1941 to 1950, $20,000 1951 to 1970, $25,000 1971 to 1980, all inclusive, to be issued under the authority of Chapter 122 of the 1918 Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland, as amended, for water main and sewer construction.

Denominations $1,000; principal and semiannual interest (S and M 1) payable at Equitable Trust Company, Baltimore, Maryland, or at Chemical Bank and Trust Company, in New York City, New York, at holder's option; general obligations; unlimited tax; coupon bonds registerable as to principal alone; exempt from taxation by the State of Maryland and by the municipalities in said State; unconditionally guaranteed as to both principal and interest by Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties by indorsement on each bond; form of bonds substantially the same as bonds of the last preceding series. Bonds will be delivered on or about March 15, 1940, at place of purchaser's choice.

These bonds will be awarded to the highest bidder.

Application has been made to the Public Service Commission of Maryland for its approval of this issue of bonds.

Each proposal must be inclosed in a sealed envelope marked "Proposal for Bonds," and be accompanied by a certified check upon an incorporated bank or trust company, payable unconditionally to the order of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, for 1% of the amount of the bonds. The right to reject any or all bids is reserved. The approving opinion of Masslich and Mitchell, New York City, will be furnished the purchasers.

Circular on request and proposals must be submitted on information contained therein.

WASHINGTON SUBURBAN SANITARY COMMISSION. By PERRY BOSWELL, Chairman.

Outstanding—Here's Why
Set on a beautifully landscaped sloping lot, this new all-brick detached home presents a pretty site. In one of the most popular Northwest, high-class residential sections. Large living room with fireplace and adjoining side porch, bright dining room with attractive bay, modernly equipped kitchen; 3 large bedrooms, one may be used as library, and 2 complete baths; full basement, automatic heat and built-in garage. Reasonably priced and easily financed. Call Randolph 2153, or J. Wesley Buchanan.

Forever—and Ever
You will find contentments in owning a home as comfortable and spacious as this. Located in one of the finest Northwest residential sections, surrounded by homes much higher in price, yet not out of place in its surroundings. There is a lovely living room with fireplace and adjoining porch, bright dining room, spacious kitchen with all modern equipment. Over the built-in garage, on a level between the first and second floors, there is a bedroom and complete bath. The other 2 bedrooms are 12'6x 18'6 and 11'6x16'6 and another complete bath. Floored attic, automatic heat. Lovely stream flows through the property. To inspect call Wisconsin 7746, or J. Wesley Buchanan.

NEAR SCHOOLS, $6,750.
This attractive English type semidetached house located in the convenient Brightwood section can be bought with payments less than rent, with good down payment. Has lovely living room with fireplace. There are 3 bedrooms and a den on the second floor. House is located within easy walking distance of Paul Junior High, Calvin Coolidge Senior High, other schools, and all conveniences.

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn.

Here is a quiz made up of questions from several sources.

1. The bidding has gone:

West	North	East	South
1 NT.	Dbl.	Pass	?

What should South say, holding:

♠ J 3 2
♣ 6 5 4 3

Why?

2. Being able to lead from either hand, how would you play trumps when you can afford to lose only one trump trick, holding:

North
South
♠ A Q 10 9 7 6 5

3. Both sides vulnerable, the bidding has gone:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 ♠	Dbl.	2 ♠
4 ♡	- ♣	Pass	Pass
Dbl.	Pass	Pass	Pass

What would you, North, lead holding:

♡ A J 10 5
◇ 10 9 5

Why?

With both sides vulnerable you are South, the dealer, one each of three hands. What do you bid? Why?

4. ♠ A K 4 3
♡ 7 4 2
◇ A 6 3

5. ♠ K Q J 10
♡ K Q J 10 9
◇ K 2

6. ♠ A K J 10 9 6 3
♡ K 8 2

Answers to Quiz

1. Two clubs. The hand is too poor for two hearts. If one diamond or one club had been doubled, South should respond with one heart.

2. Win the first round with spade ace. Unless West holds king-jack-small, you cannot lose more than one trick. If West has the lone king, you lose none.

3. Ten of diamonds. From his bidding, South probably has a trick in diamonds as well as in spades.

4. Pass. You have three honor tricks, but an absolute dead minimum in so far as winners and distribution are concerned. Your hand is good defensively, but pretty weak offensively. Hence you should have practically no hope of game unless partner can open the bidding.

5. One spade. This is the "prepared" bid. You must allow for a one no-trump two-diamond or two-club response, in which case you are well prepared to bid two hearts.

If you start with one heart and your partner makes any of the mentioned responses, you will be unable to show the spade suit, except at the expense of forcing up the bidding level; that is, if partner prefers your first-named suit he will have to go back to three hearts over two spades.

6. Three spades. This is a typical new Culbertson three bid—six and a half winners in the spade suit with a maximum of one loser in the suit, and the king of hearts outside.

For the first time in 4½ years on the air, a member of the cast of C. B. S.'s "Bachelor's Children" was unable to appear. The cause: a sore throat. Margie Hannan who plays "Ruth Ann" was the victim and Louise Fitch stepped in to read the part. Margie's illness broke a streak of more than 1,100 broadcasts during which "Bachelor's Children" has had the same cast, announcer, author, theme song and sponsor without a single interruption.

Wally Butterworth

When Parks Johnson and Wally Butterworth took their "Vox Pop" microphone into the New York Stock Market home grounds for a recent broadcast they naturally expected the "exchange" of merry quips to reach a new high in an active money market. But the C. B. S. stars weren't prepared for the complaint of one broker who correctly answered a "Vox Pop" question. Parks paid him $1—and the Bull-and-Bear man said: "This is the first money I've made this year!"

THE DRAGON'S TEETH

By ELLERY QUEEN

Chapter 25

"MISS SHAWN, did you know that Margo Cole really wasn't Margo Cole?" asked Mr. Queen suddenly.

"I beg your pardon?" gasped Kerrie.

"Never mind." Mr. Queen smiled in a satisfied way.

"Beau, what does he mean?"

Beau told her. She was bewildered. "But I don't—"

Mr. Queen took her hand. "Don't try. While you're here don't answer too many questions and have a nice rest. Jails are really awfully good places to rest in."

She smiled back faintly. "I'll remember that—the next one I'm in."

"I promise you you won't be in this one long!"

"Thanks, Mr. Queen."

"The name is Ellery, Miss Shawn."

"Kerrie, Ellery."

"Charmed! By the way, Beau and I have a lot of explaining to do. Do you think you can wait?"

"Whatever Beau says."

Beau kissed her again, and they left quickly.

"Such faith," observed Mr. Queen, "should be deserved."

Beau did not reply in words. But his eyes and jaw said something that silenced Mr. Queen.

THEY FOUND Inspector Queen with Lloyd Goossens, elbow-deep in records. Both men seemed worried.

"Well, they're in order," said the inspector disgustedly. "Every last one of 'em genuine. I don't understand it at all!"

"Nor do I," said Goossens, sucking nervously on his empty pipe. He stared from Beau to Ellery. "Which is which, Inspector?"

"There's the real Ellery Queen," snapped the inspector, "and this varmint who passed himself off as Queen is Beau Rummell, my son's partner. I wouldn't blame you if you took a poke at both of 'em, Mr. Goossens."

"I'm afraid it's too late for that now," said Goossens sadly, shaking hands with Ellery. "Some day you gentlemen must tell me why you deceived me. At the moment this business about Margo Cole, or rather Ann Bloomer, has me rather floored."

"You're sure the identification papers are in order?"

"Positive. See for yourself. I've brought Miss Shawn's along, too, for comparison."

"How do we know she isn't an imposter, too?" demanded Inspector Queen suddenly.

"I don't like it," growled the old man. "It upsets the whole cart."

"My heart bleeds for you," said Beau with a grin.

The inspector eyed him peculiarly. "Oh, I don't mean about the case against her. Finding out that the woman who claimed to be Margo Cole was an imposter doesn't really change Kerrie Shawn's motive, if Kerrie Shawn thought the woman was Margo Cole. Or even if she knew, the motive still holds. In that case she'd rely on the woman's imposture never coming out. It's not that."

"Then what is it?"

The inspector failed to reply.

"What bothers me," said Goossens, "is my position as executor and trustee in this matter. And being paired with this man De Carlos doesn't—ah—improve matters." He ran his fingers through his thinning hair. "All that money handed over to this Bloomer woman out of Cole's estate—"

"You can't be held responsible for that," said Mr. Queen. "We all made the same mistake. Because the proofs of identity were genuine, we assumed the person presenting them was their owner."

"Oh, I'm safe enough legally," said the lawyer. "It isn't that, Mr. Queen. There will be lots of newspaper talk, a scandal—it won't do my firm's reputation any good, you know; may very well scare away future clients. Well, that's my problem, not yours."

"Talking about legal considerations," remarked Beau, "there's the estate itself, Goossens. The real Margo Cole must be searched for. Kerrie's back in the picture as an heiress—with a charge of murder hanging over her. The surrogate won't like these little developments—"

Goossens looked unhappy. "Yes, yes, I'm aware of that." He frowned. "By the way, Mr. Queen, you know that technically you disobeyed the testator's instructions in having Mr. Rummell impersonate you. You had no right to give Mr. Rummell a job to do which you were personally hired to accomplish."

"If you mean," said Beau, "that we'll give back the 15 grand, my friend—take another whiff!"

"No, no," said the lawyer with a nervous smile. "I shan't press the point. But under the circumstances, I think the firm of Ellery Queen, Inc., will have to bow out of the case."

"WHAT do you mean?" demanded Mr. Queen.

"The surrogate won't like that little business, Mr. Queen. I imagine he'll insist on my engaging a new firm, or doing the job myself."

"You mean of beginning a search for Margo Cole all over again, now that the Bloomer woman has been exposed?"

"Yes."

"We stand," said Mr. Queen firmly, "upon our rights."

Goossens laughed. "I don't believe you have any. However, it's probably a dead issue. Dead issue—very good!"

Mr. Queen politely laughed, too. "What's that?"

"I mean—Margo Cole is probably dead. She must be. So it's a tempest in a teapot."

"Very possible," admitted Mr. Queen.

"Yes, leave them here."

The lawyer nodded glumly and left.

"Bad case of cold feet," remarked the inspector. "Well, I suppose he is in a jam." He sat down at his desk and began to finger his little figurine of Bertillon. "As I am, Beau, you and Kerrie are lucky this happened now. It smudges up our case, and the D. A.'s frankly sorry he advised such a quick arrest. And yesterday he wanted to arrest you, too!"

"On what charge?"

"Accessory to the murder." The old man paused, then said quietly: "I talked him out of it. I know you didn't have anything to do with it—not because the facts aren't against it, but because of a lot of things the law won't recognize as evidence."

"But Beau couldn't possibly have committed that murder," protested Mr. Queen with an outraged chuckle.

"I'm not talking about the murder," said his father shortly. "I said accessory."

"Thanks, pop," said Beau dryly.

"Just the same, my own hands aren too clean. The commissioner is thinking of taking me off the case. Now, with this new development . . ." He shook his head.

It seems to me," observed Mr. Queen, "that we're moving in concentric circles. Let's tackle this thing logically."

The inspector brightened visibly. "You see daylight?"

"Brilliantly."

"Then you don't believe Kerrie Shawn shot the Bloomer woman?"

"I do not."

"Not a bit of it. I have reasons for thinking her innocent."

"REASONS? What reasons? The Lord knows I'm a reasonable man. But if you can explain away the circumstances of this crime—except by some cock-and-bull story like the one Kerrie Shawn tells—I'll eat your hat in Madison Square Garden with catsup and mayonnaise!"

"I may take you up on that," said Mr. Queen; and he rose and began to walk up and down, frowning at the floor. "We must begin from the new fact: that the woman who represented herself as Margo Cole, bearing genuine proofs of Margo-Cole identity, as it were, is a proved impostor named Ann Bloomer.

"Now, with this woman an impostor, the question arises: Where is the real niece of Cadmus Cole, the real daughter of Huntley Cole and Nadine Malloy Cole—the Margo Cole Ann Bloomer pretended to be?

"You'll admit there are two inclusive possibilities: that either the real Margo Cole is alive today or she is dead.

"Let's examine the case if she's alive. If she is, why hasn't she come forward to claim her share of her uncle's estate? We'd have to rule out the possibilities that she doesn't know anything about her uncle's death and the will he left. This has been the most widely publicized will case in modern legal history. Cole's death, the odd conditions of his will, have been announced by newspapers, periodical literature and radio all over the world, not once but many times—in North and South America, Europe, Asia, Australia, even Africa and the South Seas. And this publicity has been going on for several months—first the death, then the publication of the will, then the news of the discovery of the two heiresses, and since then a continuous drumfire of their activities.

"Don't you agree that if the real Margo were alive it's reasonable to assume she'd have heard of Cole's death and her own eligibility as an heiress by this time?"

"Do you mean by that," asked the inspector, "that because Margo Cole hasn't come forward you think she's dead?"

"Not yet," said Ellery quickly. "I'm merely brushing in the background. I do say that the unusual publicity must have got to her eyes or ears if she's alive. Now, proceeding on this reasonable assumption—that if she's alive she knows—why hasn't she come forward?

"One possible, even probable, answer is that she knows she doesn't qualify under the terms of the will . . . that she is or has been married, for example—a state of affairs which would automatically cut her out of an inheritance."

"I should think," objected Beau, "that, even if she were or had been married, she'd show up and make a fight for that dough. That's only human."

"But she hasn't; that's a fact. Let's not get involved in counter-theories; let's proceed along the straight line. If she's married, and since she's failed to show up, what then? She would fight, you say. Yes, I agree; she would. But how? By contesting the will? She hasn't done that. Could she fight in another way? Certainly—if she got hold of a woman like Ann Bloomer and made a deal with her."

BOTH men looked blank.

"A deal like this, for instance: a fifty-fifty split of the income after Ann Bloomer, armed with the proofs of identity furnished her by the real Margo, showed up, was accepted as the legitimate heiress, and began to collect her share. Ann Bloomer's qualifications, from Margo's standpoint, would merely have to be: that she was not and is not married, and that her history could be mortised into Margo's history somewhere along the line—as actually happened, in fact."

"But that means," said the inspector excitedly, "that this partner Kerrie says the woman mentioned was—the real Margo! Why, if Ann doublecrossed Margo after Ann was accepted as the heiress, if Ann didn't fork over the split, that would be a motive for murder . . ."

"So it would," chuckled Ellery. "By the way, I thought you didn't believe Kerrie's story!"

"I don't," said the old man, flushing. "I'm just—arguing. For the sake of argument."

Both Beau and Ellery laughed. "At any rate," said Ellery, "I'm not arguing to reach that sort of conclusion, even though it might be true. The only conclusion I wish to reach you've already accepted, dad—that, if the real Margo still lives, she probably hired Ann Bloomer to present herself, furnished Ann with the proofs of identity, and was Ann Bloomer's silent partner in a scheme to get hold of half of Cole's estate, to which she was not entitled. In other words, Ann Bloomer had—had to have—a partner.

"Now, take the other possibility—that the real Margo is dead. Then how did Ann Bloomer get possession of those proofs of identity? From the reports, the Bloomer woman had not the slightest connection with the Cole family, certainly not by a blood tie. Yet the proofs of identity must have been in the possession of some one close to the dead Margo—we're assuming now, remember, that the real Margo is dead. In whose possession? A blood relation? The real Margo's only living relatives by blood were Kerrie Shawn, her cousin, and Cadmus Cole, her paternal uncle. Neither has had the least contact, or could have had from the facts, with the real Margo Cole.

"Then who is left as a possible possessor of those proofs? Such a person as the real Margo Cole's surviving husband, let us say. A good possibility, although it may have been one of a number of differently related persons. In any event, for the Bloomer woman to have got her hands on those proofs of Margo Cole's identity, she must have got them from someone who had been close to Margo Cole; and for this person to have turned the proofs over to Ann Bloomer means again a deal, a partnership. So again the vital conclusion arises: Ann Bloomer had a partner."

The inspector stirred. "Couldn't it have been like this? Margo Cole and Ann Bloomer were friends. Ann Bloomer murdered Margo, stole her proofs of identity, and showed up here to pose as Margo Cole. So there's no partner at all!"

"Two things against that theory," replied Ellery, "which, of course, has occurred to me. Once is that if Margo and Ann had been friends, why didn't the French police, who checked over every last detail of Margo Cole's movements from her birth until 1925, and of Ann Bloomer's movements from 1925 to date, run across any evidence of such a friendship? They did a careful job, as you know. The answer is: there was no such evidence to run across; there was no such friendship.

"Besides, that theory would indicate that Ann Bloomer was a lone—er—wolverene. Yet she told Kerrie a moment before she was murdered that she had a partner."

"We've only Kerrie Shawn's word for that," said the inspector stubbornly.

"And all sorts of confirmation in what El's just told us," growled Beau. "Don't be pig-headed, pop!"

U. S. Considers City of Flint Case Still Open

Matter Quiescent; State Department Gets Full Report

By Edward T. Folliard.
Post Staff Writer

The conduct of Russia in the case of the American freighter, City of Flint, is not a closed incident so far as the United States is concerned, it was learned yesterday.

The State Department regards the matter as quiescent for the time being.

Capt. Joseph A. Gainard, master of the City of Flint, made a complete report of his experiences at Murmansk, Russia, when he met Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, American Minister to Norway, and this was forwarded to the State Departmnt Capt. Gainard has since conferred with legal experts of the State Department.

Russia Is Criticized

In what amounted to a "White Paper," the State Department on October 28 was sharply critical of Russia's handling of the City of Flint at Murmansk, and of the shabby way it treated Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt when he sought to obtain information.

At that time, the State Department said that if the City of Flint had not suffered any damage to her machinery when she was taken into Murmansk, it was the "clear duty" of Russia to have turned her over to Capt. Gainard and interned the German prize crew.

Machinery All Right

When the City of Flint returned to Baltimore ten days ago, Capt. Gainard told reporters there was nothing wrong with the vessel's machinery at Murmansk. He also told how the Russian authorities refused the usual courtesies. He said he tried to send a telegram to Ambassador Steinhardt, tried to get permission to go ashore, tried to borrow a Russian army plane to fly to Moscow—and was refused.

All this and more is in the State Department archives. Some day Russia may be reminded of it. However, no action is contemplated now.

2 Escape Death In Army Plane

Board Advises U. S. Get Professional Experts To Judge Applicants for Technical Jobs

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer.

The establishment of panels of professional experts to draft, hold and grade examinations of applicants for the Government's top technical positions has been recommended by the Central Statistical Board to the President's Committee on Civil Service Improvement.

Writing in Personnel Administration, official publication of the Society for Personnel Administration, the board's executive secretary, Morris A. Copeland, declared that "lay examiners," no matter how well qualified in testing procedure, cannot make the wisest selections for Federal professional positions.

Copeland disclosed that the recommendation had been made by the board to the President's committee when the committee was gathering data for its preliminary report.

Article Implies Criticism

Although Copeland made no complaint about present Civil Service Commission procedure, his article was considered by personnel experts as implying criticism of the commission's examining technique.

The commission's examiners have been accused by many executives of operating departments of maintaining that a test expert can adequately examine professional workers in any field, given merely some study of the type of work involved.

Copeland took sharp issue with this contention. Although he complimented the commission on its "substantial progress" toward a more modern examining system, he indicated that the present system did not meet the requirements.

Copeland urged that panels of experts in every scientific and technical field now working in the Government be created and give part-time service to the commission. Voluntary cooperation with the commission, however, "like voluntary church work," is insufficient, Copeland said. He suggested that the commission should be given authority to command the assistance of individuals in the public service examining applicants to professional jobs.

In some cases, he said, it may be necessary to call in experts from private industry.

"A professional man should be judged by a committee of his professional peers," Copeland wrote. "Professional men rightly resent and refuse to tolerate submitting themselves to judgment by laymen in their respective fields, even when these laymen are professionally competent in the field of personnel administration."

Uncle Sam sold off a Government mint a few weeks ago, inquiries at the Public Buildings Administration revealed yesterday.

The buyer was not a counterfeit gang with big-time ideas, but the State of Nevada, which will use the Carson City Mint a sa museum. The establishment, one of the most colorful Government branches in the history of the West, went for a mere $5,000.

It stamped out golden eagles and double eagles from the rich gold strikes of the fabled Tonopah, Bonanza and Comstock lodes; its activity paralleled the growth of Carson City.

It was opened in 1870 Ten years later the city was a boom mining town of 4,200 citizens. The mint was closed in 1893, and a few years later the town's population was cut in half. Carson City now is almost a "ghost town."

After it ceased operations as a mint, the building was used as a Federal assay office until 1935, when it was put up for sale, the most eager bidders were enterprising characters who only wanted to "rent" the place for a few weeks—thinking, of course, to clean up a fortune by gathering up stray coins dropped between the cracks of the floor or gold dust in the molding.

Had the Government sold the mint to them, however, they would have been badly hooked. The Treasury spent two years in cleaning up the place after it ceased operations and stakes its reputation on the assertion that there isn't enough gold left in the building to fill a cavity in a microbe's tooth.

Cleric Pictures Lynching of 2 In Senate Plea

By the Associated Press

A gruesome account of the lynching of two Negro boys by a Texas mob was given to a Senate judiciary subcommittee yesterday by the Rev. Gresham Marmion, Washington Episcopal clergyman, in a plea for Senate approval of antilynching legislation.

The cleric said he pleaded in vain with a mob "of from 300 to 500 persons" in Colorado County, Tex., the night of November 12, 1935, to "let law and order take its course and not have the sin of bloodshed on your hands."

The mob listened for a minute or two, the clergyman said, and then began hissing and booing. He was pulled from the fender of an old car that furnished light for the lurid scene and the two boys were hanged.

Senator Connally (Democrat), Texas, a leader in the group of Senators who defeated similar legislation at the last session of Congress, told the young minister that he condemned "this lynching as heartily as you do."

Anyone over 18 years old may participate in the auditions at 7:30 p. m. Tuesdays at the N. B. C. Studios. Performers are paid $5 for their appearance on this program.

Mrs. Roosevelt Defends Communist Rights in Group

By International News Service

A White House debate, in which Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt defended inclusion of Communists in the American Youth Congress, was divulged yesterday on Capitol Hill.

The First Lady told her guests at a White House conference Monday night that the youth organization was fighting for great principles, in which Communists could share.

A score of liberal members of Congress took the opposite view. Mrs. Roosevelt called the conference in an effort to establish friendly relations between the youth congress and New Deal Congressmen.

Miss Frances Williams, administrative chairman of the youth organization, launched the debate when she said representatives of 15,000 Communists "are with us." She added that one known Communist is now serving on the legislative board of the Youth Congress. She defended their inclusion in the organization as justified by the bill of rights—declaring their exclusion would be a violation of the Constitution's guarantee of "freedom of speech."

Senator Josh Lee (Democrat), of Oklahoma, objected to this line of reasoning. He described how he had questioned a Communist at a recent Senate hearing on whether he would defend the United States in event of a foreign invasion. Lee said the Communist youth declined to answer the question.

Representative Casey (Democrat), of Massachusetts, inquired how Communists could subscribe to the oath of membership in the American Youth Congress and continue as a member in a political party (Communist) which does not believe in the American Constitution and serves largely as an agent of a foreign government.

Miss Williams replied that the youth organization merely required the Communists to "take our oath and we don't ask them any questions."

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, asked how the American Youth Congress could expect a friendly reception on Capitol Hill while including Communists in its membership.

"Where will you get with conservatives if we liberals are opposed to you?" Wheeler inquired.
